The aim of the Southern dry Democrats of the Senate seems to be to dig a hole in the Treasury surplus and put Mr. Hoover in it.

Some of our indignant statesmen on the Hill don't seem to be getting invited to step out to many Diplomatic Corps parties nowadays.

Zero weather hits the West and the ground is covered with a sheet of ice as treacherous as a member of the Pifflebund slinking around a Senate lobby.

It's now up to the Republican majority of the House to decide whether it wants to surrender its control over the purse that its great Speaker, Henry Clay, won for it a hundred years ago, or join the Senate Democrats in their effort to embarrass the new administration on the so-called prohibition question.

We trust the Senate will remember that it is talking about cruisers, not blueprints.

Our advice to the Virginia Democrats, if any, is to refer the case of the Hoovercrats to The Hague and not risk it in a primary.

The clause in the District appropriation act repealing the provision granting priority in positions in the local public schools to graduates of the Washington normal schools looks like a bold attempt on the part of politicians on the Hill to open the schools supported by the taxpayers of the Capital to the spoils system. ENVOY MORROW TO RETAIN POST AT MEXICO CITY

AMBASSADOR WILL VISIT MIAMI TODAY

By CARLISLE BARGERON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Miami, Fla., Jan. 3.—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, will not be Secretary of State. He will remain at his present post in Mexico City. He is arriving here tomorrow morning from Nassau, where he had been vacationing. He is to have breakfast with Mr. Hoover if he gets here in time. They will confer about Mexico in particular and Latin-America in general. The President-elect will give no thought to removing him from his present post and no one is believed to be more appreciative of this attitude than Mr. Morrow himself.

As Ambassador to Mexico he has brought the relations between that country and this to a better stage than they have been for years. But only the ground work insofar as the specific grievances which this country has held, has been laid. No law to which this country objected as menacing American properties in Mexico has been changed. Mr. Morrow has reached the point, it is felt, in his tactful representation from which discussion and adjustment of delicate matters between the two countries may now proceed.

There has been a lot of discussion about Mr. Morrow's elevation to Secretary of State. As Mr. Hoover left Washington there were reports that Mr. Morrow would call upon him here and considerable significance was attached to them.

Visit Was Understood.

That Mr. Morrow would call by and that Mr. Hoover would want to see him was accepted as a matter of fact. There was no understanding to this effect, however. It was learned only today by Mr. Hoover that the Ambassador was returning from Nassau to New York and that he would stop at Miami. Mr. Hoover immediately communicated with him requesting that he try to reach here as early in the morning as possible in order that the two might confer before the President-elect embarked upon a deep sea fishing trip. Mr. Morrow is of course a man with whom Mr. Hoover would like to talk.

It developed very plainly today that Mr. Hoover has no illusions as to the part prohibition, Tammany and religion played in the recent Republican wresting of many Southern States and while down here he intends to learn as far as possible just how much Republicanism was the factor and what chance it has of holding its Southern gains.

This was made very clear by his conference with Stuart W. Cramer, prominent Republican North Carolina textile operator and who has been prominently mentioned to succeed Secretary of the Navy Wilbur in the event the latter should retire or whenever he retires from his Cabinet post. And it might be said that Mr. Cramer gave Mr. Hoover a very frank prospectus, one with which the political observers of the Hoover party will generally agree. Incidentally, it was one that might cause Mr. Hoover to conclude that it is not so very much worth while to appoint a Southerner to the Cabinet.

Mr. Hoover had Mr. and Mrs. Cramer to luncheon in their temporary home on the J. C. Penney estate, and after the luncheon the two men retired for a long discussion. The President-elect

DAUGHTER OF LATE SENATOR ARRESTED

FIVE AUTOS ARE DAMAGED

Miss Mary Elizabeth Culberson, 26-year-old daughter of the late Charles A. Culberson, former governor and United States senator from Texas, was arrested in front of 316 Pennsylvania avenue northwest last night following an exciting automobile chase of six blocks and charged with driving while drunk and with leaving the scene of a collision.

Taken from her badly battered automobile, Miss Culberson, who lives at 1712 Sixteenth street northwest, was assisted to a nearby patrol box and then taken to the First precinct station in the patrol wagon. Later she was taken to the House of Detention. Shortly after 11 o'clock last night, three hours after her arrest, Miss Culberson was released in the custody of Chesley E. Jurney, secretary to Senator Copeland, of New York, on order of Inspector Ernest W. Brown, chief of the Traffic Bureau.

Miss Culberson, police of the First precinct charge, collided with five automobiles parked on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue near Tenth street northwest, forcing two of them up on the sidewalk, and then drove away at a rapid rate of speed toward the Capitol.

H. S. Barker, of 140 C street northeast, who told police he witnessed the crashes, tried to stop Miss Culberson's machine, but was unsuccessful, he said.

Meanwhile, R. M. Furneyhough, of 722 Tenth street northwest, who also witnessed the collisions, drove to Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue and told Traffic Policeman G. W. Ward, on duty there, what had happened. While the two were talking, Miss Culberson drove by. Ward said a stream of sparks, caused by a dragging bumper, shot from the rear of Miss Culberson's machine as it passed him.

Jumping into Furneyhough's machine, the two gave chase. They forced Miss Culberson's machine to the curb in front of 316 Pennsylvania avenue.

"I guess I must have struck something," Miss Culberson said when informed she was under arrest, Ward and Furneyhough said.

The charge of leaving the scene of a collision was preferred against Miss Culberson by Harold Southard, of 3621 Newark street northwest, whose machine was one of those badly damaged, and Policeman L. C. Norton.

Vincent P. Stetcher, of 5314 Seventh street northwest; Dallas D. Ball, of 216 West Garrison avenue, Clarendon, Va.; John R. Schafe, of 315 South Columbus street, Alexandria, Va., owners of other automobiles damaged, were ordered to appear in court this morning when summoned to the First Precinct Station. Another automobile, bearing a

RAIDING SQUAD FAILURES STIR HESSE'S WRATH

Police Head Threatens to Abolish Organization or Oust Members.

LETTERMAN'S CHARGE ROUSES OFFICIALS

Action Also Seems Likely as Result of Judges' Complaint on Recent Trials.

Angered and worried by accumulating criticism of the police liquor squad, Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent, yesterday threatened to "put the squad out of business entirely" or else "appoint an entirely new personnel."

Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, chief of the liquor squad, brought the matter to a climax when he testified in Police Court Tuesday that "some one was crooked, that's how McCormick got away," in explaining the "escape" of Frank McCormick, widely known in sporting circles, from 212 Ninth street northwest, when the squad raided that place last October 19.

Letterman's testimony was something like rubbing salt in raw wounds so far as Maj. Hesse was concerned, for it came on top of a series of complaints about police inaccuracies and discrepancies in the testimony in court, some of which were the subject of communication between the police chief and the judges.

Judge John P. McMahon called Maj. Hesse on the telephone and suggested that cases of mistaken identity by members of the liquor squad would be a subject for the police chief to inquire into and "straighten out."

Smarting under Letterman's statement, Hesse yesterday demanded a formal explanation from the liquor squad chief.

McCormick's Plea Recalled.

Letterman's charge of crookedness against unnamed persons participating in the raid was made in the course of his cross-examination by Harry Whelan, attorney for Harry Rockelli, 1007 Four-and-a-half street southwest, who was arrested in the raid and charged with violating the liquor laws. Police said he was tending bar when they entered, and that McCormick, widely known in sporting circles, was at the end of the bar without coat or hat.

McCormick, the police said, pleaded: "Sergeant, I'm a good fellow. Won't you give us a chance? You know what this means to me if we are charged. It means a year and a day in jail." Letterman said McCormick sought to "talk" to him, but he told him to talk in the presence of others. Later, Letterman said, he and another officer entered another room and when they returned McCormick was gone.

Whelan insisted on an explanation of McCormick's "escape," as it was described in a police affidavit, and Letterman then said that some one was "crooked—that's how McCormick got away."

Hesse said he knew of the testimony only at second hand and had no statement to make for publication at this time, although he was emphatic in his resentment of "newspaper stories" which, he said, were critical of the liquor squad and the Police Department.

When a reporter suggested that the police themselves made the news about their activities and newspapers merely published it, the police chief snorted disgustedly and said several warm words under his breath.

Criticized by Orcutt.

Maj. Hesse was not the only person tired and shocked by Letterman's charge of "crookedness," however, for it was also the subject of what is reported to be a sarcastic and heated interview between the police sergeant and Capt. Frank J. Orcutt, assistant district attorney, former prohibition unit attorney who was named by the Antisaloon League to the district attorney's office to prosecute liquor cases.

Orcutt has been trying to put McCormick in jail for some time on

One Lifeboat Is Lost in Perilous Feat, Says Wireless Report.

BIG CRAFT BUCKS SEA MORE THAN 24 HOURS

HUGE WAVES HAMPER RACE TO SAVE LIVES

New York, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—The entire crew of the sea-tortured Italian freighter Florida was taken from the sinking ship tonight and put safely aboard the S. S. America in the face of greatest danger to both rescuers and rescued.

Capt. George Fried, who has defied the storms of the North Atlantic many times, reported by radio to his company here at 10:10 p. m. that the rescue had been carried out with only one slight accident—the loss of a lifeboat.

The 32 men had waited for more than 36 hours aboard the wave-battered freighter before they were taken aboard the America, while a bitter cold gale, which had hampered rescue ships for a night and day continued to stir the Atlantic into mighty waves.

Capt. Fried's Message.

Capt. Fried's message said:

"Rescued full crew of Florida, 32 men. Chief Officer Harry Manning in charge. Cold west gale. Lifeboat lost. Proceeding to New York. Full details later."

The message was timed on board the America at 10:10 p. m.

Tersely, in the manner of men who watch from the bridges of Atlantic liners, Capt. Fried gave his company only the naked outline of one of the most gallant marine rescues in recent years—probably approaching in difficulty his rescue of the crew of the freighter Antinoe three years ago tonight.

It was in that rescue, made against great odds, that the name Fried was first written boldly in the story of a rescue at sea, and tonight Capt. Fried was celebrating the anniversary in a grim but peculiarly suitable manner.

Swings Out of Course.

The American swung from her regular course toward New York in mid-afternoon yesterday when the distress call of the little Italian freighter was broadcast from an already weakened radio.

The Florida called for immediate assistance, reporting that her sides were being beaten dangerously by high waves and that her lifeboats already had been smashed to pieces. There were three vessels within the 250-mile circle around the freighter and they started a race into the teeth of a terrific gale which ended only tonight as the America's big searchlights played on the crippled vessel.

The Dollar liner President Harrison and the German Lloyd freighter Yorck started at once for the position given by the Florida. Almost at the same time a distress call was received from the American freighter Dannedalke, which reported itself sinking in about the same position.

The Florida's radio became intermittently weaker, until it could not be heard tonight by shore stations, and the America was having trouble keeping in communication.

Other Ships Proceed.

The President Harrison and the Yorck reached the position given in the S O S calls this afternoon, but proceeded on their routes after reporting that they found no trace of the Florida and learning that the America was in touch with and approaching it.

The Dannedalke reported that it had made temporary repairs and was push-

REPEAL OF PRIORITY IN SCHOOLS OPPOSED

URGE TEACHERS' COLLEGE

Incorporation in the District appropriation bill for 1930 of a clause repealing that section of the public school act which grants priority to graduates of Washington's normal schools in appointments to teaching positions, has resulted in protests by members of the Board of Education, and is regarded as certain to cause a bitter fight for its elimination.

The repealing clause in the appropriations act, soon to come before Congress for consideration(provides that priority in appointment to teaching positions shall apply only to those graduates of the local normal schools who shall at the time of their graduation rank within the first 25 of their respective classes, arranged in order of their ratings received for their entire normal school course.

Dr. Charles F. Carusi, president of the Board of Education, is a bitter opponent of any plan which would permit persons from the various States to obtain teaching position in local public schools to the detriment of Washington normal school graduates. He believes, and has made known these beliefs before the subcommittee of the House District committee, that, if local applicants for teaching positions are not as well qualified as those trained in the various States, then it is up to Congress to provide local officials with the facilities to so train them.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and Stephen E. Kramer, his first assistant, are in favor of placing local normal school graduates on a competitive basis with those trained outside of Washington, though Dr. Ballou has gone on record as saying "there are no better-trained teachers anywhere than the trained teachers who come out of our normal schools, for the most part."

The repealing of the priority clause was the chief topic of discussion at an informal meeting of members of the Board of Education at the Franklin School yesterday. Although the discussion was held behind closed doors, it was learned that the members practically were unanimous in their opposition to it.

Dr. Carusi has strongly urged the establishment of a teachers' college in Washington. He also is in favor of a junior college, which would permit high school graduates to obtain a two-year academic course at public expense.

In the last annual report of the Board of Education, Dr. Carusi remarked:

"The course of professional training in the normal schools was extended from two to three years, and a study is now being made as to the feasibility of extending this course to four years and creating a teachers' college which shall give to the young men and women of this District an opportunity to secure a professional training that will better equip them for service in our own school system and create a demand for their services outside of Washington. It is believed that at slight expense the first two years of such a

Professionalism Hits School Checker League

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Checkers, a sport, or rather a game, that has gone along for these many years without a major scandal, is the cause of turmoil in the Chicago High School Association. Professionalism is alleged.

Today a member of the athletic staff of Crane School charged that Speed Holzer of Austin High School slips away from home one night each week to play at the South Side Checker Club, and that he is a competitor in the monthly tournament at that club, for which the first prize is $6. Holzer has not won the money yet, but is said to be such a skilful checker player that he has a fighting chance. Hence, Crane's protest.

HOUSE COMPLETES DISTRICT FUNDS BILL

VOTE IS DUE TOMORROW

The House finished consideration of the District appropriation bill late yesterday, with a wide gulf of bitterness separating the Republicans and Democrats who have it in charge. A vote will be taken on the measure tomorrow.

First, however, Representative Griffin (Democrat), New York, is expected to move that the bill be sent back to committee and an item of $165,000 for salary raises for District employes written into it. The move already is doomed to fail.

Responsibility for the lack of sewers, schools and other necessities here was laid at the door of Congress, yesterday by Representative John J. Casey, giant Democrat, of Pennsylvania.

In a fiery 40-minute speech on the appropriation bill, Casey declared that conditions here were tragic, and warned the House that unless something were done to correct them a "national scandal" might result. He said that the 6,000 children who were forced to attend part-time classes and the 3,500 who had to study in portable buildings were being "robbed of an education."

He also charged that Chairman Simmons and other Republicans on the District subcommittee of the House appropriations committee had broken a solemn promise when they failed to provide $165,000 for salary increases for District employes.

The Pennsylvanian was fighting mad. His face was flushed, and his voice boomed through the chamber.

Earlier in the afternoon, Chairman Simmons had read a long prepared

Women Concert Singer Held On Bad Check Accusation

Released on Bond for Hearing Today; Store Makes Complaint.

Mme. Henrietta Coquelet, well-known Washington concert singer, was arrested last night and charged with violation of the bad check law on a warrant sworn out by a large F street department store.

Mme. Coquelet, who gave her age as 36, and her address as 1800 I street northwest, complained to the police on December 31 last that her purse containing $5,000 in $100 bills had been cut from her arm while in an elevator in the department store. She told them at the time that she suspected two white women of foreign appearance.

Investigation by Detective Sergt. John W. Wise of the alleged theft resulted last week in the issuance of the warrant against Mme. Coquelet, upon the complaint of John N. Harding, an official of the store.

According to Detective Sergt. Ira E. Keck, of the bad check squad, prior to her complaint in regard to her pocketbook being stolen, Mme. Coquelet

Amanullah, With Army, Tries to Regain Kabul

Paris, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Advices received by the Afghan Legation today indicated that former King Amanullah, who recently withdrew his abdication and fled to Kandahar, now is approaching Kabul with a sufficient force to deal with the present occupant of the throne, Habibullah Khan, known as Bacha Sakao, the water boy.

Reports have been received here that Nadir Khan, a relative of Amanullah, had been offered the throne of Afghanistan as a compromise, but these are scouted in Afghan circles.

Calcutta, India, Jan. 23 (U. P.). Three Indian officers and eight cavalrymen were killed near Peshawar today when Royal Air Force aviators mistook the group for a target and dropped bombs on them during a practice flight.

The aviators were aiming at white circles on the field and mistook the soldiers' white sun hats for a target. Several other native soldiers were injured in the bombing.

First Sea Rescue by Radio 20 Years Ago Yesterday

Jack Binns, Wireless Man, Set Tradition for His Calling When Another Steamer, Florida, Rammed the Republic; Danger Call of That Day, "C Q D."

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Twenty years ago today another steamer named the Florida, an Italian ship as is the Florida now disabled off the Virginia Capes, figured in the first sea tragedy in which a major part was played by the then still novel wonder, the wireless.

In that tragedy, Jack Binns, a youthful veteran of the new calling of marine wireless operator, won fame that still attaches to his name and, by sticking to his post in face of danger, established a tradition that since has been upheld by almost countless other wireless men.

The White Star liner Republic, with Binns as its only wireless operator, was off Nantucket on the start of a Mediterranean cruise with its 461 passengers sleeping in their berths when the Lloyd Italiano liner Florida, carrying 300 passengers, loomed out of a dense fog and rammed her prow through the side of the Republic and into her engine room.

Binns, in the Republic's wireless room, was taking a message from a land station of the Marconi Co. When the crash came, flooding the engine room and killing six persons, Binns cut in with the distress call of the day, "C Q D," which since has been superseded by the modern S O S. "C Q" was, and still is, the call meaning "all points listen." The "D" was added to mean danger. The C Q D was described by newspapers at the time as "the general ambulance call of the sea."

As soon as Binns had given his distress call and told the position of the Republic there began the first of those wireless-directed general races to the rescue which since have become so well known, the latest example being the ing along on its own power toward Bermuda. Constantly, throughout a night and day, Capt. Fried kept the nose of his vessel heading straight into the gale, fighting against time and the waning strength of the little freighter, which was tossed rudderless in the midst of the storm. There were 464 passengers aboard the America, bound for New York, but they took such a ride as only seafaring men can appreciate as the big liner shook and jolted ahead under full steam.

Late this afternoon Fried sent another of his brief messages to land stations, saying that he had located the Florida by radio bearings.

Searchlight Pierces Dark.

Then, somewhere out almost due east from the Virginia Capes, there started a desperate search of black water and even blacker night. The tiny beam of the America's searchlight felt the blackness time and again for the rough outlines of the freighter.

The Radio Marine Corporation's land stations continued to pick up meager bits of information, most of it by way of messages which Capt. Fried was attempting to exchange with the Florida. The America asked the crippled vessel's officers if they could see the former's searchlights and told the Florida to put up "plenty of light."

Then about three hours after darkness had fallen the search was successful and Capt. Fried flashed:

"S. S. America standing by the Florida."

Another hour of silence and shortly after 10 p. m. there came the message announcing that Chief Officer Harry Manning had headed a rescue party in small boats to take the crew from the Florida. Apparently the America lost one of its lifeboats in making the rescue, and it seemed only a miracle that no greater damage was done since the wind was so strong and cold.

The America then proceeded toward New York, leaving the water-soaked hulk of the Florida to the mercy of the sea.

Apparently the Florida was in desperate circumstances when Capt. Fried's vessel reached it. Only when there is no time to waste does a captain take such risks in removing men from a ship at night and in the face of a west gale.

From the minutes that the America turned from her path to race toward the Italian freighter, the rescue proceeded with clock-like precision. Although both the President Harrison and Yorck were closer to the Florida, it was the churning America that first came within striking distance, then established radio communication where the others had failed and later drove on through darkness to rest—a friendly and protecting bulk—by the side of the damaged ship.

The rapidity with which the transfer of men in rough water and darkness was carried out indicated again the confidence with which Capt. George Fried faces his old enemy, the sea.

Tanker Cheats "Old Dave."

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—A cheerful message from the captain of the American tanker Dannedalke to his line's owner, Charles Kruse & Co., of Philadelphia, tonight indicated that the ship was out of danger and making progress toward Bermuda.

The message, which was received by the line's offices here, said:

"Now limping toward Bermuda. Score pretty near tied with Old Dave that time. Regards to all.

"MATHIASEN."

The Dannedalke reported in distress Tuesday at about the same time as the Florida and not far from the latter's position off the Virginia capes.

"We are sinking—help," she radioed. The President Harrison, one of the ships which went to the rescue of the two vessels, but was forced to abandon the search for them because of lack of fuel, spoke with the Dannedalke several times by radio, but never was able to sight her.

This afternoon, however, the Dannedalke advised the President Harrison she had set up a jury rig and was trying to make safe harbor in Bermuda under her own power. The cheerful message from her captain indicates she is succeeding.

Liner Paris Battered.

The French liner Paris arrived 32 hours late tonight after battling a blizzard, a 100-mile gale and raging seas, which carried away a lifeboat and parts of the vessel's wireless antennae. Capt. Yves Thomas declared it was the worst storm he had ever encountered.

Staterooms were flooded and blankets were requisitioned to sop up an inch of water which spread over the salon floor. The deck was coated with a foot of snow and ice.

The Paris narrowly escaped a collision with an American freighter early today in a dense fog and snowstorm. Passengers awakened by the sudden reversing of the ship's engines, reported that the liner came within 10 feet of the freighter. Capt. Thomas refused to discuss the incident.

Steamer Is Abandoned.

London, Thursday, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A radio message intercepted by the Lands End station this morning said that the steamer Penelope was abandoned in a sinking condition late last night off the coast of Portugal. The message was sent from Montsanto, Portugal. The position was given as 39.18 north latitude and 9.39 west longitude, which is a few miles west of Lisbon.

NICARAGUAN OUTLAWS SLAY 3 U. S. MARINES

SANDINO DRIVE IS SEEN

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Latest advices from northern Nicaragua state that three Marines of a patrol of seven which clashed with outlaws northeast of Yali, in the department of Jinotega, on Monday, were killed.

Those killed were Privates Everett A. Rector, of Des Moines, Iowa, whose death had previously been reported; Rastus Collins, of Lyons, Ga., and George T Oswill, of Miami, Fla.

First word of rector's death was brought to Marine headquarters by a messenger yesterday, while additional advices received today told of the deaths of the other two. Only meagerest details of the clash have been received.

Steps toward declaring martial law in the northern departments are being taken by the Nicaraguan authorities, and the training of volunteers for service in the region is going on rapidly.

Dr. Francisco Mairena, surgeon for the rebel forces of Gen. Augustino Sandino, said in Honduras last week that the general was planning a big offensive in Nicaragua. About the same time President Moncada, of Nicaragua, turned down a peace proposal from Sandino which urged that the Northern department of Nueva Segovia be separated from Nicaragua and turned over to the rebel leaders.

The last previous clash occurred on January 10 in Nueva Segovia when Lieut. William H. Smith, an American medical officer, was wounded and two native guards were killed. In the same district, on December 6, Gunnery Sergt. Charles Williams, of Astoria, N. Y., was killed in an encounter with a band of marauders.

DORAN WITHHOLDS EMBASSY RUM DATA

Representative Celler Hits at Secrecy as to Imports of Diplomatic Liquor.

SOLD HERE, HE DECLARES

Charges that "diplomatic liquors" constitute a grave menace to effective prohibition enforcement, which have been made from time to time by dry organizations and recently, were exploited on the Senate floor, found their way to Prohibition Commissioner Doran yesterday. Doran refused to give Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, a statement regarding the amount of liquor brought into the Capital under diplomatic privilege.

Doran, in refusing to give the information, cited a statement of the Secretary of Treasury under date of February 13, 1923, made in connection with a similar request, to the effect that the Treasury Department could not give out such information in view of the diplomatic status.

"The secrecy makes one suspicious," Celler commented. "It almost confirms my information that, at bootleg prices, the value of diplomatic liquor runs into the millions.

"There is no check upon it. It spills over all legal barriers and is freely bought and sold in Washington."

Diplomatic immunity regarding the importation of liquors was made the subject of remarks on the Senate floor several days ago by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, during debate on the $25,000,000 Harris amendment.

Appeals to "dry up the legations" have been made by the dry speakers assisting Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the National United Law Enforcement Committee, which is conducting a dry campaign in Washington, and the subject has had the attention of former Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Howard and other speakers.

HOUSE IS DIVIDED ON NEW DRY FUND

Wood and Others Come Out Against $24,000,000 and Will Fight It.

LEAGUE DENIES SPLIT

(Associated Press.)

House members yesterday voiced varying opinions on the $24,000,000 added to the measure for use by the President in prohibition enforcement. Although the Republican leader, Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, declined to make any comment other than that he "supposed the House would vote on it," others were more outspoken. Representatives Wood, of Indiana, and Cramton, of Michigan, both Republican members of the appropriations committee, flatly opposed it. Wood will be in charge of the bill when it is returned to the House.

Garrett Approves Increase.

Among the House Democrats, Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the minority leader, as well as others expressed approval of the increase on the ground that if the money were available for enforcement, the department could not complain that it could not enforce the law because of lack of funds.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking Democrat on the appropriations committee, disagreed with the views of Wood and Cramton. The Tennesseean said testimony before the committee had been that there was a lack of money to enforce prohibition, and he felt the $24,000,000 item should be approved by the House.

If the House should refuse to approve the expenditure or should recommend a smaller amount, Wood, Cramton and Byrns probably would be the members of the House committee to confer with the Senate in an attempt to compose differences.

Drys Deny Differences.

While these views were expressed in the House, the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church issued a statement declaring there was only an apparent and no real difference of opinion among prohibition advocates regarding the proposal.

Recently the board had said that while it was urgently in favor of enforcing the law, it appeared that all of the money could not be wisely used at the present time.

The opinion and policy of all temperance organizations at this time, it was said yesterday, was to "put entire confidence in Mr. Hoover, a prohibitionist elected by the prohibitionists of the country."

It also suggested that a provision for specific purposes was desirable, but voiced the belief that such requirements would hardly aggregate the total provided until based upon a thorough understanding of the needs of the various agencies being used by the Government in enforcement.

Approved by McBride.

In Chicago, F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, announced he "heartily" approved of the amendment. He said that in the beginning of the discussion he had "publicly stated that the fund proposed should be accepted 'under a carefully prepared budget presented by the Department.'"

"Later," he added, "I called attention to the fact that the Secretary had not in his letter refused the appropriation, and that he had well suggested that some of the funds should be used in the Justice Department to give better court service, and that other phases of the work mentioned should be speeded up. "I suggested that he go over the work and present a more intensive budget as a proper procedure."

SENATE BILL ALTERS TAX REFUND PLANS

First Deciency Measure Hits Mellon's Opposition to Publicity.

DRYS GET $24,000,000

(United Press.)

The $126,000,000 first deficiency appropriation bill carrying two provisions vigorously opposed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was passed late yesterday by the Senate without a record vote.

Amendments adopted in defiance of the administration provide an additional $24,000,000 for prohibition enforcement, and require the Internal Revenue Bureau to hold public hearings and publish decisions in all tax refund cases where the sum involved exceeds $10,000.

The prohibition amendment was recommended by the Senate appropriations committee and adopted Tuesday by a vote of 50 to 27. The tax publicity amendment, which was made a condition to the appropriation of $75,000,000 for refunds, was introduced without the sanction of the committee by Senator McKellar, Tennessee Democrat. It was modified by unanimous consent and adopted by a viva voce vote shortly before the bill itself was passed.

In its original form, the McKellar amendment provided that tax refund cases involving more than $10,000 should be passed upon by the Board of Tax Appeals and thus made public before they were granted. Mellon objected to this on the ground that the board already is overburdened with work.

Its modification was regarded as a compromise between tax publicity advocates and administration forces. It met the principal objection advanced by Mellon and was accepted by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who is looked upon as Mellon's spokesman in the Senate.

The modified amendment nevertheless retains the principle of tax publicity which Mellon has consistently opposed, and an independent bloc in the Senate, led by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, has upheld. Its adoption was therefore considered an important victory for the tax publicationists.

Besides the tax and prohibition provisions the deficiency bill carried a Senate amendment providing more than $7,000,000 for hurricane relief in Porto Rico. It now goes back to the House for adjustment of differences between the original measure and the bill passed by the Senate.

CRUISER BILL FIGHT STARTED IN SENATE

Battle From Now On Will Proceed in Earnest; Passage Expected.

BRITTEN JOINS FORCES

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The decks are at last cleared for uninterrupted consideration of the cruiser bill, and from today on the battle for adequate national defense will proceed in earnest. The Navy bill came up automatically after the passage of the deficiency bill late yesterday.

Meanwhile, assistance to the supporters of national defense in the Senate has been proffered by Representative Fred A. Britten, chairman of the House naval affairs committee, who has assumed leadership in rallying support from the House in case such support should be necessary.

Mr. Britten believes the time has come when every legitimate agency of government should be mobilized in favor of adequate national defense, and against the threatened danger to the American people which he sees in the pacifist and internationalist propaganda drive against Uncle Sam's Navy. He is confident that the Senate will now be able to handle the situation, but to guard against eventualities he has prepared to enlist the cooperation of the House in support of the Nation's security.

Conferences by Britten.

Accordingly, Mr. Britten will offer the cruiser bill as an amendment to the naval appropriation bill when the latter reaches the House in the event of a tie-up by filibuster in the Senate. An appropriation of $12,500,000 or $13,000,000 for the first year's work on six of the ships would be included in the amendment.

Paving the way for this safeguard against the internationalist propaganda, Mr. Britten conferred with President Coolidge yesterday and later held conferences with Senate leaders, including Senator Curtis and Senator Hale, chairman of the Senate naval affairs committee.

Confers With Coolidge.

"I called upon the President this morning to see if a way could be found to submerge that small group of hungry-looking professional pacifists who are hanging around the Capitol doors, lobbies and vestibules to impress members of Congress in their consideration of the fifteen-cruiser bill," said Mr. Britten after his White House conference.

Mr. Britten then explained that he is prepared to introduce, if necessary, a bill making a $12,500,000 appropriation for the first year's work on 5 cruisers and 1 airplane carrier.

The bill would be in the form of an amendment. Any special rule required to make this action effective is regarded as assured in view of the fact that the House passed the cruiser bill overwhelmingly last March. The Britten amendment, besides making the $12,500,000 appropriation, would provide for the carrying out of the 15 cruiser program as part of the regular naval appropriation bill.

"I want the 15 cruisers and the airplane carrier to be under construction when the Washington Conference meets in 1931-32," said Mr. Britten.

This conference has been provided for by the Washington naval limitation conference of 1921-22, which brought about limitation of capital ships of more than 10,000 tons but was unable to provide limitation for war craft of other types below the 10,000 figure.

American Program Halted.

Since 1922, there has been no successful effort to bring about naval limitation by agreement with the British or Japanese. These powers agreed to the proposed Washington conference limitations because the United States was on the point of outbuilding them.

Realizing that the American building program before Congress would be completed unless competition in warship building ceased, the British and Japanese agreed to the 5-5-3 program whereby Great Britain and the United States were to have parity in naval strength.

But as soon as the British and Japanese realized that pacifist propaganda was tying the hands of the United States in cruiser construction these two powers naturally declined to make any further agreements as to limitations.

America had scrapped a considerable portion of her Navy to meet the terms of the Washington conference and reassure Britain and Japan, who also scrapped some ships and many blueprints of unconstructed ships to satisfy the terms of the Washington agreement.

It is an open secret that neither the British nor the Japanese are going to enter into any further naval limitations conferences until they see whether or not the pacifists are going to be successful in crippling the American Navy.

Britten Bill Funds.

If America can not build ships because of the effect of pacifist propaganda on Congress, then neither Great Britain nor Japan is going to enter into any agreement as to limitations.

There must be an American quid pro quo for any curtailment of British or Japanese building and if America cannot build cruisers even if the people want them, the British and Japanese naval authorities admit that they would be simple-minded to limit their own building programs when they can gain obvious supremacy over the United States by letting the present situation take care of itself.

The fact that Representative Britten recently attempted to bring about a British-American conference on naval limitation has added particular significance to his present move on behalf of the cruiser program.

The Britten amendment to the naval appropriation bill calls for the expenditure of $2,000,000 on each of the six ships during the first year and in addition a $250,000 appropriation for additional ways in navy yards and a $250,000 appropriation for the Washington Navy Yard, to provide added facilities for the manufacture of 8-inch guns.

BANDIT HEAD, SOUGHT IN 8 KILLINGS, TAKEN

KILBY FUGITIVE CAUGHT

Pendleton was taken into custody with two women on a downtown street. Chief of Police L. G. Robey said he had definitely established the identity of the gang leader.

Two other alleged members of the Pendleton gang were arrested in Buffalo, N. Y., last week and are being brought West under heavy guard to stand trial. They are Bryan ("Whitey") Walker, wanted for the robbery of a Lamar (Colo.) bank, which resulted in the killing of four men, and Fred Nave, wanted at Ada, Okla.

Police said Pendleton is sought by authorities of at least a dozen cities for alleged implication in eight murders and more than a score of bank robberies.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Roy Dickerson, notorious criminal, who escaped from the Kilby prison, in Alabama, last October, has been captured. Dickerson, who first gave his name as Edward P. Allen, was arrested here Monday night on suspicion of planning the burglary of a downtown department store. He was identified after he had gained his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday, only to be rearrested by Federal officers on a charge that the automobile he was driving had been stolen in California. A kit of burglar tools was found in the car.

A man who was with Dickerson Monday night and escaped has been identified as Frank Cook. Dickerson, Cook and Ivanhoe Silva, reputed "bootlegger king" of Birmingham, Ala., escaped from Kilby prison October 2.

Consternation was caused at police headquarters last night when a tear gas gun, which looked like a fountain pen, taken from Dickerson, exploded in the hands of an officer. He was not injured.

Police declared that Dickerson had confessed while under arrest in Seattle some time ago to the $6,000 burglary of a department store here two years ago.

AIMEE M'PHERSON AND JUDGE CALLED Evangelist and Hardy Will Tell Legislature About Check for $2,000.

IMPEACHMENT CASE STEP

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The kidnaping story of Aimee Semple McPherson dragged in and out of the courts a half dozen times since that sensational tale more than two years ago, was back in the legal limelight today. This time a legislative body was considering the impeachment of a judge who admitted he received a "fee" from the Los Angeles evangelist.

The latest twist in the evangelist's legal encounters came today when a committee appointed by the State Legislature to investigate the receipt of a $2,500 check from Mrs. McPherson by Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy, of Los Angeles, subpenaed the two to appear before it here on Saturday. Both said they would obey the committee's demands.

Will Determine Cause.

Sitting as a political body the committee will determine whether Judge Hardy can show sufficient cause for not being impeached for accepting fees while occupying public office. The judge has admitted that he was given the check by Mrs. McPherson for "legal counsel" during the time when the evangelist's kidnaping story was before a court, which later dismissed charges that Mrs. McPherson and her mother had attempted to obstruct justice.

The matter came before the State legislature after a motion to impeach the judge had been introduced. Following argument, much of which was based on the grounds that the judge should not be impeached on "hearsay" evidence, a committee was appointed to investigate the facts and report to the legislature. The California House and Senate now are in a 30-day midsession adjournment.

Case in High Court.

Previously the financial transaction had been revealed by Mrs. McPherson's mother following a dispute with her daughter. After Judge Hardy had publicly admitted the deal the State Bar Association attempted to prosecute him. He resisted the move, refusing to testify in face of a threat of contempt of court. The matter was appealed to the State Supreme Court, where it now awaits a decision.

Judge Hardy has charged that the bar, fearing an adverse decision, has attempted to impeach him before the high court's decision is returned. Because of the McPherson "fee" the jurist was dropped from membership in the American Bar Association.

Admiral Benson Made Papal Knight

J. A. Farrell, U. S. Steel Head, Also Among Recipients of Malta Cross.

Rome, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The Vatican today announced a long list of new Knights of the Order of Malta, including many Americans, and also the conferring of the grand cross of the Order of Malta upon several lay leaders of the church who have already received knighthood. The latter category includes James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, and Morgan J. O'Brien, former judge of the Supreme Court of New York. Mrs. Farrell and Mrs. O'Brien were created Ladies of the Order of Malta.

The list of new knights included the following:

Economist to Mediate In Chicago Milk Battle

Chicago, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. Clyde L. King, of the Wharton School of Economics, Philadelphia, today accepted the position of arbitrator in the milk price controversy here between members of the Pure Milk Association, producers, and the Chicago Milk Council, distributors.

In a telegram to Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, health commissioner, Dr. King said he would be in Chicago not later than Monday.

After a truce had been agreed on between the farmers and dealers, following the three weeks strike punctuated by violence and the waste of thousands of pounds of milk, it was decided to ask Dr. King to aid in effecting a permanent settlement because of his special knowledge and experience.

Robinson Praises Kellogg's Treaty

But Pact Does Not Replace Nation's Defenses, Senator Tells Students.

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—In his first extended address since the recent campaign, Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic nominee for Vice President in the last election declared here tonight that the Kellogg Treaty to renounce war was a contribution to world peace, but that no one should believe that the United States can now disband its armies and scrap its warships.

The treaty, the senator said, speaking before the graduating exercises of the Peirce School of Business Administration, was mainly an expression of the will to peace, and as such this country still has the power and the responsibility to protect the lives and property of its citizens for which an adequate Army and Navy are necessary.

Unemployed British March on London

London, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Unemployed men, divided into companies equipped with knapsacks, field kitchens and ambulances, today began a march from Glasgow to London to demand repeal of the unemployment act passed by parliament last year. This act, by tightening the regulations for giving the unemployment dole, reduced those entitled to this aid by about 30,000.

Communist speakers addressed the marchers as they started out on their journey, which is expected to occupy five weeks. Despite bitter cold weather the demonstrators were cheerful. They previously had been employed in the steel, shipping, jute and mining industries.

The workless, with the general election looming in the near future, evidently believe the time propitious for bringing pressure to bear upon the government, which has already offered to give a pound for every pound of public contributions to the national relief fund for idle miners. Britain now has an unemployment register of near 1,500,000.

Lindbergh Cousin Dies Following Plane Crash

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Ray Barlow, of New York, said to be a cousin of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, died at a hospital here today of injuries received when the airplane he was piloting crashed at Aiken, S. C., Sunday. He was 30 years old and operated a flight instruction and passenger carrying concern at Aiken.

Barlow is survived by his widow, his mother, Mrs. Bertha Pearson and two brothers. The latter three live in Sweden.

San Francisco, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—William L. Rosa, former clerk of the United States District Court at Honolulu, pleaded guilty to eight counts of an indictment charging violation of the Harrison narcotic act and the Jones-Miller act today before Federal Judge Frank J. Kerrigan. Eddie Chin Wan and Tom Lett, said to be San Francisco agents for an alleged ring, will come up for trial on January 29. Rosa is expected to testify against the Chinese. Chin Fook Gum, of Shanghai, is under indictment.

Chicago, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Capt. Lester D. Seymour, general manager of the National Air Transport, Inc., announced today that Harold Knoop, mail pilot, set a new record on his regular Chicago-Cleveland flight last night, making the 318 miles in an hour and 45 minutes, an average speed of 182 miles an hour.

Knoop had made the flight before in an hour and 47 minutes. Knoop is a friend of Col. Charles Lindbergh, and succeeded him on his former air mail run.

Livermore Thief Given 25-Year Prison Term

New York, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Arthur Barry, 38, was sentenced to 25 years' imprisonment today after he pleaded guilty to complicity in the theft of $86,000 in jewels from the Long Island home of Jesse L. Livermore, multimillionaire stock broker.

Shot That Struck Husband Is "Blank" in Huntress' Mind

"I Don't Remember," Mrs. Wilson Sobbingly Declares on Stand, After Narrating Heated Encounter That Preceded Affray.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs Esther Wilson, jungle huntress and Washington society woman, testified in her own defense today that she had no recollection of shooting her husband, Dallett Wilson, Fifth avenue lawyer and politician, last March.

"I sat down across from him at his desk," Mrs. Wilson testified in relating her actions at the time of the shooting. "He was very rude to me. I told him I wanted to have a definite understanding about money matters and he was perfectly dreadful. I never saw him so angry in my life. Three or four times he tried to put me out of the office. The minute Mr. Wagman (a lawyer employed by Wilson) went out of the office, Mr. Wilson made a jump at me, put his hands up as though to grasp my neck, and cursed me saying '—— —— you, you're killing Miss Rice.'"

There was no explanation of the identity of "Miss Rice" and at this point in her testimony Mrs. Wilson began to laugh hysterically.

"I don't remember shooting him," she concluded her account, laughing and then suddenly bursting into tears.

Under cross-examination she acknowledged that she had a revolver without a permit although she knew this to be against the law. She carried it in a hand bag, she said, to protect her jewels. She couldn't be positive whether it was in her bag when she called on her husband because she had no occasion to look in the bag as she never carried a handkerchief and seldom used powder.

Wilson, who was wounded twice and spent two months in a hospital, testified as a State's witness that he believed Mrs. Wilson had shot him by accident.

"Didn't you admit to a patrolman," the prosecutor asked Mrs. Wilson today, "that you shot your husband?"

A policeman testified yesterday that when he was called to the Wilson offices after the shooting, Wilson told him he had been shot by his wife and Mrs. Wilson admitted the shooting.

"I suddenly realized," Mrs. Wilson answered the prosecutor, "that I must have done something and I guess I told the policeman I had shot my husband."

She said that some time before the shooting a Washington jurist, whose name she did not mention, warned her that her husband might "do something dreadful" to her and might "frame" her.

Questioned about her knowledge of firearms Mrs. Wilson said she owned two revolvers, the one with which the shooting was done which she bought for $12 in Washington, and another with which she used to perfect her aim by shooting ducks on an estate near Bethlehem, Pa.

"Do you ever drink?" the prosecutor asked at one point of his interrogation.

"I take a drink once in a while," Mrs. Wilson replied, "but I had not had a drink that day."

Mrs. Wilson was the only witness called by the defense, and when she was through court was adjourned until tomorrow when both sides will sum up. Before adjournment the judge denied a defense motion to instruct the jury to acquit. The motion gave 12 grounds, including the assertion that prosecution evidence had indicated that Mrs. Wilson shot in self-defense rather than with any intention of killing or committing assault or any other felony.

Doctor Says Vare Is Very Sick Man

Holds Time Needed Before He May Appear to Answer Senate Committee.

Fort Pierce, Fla., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. John J. Shaw, attending United States Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, sees little chance for his patient to appear before the Senate investigating committee for some time.

In a statement issued today the physician, who is with Mr. Vare at his winter home in St. Lucie, near here, said that the senator-elect has shown improvement since coming to Florida, but "he is still a very sick man."

"No rapid improvement is looked forward to, as a stroke of apoplexy is distinct condition in which time plays an important part. The senator is doing as well at gaining as the average case of apoplexy of his type gains."

Rothstein Lawyer Called to Testify

Must Tell All He Knows About Preparation of Gambler's Will.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 23.—Assemblyman Maurice F. Cantor, many years personal attorney for Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler, and who held Rothstein's hand while a cross was scratched for his signature, will have to testify in the probating of Rothstein's will. Surrogate O'Brien ruled today that Cantor and the other two executors, William Wellman and Samuel Brown, would have to appear.

Cantor originally was sworn as a witness along with the two nurses who were atending Rothstein in the Polyclinic Hospital, when the wounded gambler lay in a coma. Both nurses have been examined, but Cantor sought to evade examination on the ground that, although he attached his name to the will to indicate who it was who held Rothstein's hand when the gambler made his mark, Cantor did not subscribe as a witness to the will.

Counsel for Rothstein's father and brothers then sought to examine Cantor as one of the executors, alleging that he exercised undue influence on the dying man and fraudulently prepared a will which he caused to be fraudulently executed.

Surrogate O'Brien's order requiring Cantor to submit to an examination limits the inquiry to "acts at or prior to the execution of the will and to questions of fraud and undue influence."

'Still' Dream Loses Man His Citizenship

German Applicant Audibly Wished an Alcohol Cooker "In Every Home."

Baltimore, Jan. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Because he had expressed a wish "to see the day when there would be a still in every American home," Louis Werner, a native of Germany, was denied United States citizenship in the Federal Court here.

There were several other charges against him, but this was the only one fully sustained by the evidence. It led Judge Coleman to decide that Werner's actions since coming to this country several years ago were hot such as might be expected from persons desiring to become American citizens.

The decision was made following a hearing of protests against Werner, who claimed to be a graduate of a homeopathic medical school in Alsace-Lorraine, former German province.

He was heard to express the wish that cost him citizenship in a Highland Town barber shop.

SEA LAW MUDDLES GUARD SLAYING CASE

SHOTS HELD "NECESSARY"

Elmira, N. Y., Jan. 23 (United Press).—The trial of Frank L. Beck and Glenn Jennings, coastguardsmen accused of shooting fatally Jacob Hanson, secretary of the Niagara Falls Lodge of Elks, while enforcing the prohibition law, became much involved today in the matter of how far inland the rules of the sea extend.

Beck is a boatswain and Jennings a surfman in the Coast Guard. Strictly speaking the Coast Guard's concern with prohibition is to catch liquor smugglers on the seacoast or along the Great Lakes.

Jennings and Chris Dew, another surfman, however, had been assigned by Beck to patrol the road near Niagara Falls, and to stop and search the automobiles of suspected smugglers.

The law governing the Coast Guard, which was designed for operations at sea, says that "necessary force" is to be used in stopping and searching suspected smugglers. Usage, long approved, has made a shot across the bows "necessary force" on water, and if it is not heeded, sometimes the guns are turned upon the suspected craft itself.

Brought Rules Ashore.

Dew and Jennings brought their sea-going rules ashore with them allegedly under Beck's orders and when Hanson failed to heed their signal to stop his car Dew fired into the air, as the equivalent of a shot across the bows. Then Jennings is alleged to have sent five shots sizzling into Hanson's car and one took effect in Hanson's head, causing his death.

Attorneys argued today that the coast guardsmen were justified but the court interrupted to ask:

"The law doesn't say anything about shooting anybody, does it?"

All hands had to admit that it didn't and that "necessary force" is the only term used and sea-faring tactics had merely been brought ashore.

As a result of this argument the court refused to dismiss the charge against Beck.

Soviet Opens War On Trotzky Party

150 Arrested When Communists Declare Group Seeks to Stir Civil Strife.

Moscow, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The Communist party has declared relentless war against the party of Leon Trotzky, former minister of war, who now is in exile in Russian Turkestan. They arrested today 150 Trotzky followers, here and elsewhere in Russia, and seized a quantity of so-called illegal literature.

It was stated in support of these severe measures that all of the anti-Soviet forces in the country were rallying around the Trotzky organization and preparing for a new civil war against the present government. It was charged that during 1928 the organization was directed against the proletarian dictatorship and the Soviet Union and that Trotzky had published a statement abroad to the effect that the present Soviet government was "Kerenskyism turned inside out."

The Trotzky supporters were accused of referring to the red army as their army of coming revolution. All members of the Communist party were told that they must understand that the arrested persons are members of anti-Soviet organization with which all relations are forbidden.

made known that he was aware of the factors of prohibition, Tammany and religion in the Southern campaign and he wanted to know just where they stopped and where Republicanism, or a trend to it, entered.

Hoover Admired In State.

The textile operator, outstanding in the North Carolina campaign, told him, and it is true, that there is no doubt but that there was a great admiration for Hoover over the South. In so far as North Carolina is concerned he thought that "Republican prosperity" had an appeal. There is no way of measuring the various factors but he believes that able expectation of holding North Carolina. He would not hazard a prediction as to other Southern States.

He explained that the Republicans have long had a strong lily white organization in North Carolina and that the State, with its growing industry, has shown a Republican trend. But even the case of this one State, where obtains the best Republican organization in the Solid South, he did not seek to minimize the part that the three unusual issues played in the November victory.

Mr. Cramer sought to give an accurate picture the frankness of which Mr. Hoover will undoubtedly appreciate, but which fell far short of the story which Horace A. Mann, Southern Republican manager in the campaign, has been relating and which he will repeat again to Mr. Hoover shortly after he returns from his fishing trip upon which he plans to embark tomorrow. Mann is already here within calling distance, but as yet he has not been called He most likely will be very much in evidence before Mr. Hoover returns to Washington.

Cramer is a very close friend of Secretary Wilbur, the two of them having been graduated from the Naval Academy together and resigned from the Navy at the same time. It was only yesterday, in fact, that Cramer had a letter from the Secretary.

Wilbur Likely to Remain.

Being human, he would have no aversion to serving in the Cabinet, assuming, of course, that it did not conflict with Mr. Wilbur. The general belief is that Wilbur will remain where he is until a Federal judgeship turns up. But it is not believed that Mr. Cramer entertains any serious thought that he will be named, and there is reason to believe that Mr. Hoover does not have him under serious consideration.

Mr. Cramer did, however, seek to dispel the popular notion that he is a New Englander, only migrated to North Carolina in recent years. He said that his family ran back for 200 years in the Tarheel State, which is plenty of years. The New England touch was probably given him, he explained, by the fact that he married the sister of Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, and it was upon the ocasion of this marriage that he spent the longest time he has ever spent in New England, he said.

Mr. Hoover expects to get away in the early afternoon for a fishing trip 32 miles away. He is to be accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah T. Milbank, the former Eastern treasurer of the Republican committee; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan and Edward G. Lowry, magazine writer. Two houseboats, so-called, but they look like yachts to me, and owned by Milbank and Joseph H. Adams, the latter Mr. Hoover's present neighbor, are to be used. The party expects to return Saturday.

Dr. Hubert I. Work, chairman of the national committee, who, although accompanying Mr. Hoover on the trip down, is living at a hotel, will remain behind to take care of any matters that may come up.

Virginia Grave Yields Seven-Foot Skeleton

Richmond, Va., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—State highway officials reported today discovery of a human skeleton 7 feet long found in an old graveyard in Gloucester County.

The skeleton, in a walnut box 7½ feet in length, was disinterred during the remodeling of an old road which ran through the graveyard.

Laddie Boy, Pet Of Harding, Dies

"First Dog of Land" During Ohioan's Administration Succumbs of Old Age.

Newtonville, Mass., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Laddie Boy, the magnificent Airedale which as the "first dog of the land" once roamed at will about the White House grounds, is dead at the home here of Harry L. Barker, secret service man to whose care he was entrusted seven years ago at the death of his master, President Harding.

The end came yesterday while the dog, ailing for many months of old age, rested his head on the arms of Mrs. Barker, who had nursed him through a serious illness only a short time ago.

Laddie Boy was a half-brother to President Coolidge's dog, Laddie Buck. He came to the White House on March 4, 1921, a gift to President Harding from Charles W. Quetsche, an Ohio admirer.

On the death of the President, Mrs. Harding gave the dog to Barker in return for Barker's kindness and as a remembrance of the President. When Barker was assigned to the Boston district he brought Laddie Boy with him and until recently the animal was a general pet with the children of the neighborhood.

MAN SLAYS NEPHEW AND KILLS HIMSELF

Returns to Baltimore After 25 Years to Settle an Old Grievance.

POISON IS FOUND IN COAT

Baltimore, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Fred Sweiger, of Denver, returning to Baltimore after an absence of 25 years, fatally wounded his nephew, Thomas W. Cole, and then killed himself in Cole's office in a local printing company. Carroll Sweiger, brother of the Denver man and an official of the printing company of which Cole was manager, when questioned by police on the cause of the shooting, said "I'll tell that later."

Printers in the shop heard Cole's plea, "Don't do that," soon after Sweiger entered Cole's office, and then heard four shots. Police found Sweiger dead with one wound in the chest. Cole, who had three wounds, died on the way to a hospital.

Coroner Otto M. Reinhardt, conducting an investigation of the two deaths, came to the conclusion that the shooting grew out of a real estate deal in which Fred Sweiger believed he had been cheated by his nephew, Cole. Police also had begun investigations on a theory that dissatisfaction with the will of his brother, William Sweiger, one of the founders of the printing firm, who died in 1927, had brought Fred Sweiger to Baltimore determined either to break the will or harm the printing business.

Sweiger formerly lived in Baltimore, but went to Colorado for his health after an attack of typhus fever 25 years ago. He had not returned here until yesterday, when he visited the home of his sister, Mrs. Stephen J. McDonough.

Printers employed by the Metropolitan Co. where the shooting took place, said that Sweiger threw open the door of Cole's office so violently as to attract their attention. One who could see through the door said Cole rose from his desk and went to meet his uncle, when the pistol was produced suddenly and fired before any words were exchanged except Cole's plea "Don't do that."

Examining Sweiger's body police found in his pocket a package of one of the deadliest poisons known. They said it had been bought in Denver and deduced that Sweiger had come East intending to kill his nephew and prepared to use the poison if he should be disarmed before killing himself.

Woman's Club Election Dispute Ended by Court

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. John R. Hornaday today was elected president of the Atlanta Woman's Club in a court supervised election, thus bringing to an end litigation which began following election in May, 1928, when both Mrs. Hornaday and Mrs. Charles R. Goodman, her opponent, were declared elected by their partisans.

An uproarous election last May ended in court suits after one faction walked from the clubrooms and another elected Mrs. Hornaday president. The first faction contended that the meeting had been adjourned, but two city detectives who were stationed at the club to maintain order were unable to testify clearly on that point.

RUM TO TAP SECRETS URGED, IS TESTIMONY

Mrs. Hammonds, Says Witness in Oklahoma, Proposed Plan to Quiz Foe.

SEVENTH CHARGE VOTED

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 23 (A.P.) Legislative committees investigating impeachment charges against Oklahoma's suspended governor, Henry S Johnston, heard evidence today purporting to show that road contractors rallied to the chief executive's support when impeachment threatened him in 1927. While this evidence was being heard, the seventh of ten articles of impeachment pending against Johnston was voted by the house. It charged that he unlawfully called out the National Guard in 1927 to suppress the attempted impeachment session of the legislature.

Testimony that Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, the suspended executive's confidential secretary, had sought to arrange the intoxication of a hostile house member in an attempt to obtain information from him was another high spot of the mass of evidence taken by committees of the senate and the house

Solicited by Contractors.

E. J. Franklin, Tulsa insurance agent, testified before a senate committee investigating rumors that money was employed to bring an end to the attempted impeachment session of December, 1927; that he contributed $500 toward a fund to employ attorneys to represent Gov. Johnston in a supreme court case testing the validity of the session. He said the money had been solicited by two contractors whose names he could not remember.

Franklin admitted that among the contractors his company wrote bonds for were C. S. Beekman, of Oklahoma City, and Harry Cannady, of Tulsa, who had been mentioned in previous testimony as being in a group named by Mrs. Hammonds as being instrumental in preventing Johnston's impeachment. O. P. Slack, vice chairman of the State Fish and Game Commission, an appointee of Johnston, testified regarding Mrs. Hammonds before the house investigating committee.

In response to questions he said that Mrs. Hammonds had asked him to get Tom Johnson, Pushmataha County representative, drunk and obtain from him information as to the attitude of the various legislators toward the administration. Slack said he informed Mrs. Hammonds that Johnson did not drink, but delegated the task to a clerk in the department, W. T. Hunt.

Vote on Charge Small.

A list was obtained by Hunt, Slack said, although he did not give liquor to the representative. The list was rejected by H. E. Sullivan, private secretary to Johnston, Slack testified.

After a wordy battle the house of representatives voted out the seventh of the charges alleging illegal use of the National Guard. In 1927 a majority of members of the house met in a downtown hotel in defiance of the orders of Johnston to disperse and voted out purported charges, which were dismissed when members of the senate accepted a supreme court ruling that the legislature had no right to convene itself.

The vote on the seventh charge today was 59 to 38, with 7 absent. It was the smallest vote commanded by anti-administration forces on any of the articles it has passed upon. Speedier action on the remaining three charges to be considered by the house was promised today when a limit was put on debate.

KEYES TAKES STAND; DENIES FIXING CASE

LEAVES CHAIR TO ARGUE

Los Angeles, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Testifying in his own defense in the bribery case growing out of the alleged "fixing" of the Julian Petroleum fraud trial, former District Attorney Asa Keyes today denied that he had "laid down" at the last minute in the prosecution proceedings. Keyes is accused of accepting bribes from two men among the Julian defendants, who are codefendants with the former district attorney in the present trial. Charges against three other defendants in the bribery trial were dismissed yesterday, at which time the State closed its case.

Keyes testified that he moved to dismiss the Julian conspiracy case against Ed Rosenberg, now a defendant, because he "believed that no conviction could be obtained against Jacob Berman, and S. G. Lewis without the aid of Rosenberg's testimony.

Claims Jury Was Tired.

"I was faced with a tired jury," Keyes testified when asked for an explanation of the brief closing argument he made to the jury in the Julian case. "They had been argued to by counsel from May 2 to May 22 and I thought a long technical argument would hurt my case. Harold L. Davis and Julian Richardson already had covered the State's views of the law and facts and I thought a short, snappy talk would be the best."

Referring to the attempt by Keyes to dismiss the case against Ed Rosenberg, Jud Rush, chief defense counsel, asked:

"Was the motion granted?"

"It was not."

Keyes then stated that he had placed men whom he believed were "best qualified" in charge of the Julian prosecution.

"Now, Mr. Keyes," Jud Rush said, "the State has presented evidence which showed that you were out of the courtroom part of the time during the Julian trial. Were you trying any other case then, and if so, what case?"

"I began the prosecution of William Edward Hickman on a murder charge about the time the Julian case opened."

"Was that an important case?"

"Yes."

"Did you prosecute it personally?" Rush asked. "I did."

Prosecutor Is Overruled.

The prosecution objected to Rush's question as to the outcome of the Hickman case as immaterial, but the court allowed Keyes to answer that "Hickman was convicted and subsequently executed."

HESSE THREATENS DRY LAW SQUAD

charges of gambling and liquor law violations and several months ago obtained a District Supreme Court injunction against McCormick forbidding violation of the liquor laws.

Had McCormick been arrested and convicted it might have been possible for Orcutt to gratify his ambition, and his "escape' and Letterman's testimony about "crookedness" Tuesday displeased the prohibition prosecutor. As it was, Rockelli said he had entered the raided place to get some lunch and after the jury listened to Letterman it voted not guilty.

The Rockelli-McCormick incident is only one of many connected with the activities of the liquor squad in recent months which now are being revived and called to the attention of responsible police authorities.

Policeman Repudiates Identity.

John Sewell and Sarah Clay, both colored, were brought to trial in Police Court Monday on charges preferred by the Letterman squad, charged with selling and possessing liquor. When Sewell was arraigned, Policeman Anderson, who is said to have purchased liquor at 635 Springmans court, where the two were arrested, said Sewell was not the man from whom he purchased liquor.

It was suggested that Anderson might be mistaken, it is said. But he refused to name Sewell as the seller, and there was a session in the chambers of Judge John P. McMahon. Judge McMahon asked Willard Camalier, assistant district attorney, when the raid and arrests had been made and was told early last October.

The judge then called Letterman and Sergt. Burke, another member of the liquor squad, into his office and asked why it had not been possible in the intervening months to have Anderson, a policeman, look at Sewell and see whether they had arrested the right man, named as "John Doe," and described as weighing 180 pounds, of light color and bearing a heavy scar on his face.

Judge McMahon Angered.

Reports of what took place in the judge's chambers vary a little, but the tamest version quotes Judge McMahon as saying that it was "a mighty queer way of doing business" and resenting keenly the police explanation that the man arrested had been in jail only an hour before he was released under $1,500 bond.

Robert I. Miller, attorney for Sewell, sought dismissal of the charge but Assistant District Attorney David Hart is studying the evidence to see whether Sewell and the Clay woman may not be prosecuted under a charge of illegal possession.

Charge that the liquor squad members distorted their testimony to fit the case they wished to make was made in another case recently in the course of the trial of Chester Bolds and Charles Baker before Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy.

The police testified they raided and arrested the men on April 14, when the authenticity of their raiding warrant was questioned, and produced a warrant dated April 14. It was shown the raid was made on April 13 under another and different kind of warrant.

Judge McMahon recently criticized the squad from the bench for arresting "60 or 70" persons in a gambling raid, instead of arresting those guilty of running the gambling establishment. It was "a farce" the judge said.

Schuldt Suspends Trial.

Judge Schuldt, several months ago, suspended a liquor trial and asked that Police Inspector Louis J. Stoll be sent to court to hear the testimony in another case in which members of the liquor squad admitted, under cross-examination, that the liquor they were presenting in evidence in court to send a man to jail was not the liquor they seized when they arrested the prisoner. They could not find the other liquor.

Nothing was done about this case by police authorities, officials explaining that the squad made many raids and all raids were attended with excitement, and it was "impossible" to make "certain of all details."

Judge Mattingly also criticized the squad recently, asking Letterman how he would "like to have your home broken up," as the raiders wrecked the home of a person they arrested.

What will be the eventual outcome is problematical, Maj. Hesse taking refuge in the statement that his force is being persecuted through publication of such incidents.

DRY LAW PRACTICES ASSAILED BY LEAGUE

Use of Conspiracy Charges to Create Felonies Is Subject of Protest.

COMPLAINT GOES TO BAR

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Austen G. Fox, chairman of the Moderation League, announced today that the league proposed to place before the next annual meeting of the American Bar Association the matter of "the increasing use by the United States attorneys of joint conspiracy indictments for the sole purpose of converting joint misdemeanors into felonies."

"The urgency of this matter," said Mr. Fox's statement, "was brought sharply to the attention of the public by recent indictments and trials in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. It appears that under the leadership of Assistant Attorney General Mabel Walker Willebrandt in charge of prohibition, and her aid, Norman J. Morrison, or others acting with the approval of the district judge, there started, not long ago, a widespread attempt, by using the word 'conspiracy' in their indictments, to quadruplicate the punishment which Congress had fixed for misdemeanors committed in violating the Volstead act.

"At the outset, these representatives of the Federal Department of Justice ran foul of a widespread suspicion, which was not confined to juries, that there was something underhand about the whole procedure. The words of Mr. Justice Holmes, the senior justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, in describing the conduct of the Federal Government in the so-called 'wire-tapping' case as 'dirty business' seem not out of place. It has not taken juries long to see that such procedure is nothing less than an attempt at judicial prosecution. They are quick, also, to exercise their ancient duty to stand between their fellow citizens and every attempted prosecution by the government, democratic or monarchial."

The statement called attention to the recent acquittal here of twelve night club employes on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, despite admissions by the defense that there had been liquor in the two clubs. The jurors in that case, said Mr. Fox, "showed the traditional courage which so often has marked the conduct of jurors in protecting their fellow citizens from any attempt to governmental persecution."

SPEAKER LEE FOILS INVESTIGATION MOVE

Charges of Bond Diversion Made in "Dirty Spirit," He Says at Annapolis.

RESOLUTION IS DEFEATED

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 23.—A move to force an investigation of the Montgomery County Commission for alleged misappropriation of public funds was overwhelmingly frustrated in the house of delegates today. During prolonged debate reference was made to charges that county courthouse bond funds had been diverted to developments in which Speaker E. Brooke Lee is personally interested.

A resolution calling for an investigation by the grand inquest committee, introduced by Delegate Robert E. Ford, (Democrat), Baltimore City, was made the basis for a vigorous attack on Speaker Lee and the Montgomery County Commission. Acting as a committee of the whole, the house voted to report the resolution unfavorably. The vote was 93 to 11 and the house then adopted the report, which closed the matter, by a unanimous vote.

When the resolution was introduced, James L. Lindsay, Baltimore County, majority floor leader, described the resolution as a "dastardly paper" and called on Ford to take the floor and substantiate the charges contained in the resolution.

Ford's rejoinder was that the resolution did not contain personal charges. "But when funds of the State are robbed," he asserted on the floor, "and bond issue funds are illegally diverted, I regard it the duty of the house to take notice."

Later, in an extended reply to those sponsoring the resolution, Lee asserted: "I do not admit that these gentlemen brought this resolution in the kindly spirit as they have stated to the house. I think this thing was brought in as dirty a spirit as any two men can introduce in an investigation."

On roll-call vote only eleven members—seven Democrats and four Republicans—voted for the resolution. They were: J. W. Gray (Democrat), Baltimore City; Seymour Phillips (Republican), Baltimore City; Louis Binder, Daniel C. Joseph and Robert E. Ford, all Democrats, of Baltimore City; Simon L. Downey (Republican), Washington County; William A. Hummel (Democrat), Baltimore City; Yewell W. Dillehunt (Democrat), Baltimore City; George D. Hicks and Martin L. Ingram (Republicans), Washington County, and George L. Edmonds (Democrat), Montgomery County.

nected with the financing of the Parkway Apartments, and the organization of the corporation, add their testimony to that already given by the tenants to enable the committee to determine if the cooperative enterprise failed because of "mismanagement or the viciousness of the plan."

When the right of the committee to investigate the management of the Parkway Apartments was challenged last night, Representative Gilbert pointed out that the committee was endowed with the power, but that he did "not know what use the committee could make of the facts gained from the investigation."

Frank Russell White, builder of the apartment house in question; Roy L. Neuhauser, a joint holder of the second trust with Sol Lansburgh; A. F. Prescott, jr., one-time secretary-treasurer of the Parkway Apartments, Inc., and J. Miller Kenyon, an attorney, took the stand. Each told the part they had played.

White told of building the apartment house on land owned by Neuhauser and Lansburgh, who took a second trust of $100,000. The Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty Corporation, of which L. E. Breuninger is president, and Neuhauser vice president, took a first trust of $340,000.

White testified that he had not intended to turn the apartment into a cooperative enterprise, but under the persuasion of Arthur M. Suit he did so, when the trust holders offered no objection.

Later the apartment house, which was built under Frank Russell White, Inc., was incorporated under a New Jersey charter as the Parkway Apartments, Inc., of which Suit was made president.

White was very hazy as to what equity he held in the new corporation, but it was finally determined that his equity consisted of any money left over after all apartments were sold and the indebtedness paid off.

Testimony by Neuhauser.

Neuhauser then testified that before the foreclosure proceedings were instituted against the apartment corporation he went to the tenants with papers which, when signed, would entitle the tenants to four months free rent, after which they would have to vacate.

Neuhauser said he did this in an effort to be "liberal and to help out the tenants."

The tenants present at the hearing laughed at this, but were reprimanded by Chairman Gibson. Neuhauser, later elicited from Kenyon, a former attorney for the tenants, that he had been "somewhat austere but entirely fair" in transactions with the tenants.

Although refusing to reveal publicly his loss as a result of the foreclosure, Neuhauser declared that it was much greater than the combined loss of the tenants.

Prescott, who is connected with Lyon & Lyon, attorneys, who became trustees for the Parkway Apartments, Inc., then told of his connection with the cooperative concern.

Suit and White, he said, had agreed to form a holding company for the apartment, and together with Neuhauser secured the services of Lyon & Lyon as trustee for the holding company which had been chartered in New Jersey with Suit, a Mr. Raedy and Miss Grace Baker, secretary for White, as holding the qualifying shares of stock.

Didn't Meet Obligations.

When Lyon & Lyon became trustee for the new corporation, Prescott took over the qualifying shares held by Miss Baker and C. Brown, the shares held by Raedy. Suit was made president of the new organization, Brown, vice president and Prescott, secretary-treasurer.

Two months later the corporation was not meeting its obligations, Prescott testified, and he suggested at a meeting between Neuhauser, himself and Suit that all funds be held in escrow. Suit refused, saying that he was going to deduct his commission and continue to sell apartments.

Prescott testified that he resigned as secretary-treasurer, and shortly after that forclosure proceedings were begun.

Prescott denied being paid anything for his services during the time he was an officer of the corporation, and added that he turned over all his qualifying shares to Miss Baker upon his resignation.

Kenyon was the last to testify and he did so only after challenging the right of the committee to question him. He was an attorney for the tenants, but withdrew when he came to the conclusion that he could not be of assistance to them.

PRIORITY FOR NORMAL SCHOOL HERE URGED college with its broadened curriculum might be thrown open generally to our high school graduates and other qualified persons."

During examination by Representative Simmons, of Nebraska, in an appearance before the subcommittee of the House considering school appropriations, Dr. Carusi said, in respect to the repeal of the priority rights of local normal school graduates:

"We want the best teachers we can get, but our people here would feel they were treated unfairly if we should make the claim that all of our teachers should have a degree from a teachers' college and thereby automatically shut the doors of our public schools to our people, because there is no way here at present whereby they can qualify themselves for that competition. Now, if we could get a four-year normal school course, with the privilege of awarding a teachers' degree, then I, for one, am in favor of doing away with this discrimination in favor of our people."

Great Fleets Join "Battle" For Possession of Panama

"Black" Pacific Ships Attacking Entrance to Canal, While Scattered "Gray" Line Defends It; 50,000 Soldiers Man Huge Guns in Forts.

Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—A scattered gray line of men o' war tonight was fighting off the direct thrusts of a superior naval force which sought to assail the Pacific entrance of the Panama Canal. The United States Navy's Atlantic fleet was defending the strategic gateway against the maneuvers of the "black" Pacific fleet.

"No lights; no smoking on topsides; sharp lookout" were the orders of the day for the men of the defense squadrons. Meanwhile the "black fleet" was somewhere on the Pacific seeking the most strategic point of attack. Scout planes which had hung high in the tropical skies all day were housed on board the airplane carriers, their observation threat dimmed by the settling of night.

The total unit of the Atlantic fleet—25 ships—was fighting the advance of 99 ships of the blacks.

The weird, low num of turbines on the destroyers and cruisers, barely audible, marked the line of scouts that was attempting to pierce the night and solve the plan of the invaders. Behind them came the submarines, set for the launching of their torpedoes.

The great capital ships—the dreadnaughts—lay back of their scouting contacts, their 14 and 12 inch batteries rendered less destructive by the danger of enemy destroyers or submarines slinking through to deal a death blow.

On all vessels the crews stood by their guns ready to deal the first imaginary salvo that would win them the umpires' strategic victory.

Back at the canal, nearly 50,000 men stood by the great 16-inch land guns, or deployed along possible landing points to repel possible final attack.

New Tariff Hearing Loud With Politics

(Associated Press.)

Politics mixed with economics at the House ways and means committee hearing on the tariff revision yesterday when George H. Malone, of Dothan, an Alabama witness who voted for Herbert Hoover, claimed that the President-elect won in his State in the recent election but was counted out.

"Some people south of the Potomac River also voted for Hoover, and I was one of them," said Malone.

Mr. Hoover, Malone declared, carried Alabama but was counted out. He added that 50,000 voters stayed at home, but would vote for Hoover next time if he carried out his promises made in his Tennessee speech and confined his appointments to "those who have the esteem of the communities they serve."

"We want a prohibitive tariff on everything the South produces," he declared.

"Do you believe that's what Mr. Hoover promises?" asked Representative Rainey (Democrat), Illinois.

"That's what a telegram I got from Horace Mann (Republican campaign worker in the South) said," Malone replied, amid laughter.

"If he shuts out the negro," he added, "we are going to vote for him. We don't want to see any negro officeholders in the South.

"You people up here," Malone continued, "can hardly realize the sacrifices that some of us in the South have made. Some years ago we would have been ostracized for seeking a higher tariff, but not now."

He added that the two Alabama senators "came sailing out of their offices to see me when I called on them and none of the Democratic congressmen condemned me."

Updike Loses Appeal For Election Recount

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The Indiana Supreme Court here today denied a petition by Ralph Updike, Representative in Congress from the Seventh Indiana District, to mandate Judge Lynn D. Hay, of the superior court here to appoint commissioners to conduct a recount of the ballots cast in the election last November. Updike was defeated by Louis Ludlow, his Democratic opponent.

Judge Hay decided several months ago that Updike's protest of Ludlow's election was not well founded and dismissed the case. It was reported that Updike might take the contest to the House of Representatives.

MICHIGAN BLIZZARD SACRIFICES 5 LIVES

Two Women, Found Frozen to Death, Among Victims; Cold Wave Spreads.

ROADS ARE LIKE ICE RINKS

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Five lives have been taken by the blizzard and cold wave which for three days have held Michigan in their grasp. Two women were frozen, an aged man and his small granddaughter burned to death, when an overheated stove set their home afire, and a youth was killed when, blinded by snow, he walked in front of a truck.

The body of Mar. Seth Shattuck, 45, was found tonight in a snowdrift at Cadillac, Mich. She had been missing since last night. An unidentified woman was found frozen to death in a vacant house here, where she apparently had taken refuge from the snow and sleet last night.

John Lasnear, 69, of Pontiac, and his granddaughter, Thelma, Lasnear, 3, were burned to death when a coal stove ignited the floor beneath it.

Chicago, Jan. 3 (U.P.).—Heavy northwest winds swept through the Middle West today sending the temperatures down to zero and below in many sections.

The sudden drop from above-freezing marks followed heavy rainfalls and turned highways and city streets into mammoth ice rinks which proved hazardous to traffic. Several accidents were attributed to the ice.

The temperature in Chicago dropped to 5 degrees above officially while suburban towns reported unofficial marks at zero and below. The official forecast was for a further drop in the Chicago area tonight with rising temperatures Thursday.

The cold wave, originating in Canada, swept down through Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri. Southwestern States reported much colder weather and the drop was felt as far South as the Texas Panhandle region.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Avoid Too Much Dosing for Flue Say Physicians

Its Toxins Upset Stomach and Constant Dosing Further Disturbs Digestion.

According to health authorities, a peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system, especially in the case of children. Too much "dosing" still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting the digestion. Nor can it interfere with any other treatment your doctor may prescribe.

Rubbed on the throat and chest, Vicks acts two ways at once: (1) through the skin like a poultice, and (2) by means of its medicated vapors, released by body warmth and inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

In the present epidemic, as in 1918, Vicks is proving its usefulness in millions of homes. In spite of vastly increased capacity, it is again necessary to run the laboratories all night long, as the public now demands over 375,000 jars every 24 hours.

Submarine Safety Loop Tests Today

"Pad Eyes" Must Stand a Pull of 160 Tons to Qualify.

Strength of steel "pad eyes" or loops on submarines to which pontoon lifting chains are attached to pull them to the surface in case of accidents, will be tested at the Bureau of Standards this afternoon at 3 o'clock, for the Navy Department.

The pad eyes to be tested are those whose accessibility has already been determined in connection with salvage and submarine rescue work carried out on the experimental hull of the ill-fated submarine S-4, at Provincetown, Mass.

They will be riveted to a block of metal of the same thickness and construction as a section of submarine hull, connected with heavy links to a machine with a pulling capacity of 2,000 tons, and submitted to its tractive power until they crack. The pad eyes must be able to stand a pull of 160 tons to be effective in submarine salvage work.

ARCHBISHOP PRAISES LAYMEN'S RETREATS

Four Senators at Dinner of Washington Section of Wide Movement.

COMMUNITY CHEST URGED

The great growth in America of the laymen's retreat movement was emphasized at the second annual banquet of the Washington section of the League of Laymen's Retreat, held last night at the Mayflower Hotel in honor of Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore. Seven hundred men attended, including four United States senators, who occupied seats at the speakers' table, and a half dozen members of the House of Representatives.

Patrick J. Haltigan, reading clerk of the House, is archdiocesan president of the local branch. In opening his remarks Archbishop Curley, a native of Ireland, remarked about the fine voice that old Erin gives its sons.

The Catholic dignitary first urged the fullest support of the Community Chest. He announced that he had sent a letter to the pastors of the diocese, which will be read next Sunday, in which he declares that "we have given our pledge and I want that pledge kept. I want to be able to say that the Catholics of the District of Columbia did their bit and did more than their bit.

Significance of Retreats.

"We have heard knockers in some quarters. Pay no attention to them. You go out and be knocking at the doors and get funds for the Community Chest."

Archbishop Curley emphasized the significance of the inclosed retreat movement, the home of which in this section is Manresa House, on the Severn River.

"A retreat makes you think of your spiritual welfare," he continued. "To think is what we need today—to think of God. A retreat is your sanctification to obey God's law. It does not take you out of the world, but sends you back into the world stronger, more courageous and happy. It gives you a new perspective and resolve to serve your country, your God and your fellow man."

Thomas F. Woodlock, member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who took part in the organization of the retreat movement twenty years ago, told of the start of the movement. He congratulated the local branch for its progress and predicted further success in view of the solid support behind the movement of the archbishop and the pastors.

Another speaker was the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bisnop of the Archdiocese of Baltimore and pastor of St. Garbriel's Church here.

Among Other Speakers.

Other speakers were the Rev. Dr. James I. Maguire and Mr. Haltigan. Rossa F. Downing was toastmaster. Walter D. Beller was chairman of the banquet committee. The Rev. Dr. Eugene DeL. McDonnell, of Baltimore, was unable to attend because of illness.

The senators seated at the speakers' table, who were introduced and given ovations, were Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisiana, and Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona.

A musical program was rendered by the Bovello Orchestra. Songs were given by William R. Cross and Joseph B. Waters, jr.

Building Collapse Is Held Unavoidable

The collapse of a part of the flooring of an apartment house under construction at Connecticut avenue and Porter street, was just another one of those accidents, similar to several others in recent months, in which workmen were killed on construction jobs, and it doesn't appear as if any one was to blame.

That is the gist of a report on the accident made by A. T. Rogers, District inspector of concrete, and subscribed to by John J. Widmayer, special inspector in the pay of the builders of the apartment. The report was made to Col. John W. Oehmann, District building inspector, who made it public yesterday.

EMPLOYES' PAY RAISE OUT OF FUNDS' BILL

speech in which he sought to justify the appropriation bill as it was written. He defended the $9,000,000 lump-sum contribution of the Federal Government toward the District's expenses and declared that the local citizens are "undertaxed."

Representative Holaday, of Illinois, ranking Republican on the subcommittee, backed up Simmons and challenged the statements of the two Democrats—Casey and Griffin, of New York.

Afterwards the reading of the appropriation bill was started. The provision requiring that the expenditures of Recorder of Deeds Arthur G. Froe be approved by the District Commissioners was knocked out on a point of order by Representative Bachman (Republican), of West Virginia. It probably will go back in when the bill reaches the Senate.

At the outset of his speech, Representative Casey denounced the system that is followed in writing the appropriation bill. He said that neither he nor Griffin were consulted about the bill or the report until they had been written.

Not once since he has been a member of the subcommittee, Casey said, has he been permitted to discuss the matter of the lump sum Federal contribution.

"I am not in favor of the 60-40 plan," he said, "because I don't believe it is fair to the Federal Government. I don't say I am opposed to the lump sum proposition of $9,000,000. I do say that I don't know whether it is right or not.

"The investigation that I have made into this mater leads me to believe that the person who guesses at a lump sum or $9,000,000 may be correct, but that he is no more correct than the man who would guess at a lump sum of $15,000,000 or $5,000,000."

Replying to remarks about the $1.70 tax rate here being low, Casey reminded his colleagues that Congress and not local citizens were responsible for the tax rate.

Behind on School System.

"You are told that there are plenty of school facilities here," he said, "notwithstanding the fact that there are 6,000 children here who attend school on part time.

"That means that one child will go to school this morning and another child remain at home and that the child who remains at home in the morning will take the place of the other child in the afternoon."

He then pointed to the fact that from 3,000 to 4,000 children are forced to attend portable schools—"ill-ventilated, insanitary makeshifts that ought to be destroyed."

"The facts will show, he said, that Congress is $3,500,000 behind in appropriations for the current five-year building program for the schoool system.

"We have, and the testimony will show it," Casey shouted, "subdivisions of the District of Columbia with 35,000 or 40,000 people living in them in congested centers without a sewer or a water pipe and where the outside toilets, or privy closets, as they call them, are increasing year by year. There is no justification for a condition of that kind in the Capital City of the great United States."

Casey expressed the hope that there might be a better understanding between members of Congress, officials of the District and citizens of the District. The people here want to make improvements, he said, but Congress won't let them. He also expressed the opinion that Congress should not be bound by the recommendations of the Bureau of the Budget.

He said he thought the $1.70 tax rate was sufficient, and he pointed to the fact that there would soon be a $10,000,000 surplus to the city's credit.

"Why," he thundered, "should the people of the District of Columbia pay taxes to the extent that they can accumulate $10,000,000, while they have no sewers, while they have no water mains, while there are 3,500 children in these ill-lighted, ill-heated and insanitary portable buildings called schools; while there are 6,000 children in the District who are being deprived of their opportunity for an education because they are compelled to attend the schools only half time?

"Congress should look into this matter and answer the question.

"If it were not so serious I would be tempted to say it is a farce. But it is beyond that. It is a real tragedy, and unless it is corrected I apprehend that some day it will become a national scandal."

Report Really Convenient.

In his speech defending the bill, Chairman Simmons used the recent report of the Bureau of Efficiency to reinforce his stand. The day before Representative Griffin used the same report to shatter Simmons' contentions. That is the kind of report it is—one can prove almost anything by it. Simmons' conclusions, based on the report, were these:

"First, that the United States is not only fully meeting and paying every obligation that could possibly come to it were it a taxpayer, but in addition is contributing over and above all that a considerable and generous sum, and is more than meeting its obligations toward the Capital City.

"Second, that the city of Washington is not only not overtaxed, but, in fact, is undertaxed in comparison with other cities. That the low taxes here have not resulted in an undernourished city, but that, on the contrary, Washington when compared with other cities, is developing in all its city activities without undue curtailment of funds."

Here Simmons listed a number of Federal aids to the city which, he said, are often lost sight of, principally of the use of Federal buildings by the District Government and the loan to the city of the services of ten Army officers for administrative duty.

He also pointed out that the beauty of the Federal buildings and shrines bring thousands of visitors, and consequently millions of dollars, to the city every year.

'DOVER ROAD' OPENS TO PLEASED HOUSE

CONNELL VIBRANT IN LEAD

Before an enthusiastic audience in the McKinley Auditorium, Second and T streets northeast, the newly formed Community Drama Guild of Washington got under way last night with its first offering, "The Dover Road," by A. A. Milne.

Billed as an absurd comedy, "The Dover Road" is just that; but it gives the Drama Guild's cast an excellent chance to romp through the paces set down by Clifford Brooke, erstwhile director of the National Theater Players. The story has to do with the habitat of an old gentleman who lives on the Dover road and whose business in life is that of intercepting eloping couples about to cross the channel from England into France and the giving to them of advice.

Denis Connell, well-known Washington thespian, occupies the lead role in "The Dover Road," and plays his part remarkably well, a part that pivots the entire play. He is assisted by Arthur B. White, Harry Westcott, Jack Whelan, Wilma Hathaway Wright, Jane Lynn, Gerald Flood, Dorothea Lewis, Dorothy Crosby, Robert Miller, Leslie Waudby and Betty Ridsdale.

An interesting prologue to the Milne play was written by Frank Baer, local dramatic writer, and read with great feeling and sympathy by Maude Howell Smith, of the Arts Club and National Theater Players.

Excellent stage settings and lighting effects were arranged by Ethel T. Prince, Virginia Casper, James E. Lamb, Marguerite Paul and Harold Snyder. The play will be repeated tonight.

Maryland license tag, also was badly damaged. The owner had not put in an appearance at the stationhouse at an early hour this morning.

The charge of driving while drunk was preferred against Miss Culberson by officers of the Traffic Bureau. Miss Culberson was detained at the House of Detention on the technical charge of "investigation." Upon her release she said to a representative of The Post:

"Really there is no need to ask any questions. I don't even know what I was charged with."

When informed of the charges, Miss Culberson replied:

"Well, I guess they have me in the papers as being very drunk."

Inspector Brown, in ordering Miss Culberson's release, said he would take the responsibility of having her appear in Police Court this morning. She did not post bond.

In 1922 Miss Culberson and her parents were involved in a seven-day sensation growing out of charges made by Alexander E. Robertson, a British war veteran who had shown an interest in the daughter, that private detectives had kidnaped him and attempted to force him to leave the country at the instigation of the Senator.

The charge was made against John F. Ellis, a private detective, in a warrant sworn to by Robertson, and resulted in an official investigation by the British Embassy.

Culberson also had the charges investigated, designating that task to Chesley W. Jurney, who at that time was his secretary. The senator refused to dignify the charges with a statement of denial, but Jurney, speaking for him, said they were "silly, ridiculous and untrue."

A week after the charge was made public by the newspapers, Miss Culberson sailed for an extended European tour. A day or so prior to her sailing the senator issued a statement in which he said, "So far as the Culberson family is concerned, the affair is ended. A mountain has been made of a molehill."

In a tirade against the police he threatened to bring the matter to the attention of his friends in Congress.

Despite the protests, Mme. Coquelet was taken to the House of Detention, where she was held until 10:45 o'clock last night, when she was released on $4,000 bond for her appearance in court this morning.

Fate of Lamont Street Hangs in the Balance!

The District Commissioners yesterday voted to petition the District Supreme Court to rehear the case involving assessments collected from property owners for the opening and paving of Lamont street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets northwest.

The Commissioners recently were ordered by the court to return $200 collected from one property owner who quoted to the court a statement made by Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, that the District did not intend to open and pave the street. Donovan said he got his information incorrectly from Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the engineer department, who is supposed to have consulted the wrong highway plans.

Donovan was all wrong, the Commissioners decided to tell the court, and they do intend to open and grade and pave the street and therefore should not have to return the assessments which have been collected, and they plan to ask the court to give them a rehearing in the matter so they can keep the $200 they have been ordered to return and not have to meet similar prospective demands from other property owners along the street.

Moore, of New Jersey, Lagging on Recount

Newark, N. J., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The Essex County Board of Elections today decided to call upon district boards to explain errors in the counting of votes of the Eighth Congressional District.

Officials figured Representative Paul J. Moore, Democrat, to have won the election by 549 votes, but as the result of a recount of the district, Fred A. Hartley, jr., Republican today was leading by 399. The recount has been finished in Hudson County and was expected to end in Essex tomorrow.

Texas Coed Bandit Granted New Trial

Becky Rogers, Given 14 Years as Bank Robber, Wins Battle for Appeal.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Becky Rogers, former University of Texas coed, who robbed the Farmers' National Bank of Buda, Tex., "for a thrill" and was subsequently sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment was granted a new trial today by the court of criminal appeals.

Mrs. Rogers has been at liberty on bond while her appeal was being considered.

At her trial two bank officers identified Mrs. Rogers as the woman who held them up with a pistol and locked them in the bank vault while she escaped with $1,000. Mrs. Rogers said she thought the pistol was unloaded.

The money later was recovered in the Austin postoffice, where she had mailed it to herself.

Dementia praecox was the defense offered, when Mrs. Rogers was tried a year ago.

"I light a Lucky and go light on the sweets

Al Jolson
Al Jolson, Famous comedian and star of song.

Something sensible. "Better to light a Lucky whenever you crave fattening sweets." It brings to men the health and vigor that come with avoiding overweight. To women it offers a slender, fashionable figure.

20,679 physicians have stated that Lucky Strike is less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes. Very likely this is due to toasting which removes impurities. This same process, toasting, improves and develops the flavor of the world's finest tobaccos. This means that there is a flavor in Luckies which is a delightful alternative for the things that make you fat. That's why "It's Toasted" is your assurance that there's real health in Luckies—they're good for you!

Keep fit—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. That's what many men have been doing for years. They know the evidence of prominent athletes whose favorite cigarette is Lucky Strike and who say Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition.

Al Jolson as he appears in Warner Bros. Vitaphone success, "The Singing Fool."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

SENATE AT ITS WORST.

By a combination of drys who pose as special champions of the prohibition law and wets who are anxious to put the enforcement bureau "in a hole," a Senate majority was mustered to pass the amendment thrusting $24,000,000 upon the administration for the ostensible purpose of enforcing prohibition. Neither wing of this majority acted with sincerity, and neither of them fools the public.

The House of Representatives has become the steadying power of Congress since the degeneracy of the Senate into a hotbed of cheap politics. The House has already saved Congress as a whole from making a fool of itself over prohibition, and it now has the opportunity to correct the Senate's action. The public is well aware of the fact that Secretary Mellon has stated that this money is not needed, and that the placing of this enormous sum in the hands of any executive, to be expended at his discretion, is not good legislation. By making President-elect Hoover responsible for the expenditure of the money the Senate has not mended matters or made a foolish action wise.

If the House should make the mistake of accepting this Senate amendment, the deficiency bill would then be laid before President Coolidge. What a splendid chance for a veto! This proposed appropriation is not only vicious in itself, but is a drain upon the Treasury and is pure extravagance. Mr. Coolidge would be delighted to put a stop to such nonsense, for economy's sake as well as to avoid participation in making such a law.

The items in the deficiency bill are numerous, and some of them are urgent, but the bill could go over to the extra session without serious injury. The Senate can not pass the $24,000,000 item over the President's veto. It is safe to predict that when the deficiency bill becomes law it will not contain the fraudulent and wasteful item inserted by the Senate. The net result of the Senate maneuver, therefore, is merely to impair public respect for the Senate itself.

FRAUDS IN BANKRUPTCY.

Last week the Federal courts of New York inaugurated a plan for eliminating fraud in the administration of bankrupt business by limiting receivership appointments to reliable trust companies. Taking up bankruptcy abuses from the other end, Federal Judge Clark, of Newark, now proposes a scheme to check the activities of those persons who use bankruptcy as a regular business to defraud creditors. Both the plan to protect bankrupt concerns and the plan to prevent crooks from evading debts through bankruptcy are commendable, and should find their way into the policy of Federal courts throughout the country.

Under present practice a discharge is bankruptcy is usually granted upon recommendation of a referee, without further investigation on the part of the judge. This is because Federal judges are burdened with more work than they can take care of. As a result a great many abuses have crept in. The seriousness of the situation is indicated by the fact that in 1928 the loss through bankruptcy was $487,000,000.

The plan to be followed by Judge Clark is briefly as follows: Applicants who apply for discharge of their debts will be sworn and questioned by the judge. Every detail of their business life will be brought into the testimony. The judge will find out if they have been involved in bankruptcy before, what their business experience was, what capital they had, how often they took inventories, and other intimate details. In this he will be assisted by an expert accountant called especially to sit with the judge in each case. Then the applicant's books and records will be examined. Since some business firms have two sets of ledgers, one for their own use and one for the benefit of income tax officials and referees in bankruptcy, both will be examined by the public accountant. If the investigation shows discrepancies between the testimony and the records the judge will refuse a discharge of debts and charge the applicant with perjury as well.

In England an applicant for discharge through bankruptcy must show that he is free from negligence. In France if there is any evidence of fraud in the proceedings the applicant finds himself in jail. In the United States debts incurred with intention of taking advantage of the bankruptcy law are often discharged, and false statements seldom lead to charges of perjury.

The plan of the Newark judge will result in a decided reduction in the bankruptcy proceedings filed in his court. One authority estimated that this reduction will reach as high as 90 per cent. But other jurists of the country can not be depended upon to adopt the plan. It would be timely for Congress to take cognizance of the situation and add some teeth to the bankruptcy law.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHPLACE.

Although the Washington Bicentennial Commission has had several meetings, it has not evolved a program for the appropriate celebration of the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. It is to meet today, to consider the choice of routes for the highway to be constructed from Washington to Mount Vernon. Presumably it will favor the route skirting the shores of the Potomac, which would be one of the noblest highways in the world, both for beauty of landscape and for historic interest.

When the United States undertakes to commemorate the birth of George Washington in 1932 it should have restored his birthplace at Wakefield and made it, along with Mount Vernon, a hallowed shrine, to be visited by every American citizen.

At present Wakefield is a wilderness. The birthplace of Washington has been utterly neglected by the Nation. The Wakefield Memorial Association has been authorized by Congress to reconstruct the Washington home, and some progress has been made in perfecting building plans, but the Government itself should see that the project is pushed through by 1932. Roads and a wharf should be built, the river landing should be dredged, and suitable accommodations for the public should be provided nearby. Many relics of the Washington family have been accumulated by patriotic individuals and societies, which will ultimately be lodged at Wakefield.

No time is to be lost if Washington's birthplace is to be restored in time for the bicentennial. Failure to accomplish this task would make a mockery of any national celebration. If the Nation is so neglectful that it leaves Washington's birthplace in weeds and desolation, what virtue or sincerity would there be in a pompous series of celebrations?

The initiative in restoring Wakefield should come from the Washington Bicentennial Commission. Its program will not meet with any public enthusiasm if it does not include plans for conserving the birthplace of Washington.

CHILE'S FINE EXAMPLE.

In January a year ago Senor Don Carlos G. Davila, Ambassador of Chile, delivered an address before the committee on cooperation in Latin America entitled "Inter-American Understanding." He spoke of the ever growing trade between the United States and South America, and of the efforts being made toward better mutual understanding by the Pan-American Union, the Rockefeller Foundation and the agencies that support American schools in South America. But, he said, there remains the great task of creating between South America and the United States bonds of friendship that will unite above the political idea of governments and beyond the chains formed by economic interests. "The interpenetration of cultures," he said, "the creation of a loyal friendship and confidence, the better understanding of character and psychology—in a word, the spiritual union between the United States and the Latin peoples of America is yet to be accomplished."

For years South America looked to Europe for cultural stimulus and example. In Chile the natural cultural ties seemed to be with France. Students in the secondary schools, which occupy a position in the Chilean educational system somewhat similar to American high schools and junior colleges, were permitted to choose between studying German or English, in addition to which they were obliged to study French. Ten years ago, however, the system underwent a change, and pupils in the secondary schools were obliged thenceforward to choose two languages of the three.

A week or so ago the system again was changed. English now is made a compulsory study and secondary school students are obliged to choose an additional language between French and German. The new idea indicates that Chile is desirous of promoting closer cultural relations with the United States. It is a significant development. In his speech Dr. Davila said:

> We have seen how an adverse public sentiment can finally undermine the firmest consolidation of international economic interests. It erupts when one least expects, and what then is believed the result of a momentary agitation may be in reality the result of an inveterate negligence, of a culpable neglect to build along with the bonds of interest, the bonds of sympathy, of comprehension, of confidence and of affection. Behind the pioneers of diplomacy and business there must go the molders of public sentiment, who may be called visionaries of the spirit, but who bring the indispensable keystone to the arch of rapprochement between peoples.

Chile, by making the study of English an integral part of its educational system, has taken a most important step in promoting understanding with the United States. It would be well if every State in this Union should make the study of the Spanish language a requisite in all public schools.

FINANCING THE AIRPORT.

The Capper-Zihlman bill authorizing an appropriation of $1,500,000 for the construction of a municipal airport at Gravelly Point provides for a 50-50 division of the cost between the local and Federal Governments. The Bureau of the Budget, however, expressed disapproval of the plan and Senator Vandenburg, of Michigan, chairman of the airport subcommittee of the Senate District committee, has addressed a letter to the Commissioners asking them if the District would still want a municipal airport if it had to shoulder the entire cost of its development.

The comprehensive development of a greater Washington demands the construction without undue delay of a municipal airport. Everywhere new airways are being opened and new commercial air transport systems are being inaugurated. There can be no doubt that a considerable portion of the Nation's express traffic, passenger and parcel is destined to be carried through the air and the municipality that fails to provide adequate facilities for handling air traffic will be put to a commercial disadvantage.

Why should the Government be permitted to sidestep its equitable financial responsibility in the development of the local municipal airport? Washington has not tried to evade its share of the cost. The flying field, of course, will be of inestimable advantage to the city, but it will be of still greater advantage to the Government. It will be marked prominently upon the defense maps of the Nation. It will be utilized fully by all the departments of the Government.

NEWSPAPER SALES BOXES.

Judge Kathryn Sellers, in pronouncing sentence recently upon two lads convicted of stealing money from newspaper "honor system" sales boxes, took occasion to condemn the self-service sales system built up by Washington newspapers. The boxes, she said, were placed on street corners as a convenience to the public, "but the great many thefts from them during the past year clearly indicate that they offer a temptation to youth, which more than offsets their desirability."

It is difficult to take issue with Judge Sellers' assertion. The boxes serve public convenience, but if Washington newspapers were to abandon the self-service sales system a distribution system thoroughly satisfactory to the public could be built up through newsdealers, home deliveries and corner sales boys. Experience has shown that customers of the sales boxes are sometimes subjected to the charge of stealing, when they were merely paying for the papers at odd times, and not always taking the trouble to make change in pennies.

Obviously, because of the competition that exists in the local newspaper field, no one paper can take the initiative in a move to abandon the self-service sales system without placing itself at a disadvantage. If the newspapers of Washington as a unit are willing to abandon the self-service boxes, The Post would welcome the change.

Of course prohibition encourages thrift. At present prices, people must save for a wet day.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"BOTH MEMBERS OF THIS CLUB."

"Have you got your tickets for the big fight?" asked Senator Dumm, tossing aside his newspaper.

"What big fight," asked Representative Dummer.

"Young Rockefeller versus Hard-boiled K. O. Stewart," replied the senator, "both members of this oil club. It ought to be the best battle of the year, bar none."

"When, where and why?" asked Dummer.

"March 7 is the date," explained the senator. "The place is uncertain. A lot of big cities are bidding for it. It's the first time anybody has been able to get two big boys like that into the ring together for a knockdown and drag-out fight. In the language of the sports world, it's a natural."

"What's the purse?" asked Dummer.

"Standard Oil of Indiana, winner take all," replied Senator Dumm. "There's a dispute about the rules, I understand. Young Rockefeller wants the fight held under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, barring the rabbit-punch, the back-hand and the use of the elbows. K. O. Stewart is for the old London prize-ring code, allowing butting, gouging and the right to jump on an opponent's feet with spiked shoes."

"How are you betting?" asked Dummer.

"I can't make up my mind. Stewart has the stamina, the aggressiveness and the punch. He has a long record of knockouts. This Rockefeller boy, though, has height, reach and intelligence. The trouble with him is that he is fresh from the amateur ranks. This will be his first professional fight. He has a good straight left, known as the proxy punch, and a lightning fast right. But he lacks ring experience."

"You think Stewart is the best bet?" suggested Dummer.

"On paper, yes; but I look for a surprise. This is an era of upsets. My confidential man informs me that Stewart is a hollow shell. There is a story that his last fight with Kayo Kongress softened him up, although he got the decision in a close battle."

"Have you any line on the fighters' condition?"

"Rockefeller is in the pink. I'm not sure about Stewart, although he looks good on the outside. I saw him at Chicago the other day. He was jumping rope and shadow boxing in preparation for the fight, and it seemed to me he was muscle-bound and slow."

"Haven't they issued any statements?"

"The Rockefeller camp announced yesterday that their boy was in the best shape of his career and would be at his peak March 7. Col. Stewart gave out a statement to the newspaper boys stating that he never felt better in his life and would win in the first three rounds."

"You really think it will be worth going to?" asked Dummer.

"It'll be the old battle between the East and the West," concluded Senator Dumm, "and I wouldn't miss it for anything."

SOUSED BUT SOBER.

Senator Bruce (Democrat), of Maryland, told the Senate yesterday that in the six years he has been in Washington he has seen at least 10,000 persons in his social set drink wine or cocktails and not one of these 10,000, the wet Marylander said, appeared to be intoxicated.—Post, January 23.

Oh, give us back the days, alack,
Whose drinks were mild though heady,
The days when we a jag could pack
With footsteps not unsteady.

Those days were wet, but all our set
Absorbed their liquor dryly;
If mildly stewed we wished to get,
Cocktails were favored highly.

We would get by with corn and rye
In jorum after jorum,
And other drinks for which we sigh,
With absolute decorum.

Those days were great, believe me, mate—
Than these those days were greater—
When well tanked-up we'd still walk straight,
Or sometimes even straighter.

Punishment.

The plan of the Pennsylvania to coordinate rail and bus has been long expected By acquiring buses to operate between large cities the railways can suspend certain train runs. Schedules have been already cut on railways entering New York from the South. The express services between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington will survive, because they combine speed with comfort. But at a cheaper rate a bus line can supplant the railway on short runs. The Pullman car patron naturally prefers the railway, but many trains are being operated today with their Pullmans half empty. The railway company in all parts of the country is being forced into bus operation.

Subsidiary railway lines have in many cases cut their schedules. A recent example is the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad Co Early this year it will open a bus service between Richmond and Washington. It is now accommodating commuters with buses that pass near their doors. "The R., F. & P.," it is said, "has devoted intensive study to passenger bus service for months." Buses serving thickly settled neighborhoods make mohey. A new line was recently planned to connect New York with Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Utica and Syracuse.

Fake Lincoln Letters.

New York Herald Tribune: Lincoln is still the man of mystery; the editor of the Atlantic Monthly now admits that the "passionate and real" love letters supposed to have passed between Abraham Lincoln and Ann Rutledge, as well as the other Lincoln material published in the last three issues of his magazine, "lack the authenticity" which he had ascribed to them. And it must be admitted that his admission makes agreement almost unanimous, for handwriting experts, general historians and Lincoln specialists had stated abundantly their conviction that the documents gave prima facie evidence of falsification.

Thieves Will Multiply When the Law Exempts the Receiver of Stolen Goods.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MR. DURANT'S offer of $25,000 for a plan to make the "dry law" effective served to enrich a former dry agent and accomplished nothing more.

It failed, as all such prize offers fail, because contestants were shrewd enough to forget the purpose of the contest and devote themselves to the business of impressing the judges.

As a critic and composer of music recently won an international contest by copying the works of the masters, so the winner of the present contest snared the judges by offering a plan already in use.

It is not a mere plan, but an entire campaign—technical, comprehensive—obviously the work of an expert.

Its one fault lies in the fact that it doesn't work.

The judges, asked to select the best plan to make the dry law effective, picked one that has failed to make it effective.

So much for the worth of contests and the gullibility of judges.

There is a way to make the dry law effective—a simple way, a legal way, an unfailing way. It is known to all officials.

And the only reason it isn't used is because officials know it would make the dry law effective and offend the millions who talk dry and act wet.

Here, in brief, is the plan and the logic of it.

The purpose of the prohibition law is not, primarily, to stop the importation, manufacture or transportation of alcoholic beverages, but to stop consumption.

The spirit and purpose of the law are not completely violated until the alcohol is consumed. Manufacturers and dealers are but accessories before the fact of final violation.

In short, one man alone can not violate the purpose of the law unless he manufactures the beverage he drinks.

A completed violation of the spirit and purpose of the law requires conspiracy—one man to manufacture or import, one to transport, and one to consume. Then, and then only, is the purpose of the law completely violated.

It is obvious, then, that the drinker, being a party to the conspiracy and the inspiration of it, is equally guilty with the manufacturer.

In law and in common sense, all conspirators are equally guilty and deserve equal punishment.

When officials desire to enforce prohibition, and visit equal punishment on all parties to a conspiracy against it, the law will be effective—but never until then.

A man will risk jail to make a great profit. A "respectable citizen" will not risk jail to get a drink.

There is your plan, Mr. Durant. But it wouldn't impress judges. It is too simple and effective.

NICARAGUA CANAL.

If the proposed Nicaragua Canal were begun by the United States today, it is not unlikely that before it was finished the Panama route would be overcrowded and turning away shipping, says Willis Fletcher Johnson in the North American Review, commenting on the rapidly increasing traffic via Panama.

But there are three other reasons beside this need for increased facilities why we should build the new canal. One is the diplomatic benefits to the three countries directly concerned—Nicaragua, Costa Rica and the United States. Another is the inestimable value of an alternative route in case of a blockade at Panama. The third is the superiority of the Nicaraguan route for traffic with the north Pacific, comparable with that of Panama for the south Pacific. Another generation will doubtless see such a division of commerce between two canals, both operated to their full capacity.

THE FIRST MARATHON.

Modern Marathon races, such as the recent courageous attempt of long-distance swimmers to conquer the cold waters of Lake Ontario, and similar distance contests in running, skating, and so on, bring to mind the great antiquity of the name Marathon.

The first Marathon run, strictly speaking, took place in Greece in the year 490 B. C., and was such a remarkable example of endurance that the name today is a fitting appellation for similar tests of physical strength. That run was some 24 centuries ago. The Marathon race in the Olympic games was so named to commemorate, according to Webster's Dictionary, "the reputed feat of the Greek who ran from Marathon to Athens bearing the news of the victory."

The battle of Marathon ended in the decisive defeat of the invading Persian armies by the Athenians, under the generalship of the famous commander, Miltiades. A runner—Pheidippides by name—was immediately dispatched after the battle to Athens, some 24 miles distant; he arrived in the city, shouted the great news of the victory, and fell dead.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Endless Talk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is a great difference in the ways our Congresses move from how they moved in the early days of our fathers. The First Congress had the whole system of Government to put in operation, a system of revenue to formulate, a judicial system to be put in operation, the whole foreign service to organize, the various executive departments to be provided for, with their powers and duties defined, an Army and Navy to be organized, all salaries to fix, an Indian policy adopted and multifarious other things to do toward starting a new Government to work, yet they did all those things, and did them well, in a session lasting a little more than six months.

The present session opened with but few matters necessary to pass upon. Outside of the regular appropriations, some measure of farm relief, the increase of the Navy and the Kellogg peace pact were the only pressing things. When it adjourns it will have been in session about half as long as was the First Congress, and will accomplish little or nothing. The appropriation bills will be passed, the Kellogg pact has been ratified, nothing toward farm relief will be done. There has been endless talk, but the talk has been of no value to the country.

L. C. HOLLOWAY.

The Rum Smuggling Case of the Ile de France.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In its futile attempt at enforcing prohibition, the present administration has been confronted by the two horns of a most disagreeable dilemma.

In view of the fact that the Supreme Court found that acts "legalized" by the prohibition rum-pact treaties were in nullification of the eighteenth amendment of the Constitution, the administration was forced to choose between violating the treaties and nullifying the eighteenth amendment.

It chose the latter horn of the dilemma, with the consequence that Dr. Doran and Mrs. Willebrandt, as superior prohibition enforcement officers, were required to nullify the eighteenth amendment in enforcing the prohibition treaty laws.

Gallantly, continuously and daily have they nullified the prohibition amendment for lo! these many, many months.

These officers could enforce the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law only by requiring the seizure and confiscation of every ship, domestic and foreign, bringing alcoholic beverages into jurisdictional waters of the United States.

This seizure and confiscation they could not make, so long as the liquors were sealed, without violating the prohibition treaty laws.

The Ile de France case adds a third kind of nullification of the prohibition laws, of which Mrs. Willebrandt and Dr. Doran are guilty.

In this case, the ship was directly detected in importing unsealed alcoholic beverages into the United States.

Innocence of the rum-smuggling by the responsible officers of the ship does not in any way clear the ship.

In this case Mrs. Willebrandt and Dr. Doran can find no excuse for not doing their duty and enforcing the eighteenth amendment, under the plea that as officers of the administration they must nullify the amendment in enforcing the treaty, because in this case, the ship violated the treaty and could no longer take cover under the treaty when, as usual, violating the Volstead law and nullifying the eighteenth amendment.

They fail to enforce the prohibition treaty law in this case, just as gayly as for years, they have nullified the eighteenth amendment and violated the Volstead law.

'RHEINGOLD' IS SUNG BY GERMAN ARTISTS

Mrs. Coolidge Among Audience Which Enjoys Famous Wagner Opera.

DR. RABL WIELDS BATON

A fashionable audience, which included Mrs. Coolidge and many representatives of the official and diplomatic circles, waited 1 hour and 35 minutes beyond the scheduled time for the curtain to go up on the presentation of "Das Rheingold" by the German Grand Opera Company, now on tour in this country, at Poli's Theater yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Coolidge did not share all the vigil of the patient audience because word was sent to her at the White House when the delay was imminent. She did not appear in the presidential box until 3:15 p. m., just an hour after the opera was supposed to have begun. The cause of the delay was the late arrival of scenery from New York.

For the first few minutes the opera company showed the effects of the anxiety and strain it had been undergoing during the wait. The singers rallied from this, however, and on the whole a creditable performance of Wagner's great opera was given.

Dr. Rabl an Able Conductor.

The orchestral part of the opera was a considerable one, and under Dr. Rabl's gentle but dynamic baton an even support was given to the singers and the particular orchestral features of the score received an adequate and beautiful interpretation. In the first scene the orchestra played with extraordinary effect the prelude beginning on a single note growing into a chord of E-flat, which persisted for 136 bars without monotony.

Outstanding among the singers, both for mellow tones, artistic phrasing and for histrionic ability of a high order, was Carl Joern, who played Loge, the god of flame, crafty and cunning. Richard Gross, as Wotan, sustained his role admirably. His voice was a round, full barytone, very expressive in quality, and his impeccable diction and sound musicianship were apparent. Alberich was well done by Werner Klus, who gave a faithful interpretation of that role.

Bennett Challis Delights All.

Bennett Challis, as Fasolt, one of the giants, delighted all with the ringing quality of his bass tones. His fellow giant, Fafner, played by Albert Marwick, also had a fine voice, and they contributed much to the success of the afternoon.

Special mention should be given also to the work of Franz Egenieff and Karl Premmac as Donner and Froh, respectively.

Vocally, Sonia Sharnova, as Freia, was somewhat of a disappointment, but she was realistic in the part and had an appealing personality. The best woman's voice heard was that of Dorothy Githens as Fricka, wife of Wotan. Erda was well sung and played by Ottillie Metger-Lettermann, and the three Rhein maidens, Edna Zahm, Hildegarde Bartz and Arabelle Merrifield, were typical of the usual German woman opera singers, opulent of form and voice. Their trio in the first act was excellently done.

Celebrity Breakfast To Be Well Attended.

Because of the demand for seats at the Celebrity Breakfast of the National League of American Pen Women, which is to take place at the Willard Hotel tomorrow at 12 o'clock and which is open to the public, tables will be laid in the ballroom instead of in the Willard Room as originally planned, thus giving ample opportunity to all those who wish to meet the "Celebrities" who are to be present.

Mrs. Clarence M. Busch, national president of the League, will arrive today from her home in Miami, Fla., and will preside at the breakfast. With her at the speakers' table will be the guests of honor of the occasion, Mrs. Kathleen Norris, Mr. Paul Kester, Mr. Thomas Lomax Hunter, Miss Elizabeth Lippincott Dean, Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver, and Mr. George Horton; also Mrs. Grace Stair, guest of Mrs. Busch; Mrs. Swalm Reed, chairman of the breakfasts; Mrs. Wolff Smith, who will introduce Miss Dean; Dr. Mary Meek Atkeson, first vice president; Mrs. Thomas Lomax Hunter and Mrs. Charles Conway Hartigan, sister of Mrs. Norris.

D. E. N. Southworth, are Mrs. Louis Ludlow, wife of Representative-elect Ludlow, of Indiana; who will have with her as her guest Mrs. Harry C. Canfield, wife of Representative Canfield, of Indiana; Mrs. Edna M. Colman, past national president of the league, who will entertain several guests; Mrs. Gertrude M. Holcombe, Mrs. Lillian H. Weir, Miss Mattie Bennett, Miss Sarah Cushing and Mrs. J. Irvin Steele.

At the Bal Boheme, to take place next Monday night at the Willard, the floor committee, known as "the army," will be led by Mr. Roy L. Neuhauser. This season, appearing as the king's foot soldiers, this group will include members of the Arts Club, well known in social, professional and art circles in the National Capital.

The floor committee comprises Mr. Warren N. Akers, Mr. Harold Allen, Mr. C. M. Ashton, Mr. Louis W. Austin, Dr. Paul Bartsch, Mr. Paul V. Collins, Mr William I. Deming, Mr. Fred W. Dewart, Mr. Edward Devereaux, Mr. Charles A. R. Dunn, Mr. Edwin H. Etz, Mr. Joseph Fairbanks, Mr. William Eaches Fendall, Col. F. S. Foltz, Dr. George H. Girty, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mr. John W. Holcombe, Mr. Frank T. Howard, Mr. Franklin D. Jones, Mr. Fulton Lewis, Mr. Roland Lyon, Mr. Lynch Luquer, Judge Charles C. McChord, Mr. Asa E. Phillips, Mr. Cabot Stevens, Commander Frederick W. Southworth, Mr. Charles E. Stratton, Mr. William F. Summy, Mr. William A. Sweet, and Mr. Dore Walten.

The Bal Boheme will open promptly at 10 o'clock, and at 10:30 the entrance of the army will take place, followed at 11 o'clock by the "big stunt," "The Carnival of the Caliph," the grand procession at 11:30, and by supper from 12 to 2. General dancing in both ball rooms will be continuous, except for these brief events until 3 o'clock. Various "divertissements" throughout the evening and early morning hours will be "spontaneously" staged by artists at the ball, around the ballroom, in front of the boxes, which will represent booths, and Egyptian houses along the "Street of Cairo." At the city gates there will be staged a highly original and alluring oriental stunt, directed by L. M. Leisenring, who has had charge of the stunts for nearly every Arts Club Bal Boheme since its origin.

Journalist Is Guest At Playhouse Inn.

Mr. James Miller, journalist and short story writer, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the weekly dinner of the Art Promoters Club tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock, in the Playhouse Inn, 1814 N street northwest. Susanne Oldberg, Mrs. Eunice Tyree Ryan, Mrs. Mabel Nickerson, Mrs. Virginia Ambler, Miss Addie Deering, Miss Eva Monroe, and Miss Lula Richardson. At 8 p. m. Mrs. Henry F. Dimock is chairman of the Red, White and Blue ball which is to be given Mardi Gras night, February 12, at the Willard Hotel, and for which plans are now being made. This ball is for the benefit of the George Washington Memorial which is now awaiting completion in this city, the foundation having been already laid. The patriotic note is to be stressed in decorations and in the pageantry features, which will be different from any presented in Washington this season, and an atmosphere of holiday gayety and merriment will be the order of the evening.

There will be no patronesses for the ball, Mrs. Dimock inviting instead a large group of women to serve with her on the ball committee. Among those who have accepted are Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, wife of Maj. Gen. Summerall, chief of staff of the U. S. Army; Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro, wife of the Commissioner of the District; Mrs. Frederick McCormick-Goodhart, Mrs. Hennen Jennings and Mrs. Stokes Balkett.

"MUSICAL MORNING" BALANCED, ARTFUL

Misses Myra Hess and Yelly d'Aranyi Excel in Well-Selected Programs.

HARRISON, BAUER NEXT

Miss Myra Hess, pianist, and Miss Yelly d'Aranyi, violinist, were joint artists of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's Thirty-fourth Musical Morning at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

Their program was well selected and in the Sonata in A Major by Cesar Franck which they played together the unity of attack, artistry of interpretation and beautiful blend of their several instruments were charming in the three movements of the sonata. This same achievement was noted in their other joint number, Brahms' "Sonata in A Major," which was equally well liked by the audience.

Miss d'Aranyi displayed admirable mastery of technic, a warm, rich tone and an attractive style. Her command of the bow, trills, harmonics and double stopping were much commented upon by musicians present. Her personality is portrayed in her vivid playing and she puts into it all the ardor of her Hungarian ancestry.

Miss Hess, on the other hand, excelled both as a solo pianist and as the supporting artist of Miss d'Aranyi in their joint numbers. With real art she kept the individualities of the instruments separate so that the beauties of each medium were not lost. Her tone is sweet, compelling and of a firm roundness, and her technic is acknowledged by all to be most unusual. In her solo group she gave a variety of selections which showed off her many-sided genius with the piano while Bach's "Adagio from Organ Toccata C Major" was given with a masterly sweep of tone and interpretation. The audience also liked Miss d'Aranyi's two solo numbers, Hubay's "Scene de la Csarda" and "La Vide Breve" by DePalla—Kreisler.

The artists at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's Thirty-fifth Musical Morning next Wednesday will be Miss Beatrice Harrison violoncellist and Harold Bauer, pianist.

Medal for Virginia Girl.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—A Virginia school girl, Miss Mary B. Lankford, 16, of Norfolk, has been awarded a bronze medal by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission for bravery in rescuing a boy and a girl from drowning, it was announced today by officials of the commission.

Miss Lankford is cited for the rescue of Nancy B. Starke, 10, and B. Thomas Grant, 15, after the two had been carried some distance from shore while bathing at Virginia Beach, August 3, 1926, it is related in the announcement. Nancy Stark was being supported in the water by Miss Lankford's father when the two were carried by a current to a point 175 feet from the shore, where Lankford collapsed. The boy, Grant, was also carried out by the current.

Her Father Is Drowned.

Miss Lankford, who was in water of wadable depth, swam 100 feet through rough water to Nancy and aided her momentarily. She then swam 50 feet with her father, but lost her hold of him in the rough water. He went under and was drowned.

Although tired and unnerved, Miss Lankford swam 75 feet to Nancy and 50 feet with her toward shore. Giving Nancy to another swimmer, Miss Lankford swam twenty feet to Grant, who was swimming with difficulty, and swam with him 15 feet to wadable water.

What the Elementary Schools of Washington Are Doing Educationally

IV. ART.

Aims and Purposes.

The aim of art education in the elementary schools is to develop in all children the ability to recognize and appreciate art quality wherever found and to desire it in their personal possessions, their homes, and the community; to develop the power to judge art quality in the selection of the necessary things of everyday life; to develop the ability to express ideas creatively through the application of art principles.

Methods of Instruction.

The art program is developed through a stimulation of self-expression in illustration and design with the use of clay, wood, paint, paper, textiles and other materials. The child thinks and reasons through his plan and execution in so far as his past experiences and creative power will permit. As the need and desire for help arise, guidance in the use of tools and materials and the principles of design is given. Appreciations, knowledge, habits and skills in the application of art principles are gained through the child's creative effort and the development of the power to recognize art quality in his own and the work of others.

Time.

The work of the art course is interrelated with other subjects. For example:

A. A geography lesson may also be an art lesson in the application of the knowledge of art principles to map making, coloring and mounting.

B. History, literature and other subjects contribute to art education if the pictures and other visual aids used to make descriptions clearer are works of art and their art values noted. Thus art may receive a wide range of attention, but the minimum time allotted is:

Grades 1 and 2—120 minutes per week.

Grades 3, 4 and 5—90 minutes per week.

Grades 6, 7 and 8—80 minutes per week.

Results.

The results of our teaching are checked through the growth in the application of art principles to concrete problems worked out in the school room and by objective tests covering the units of subject matter in the curriculum.

Estranged Wife Strangely Slain

Crushed Skull Proves Fatal to Ohio Woman; No Clews Found.

Cincinnati, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ivy Pearl Denman, 39, of California, near here, who separated from her 83-year-old husband, four years ago, died in a hospital today several hours after she was found beaten and unconscious in her home.

Mystery surrounds her death. Police said Mrs. Denman was slain. A possibility existed, officers said, that two large dogs the woman kept as bodyguards might have attacked her. Police arrested a middle-aged man in connection with the case, and held him without charge for investigation.

Mrs. Denman's death was directly due to fractured skull. The woman's body bore bruises made with a blunt instrument.

2 ROBBERY STORIES TOLD BY DYING MAN

DEATH TOTAL IS NOW 19

Bellevue, Ohio, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Official and private investigtaors will confer here tomorrow to set a date for an inquest into the collision of an interurban car and a bus which tonight had left a toll of 19 deaths and 15 persons injured.

A series of investigations began today with preliminary statements as an examination of the scene of the crash but they were temporarily halted because many of the passengers whose testimony is wanted were physically unable to tell their stories.

Five of the 19 dead remained unidentified.

The death toll mounted to 19 today with the deaths of Teddy Obrowski of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Richard Freeman, of Cleveland.

Having a premonition of death Obrowski, according to Chief of Police Charles North, confessed to a nurse that he had participated in bank robberies in Detroit and San Francisco. He said that two of his companions were shot and killed in the Detroit robbery, in which he and the other man escaped with $46,000 which they hid somewhere in Connecticut. The San Francisco robbery, he said, occurred in 1920. He gave no other details.

Policeman Helped By Shooting Alibi

Taylor at Her Home When McBreen Was Wounded, Woman Tells Court.

Prosecution of a charge of attempted murder against Edward M. Taylor, suspended policeman, was completed before Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in criminal division of the District Supreme Court yesterday. The defense immediately began efforts to batter down the wall of circumstantial evidence erected against it.

Through Mrs. Florence Hayes, who resides in the vicinity of Fifteenth and H streets northeast, an alibi for Taylor's whereabouts at the time William S McBreen was shot in a gasoline filling station at 2637 Benning road northeast on August 30, 1927, was established.

Mrs. Hayes said Taylor, his wife and sister came to her home for a visit about 7 o'clock in the evening. The policeman left shortly afterward and returned promptly at 8:30 with his sister's suitor. They left her home shortly after 10 o'clock, Mrs. Hayes said, and she learned of McBreen's shooting a few moments later when she went to a nearby store to purchase some ice cream.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonsful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

Why Girls Stay Home!

Item No. 2—Genuine welcome. Mother can be depended on for that.

Item No. 3—Plenty of cheery heat. You can bank on your furnace for that, if you feed it properly with good hard coal.

There's no fuel quite so good as Anthracite. Dependable, long-burning, clean, economical, safe hard coal.

And it's the simplest trick in the world to make it give you its very best. Just a matter of feeding it right. Fixing the drafts right. And then leaving it alone until the next time.

The right way of taking care of your furnace is also the easiest way. Ask your Anthracite coal dealer to show you.

Anthracite [HARD COAL] —the unfailing fuel

The undersigned companies pledge themselves to ship only Anthracite (hard coal) that measures up to highest standards. So they call their coal Cert-i-fide Anthracite.

FILM Dulls Teeth

it is a constant danger

The Film that turns white teeth "off color"

Film clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs stains from food and smoking to turn white teeth "off color" and cloud their brilliance. Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, plus tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

In a few days teeth grow whiter and begin to sparkle. Start today. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Radio Talks To Explain Government

Col. infield Scott Will Deliver First Lecture Next Tuesday Evening Over WJSV; All Phases of Departments to Be Covered.

Beginning next Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, and continuing every Tuesday and Thursday evening Station WJSV will feature a series of talks on "The Federal Government," how it is operated, and will have every important activity of government described by those who supervise the work. The first address will be delivered by Col. Winfield Scott, Commissioner of Pensions. Col. Scott will be followed by ten other of his bureau chiefs.

Before the series is ended, it is expected that all the departments of the government will be represented at the microphone of Station WJSV.

To act as a combination of an alarm clock and something calculated to put enthusiasm into the early riser, Station WLW, the 50 kilowatt station at Cincinnati, is now going on the air at 6:30 o'clock in the morning.

"My son hooked an alarm clock attachment to the radio," a Kansas City, Mo., listener wrote to the station. "We now leave the dials set for W. L. W. Instead of the usual alarm we are awakened by the radio station. We have an extra speaker on the second floor where every one hears Cincinnati call that it is time to get up."

From 7:30 to 8 o'clock, an orchestra fills the schedule until the setting up exercises. The new morning programs bring Station WLW's time on the air to a grand weekly total of 114 hours and 35 minutes.

Youth, Found Starving, Is Named Rockefeller

Paris, Jan. 23 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—When gendarmes picked up a young man who collapsed in a Paris street last night and heard his faintly murmur "I'm starving!" and then declare in a whisper that his name was Rockefeller, their first inclination was to let him drop heavily with a request that he try his jokes on someone else.

But both his statements were true. The young man is an American student named Harry Rockefeller. He had had nothing to eat for 24 hours, it developed, and was moreover, in the throes of grip. The police took him to a hospital.

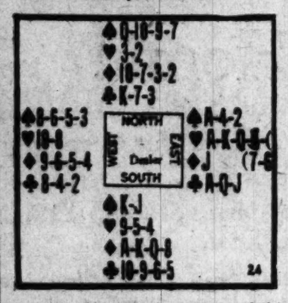
WORK'S BRIDGE

THE QUESTIONS



WHAT should the bidding of this deal be at Auction and Contract?

What should the play be to the first three tricks?

THE ANSWERS

At Auction, the bidding would be: South one Diamond, West pass, North pass, East one Heart which would obtain the contract. North might bid two Diamonds, although he lacks the strength to justify the raise; but as East would bid two Hearts, the contract would not be altered.

At Contract, South would bid one Diamond, West and North pass, East four Hearts which would obtain the contract.

The first two tricks would be Diamonds, East trumping the second with an honor.

The third trick would be a small Heart led from the East hand, on which South would play the Four, West (Dummy) the Eight, and North the Deuce.

This places West in the lead to try the Club finesse and leaves him with a second trump entry for a second Club finesse if the first one wins.

The coup in the hand is the unnecessary finesse in trumps made by Dummy. The Declarer had all the trump tricks without risking the finesse; but unless Dummy can lead Clubs twice, Declarer may expect to lose two Spades, one Diamond and one Club. If Dummy can lead Clubs twice, Declarer can make game if the King of Clubs be held by North. The Heart finesse at trick 3 may cost a trick, but it offers the only probable chance to make game.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

MARY N. MURFREE, who forged to the forefront of American writers under the pen name of Charles Egbert Craddock, was born this day, 1850. Until 1876, when her identity was revealed, it was supposed she was a man. Her novels are typically American. Her study of life in the Tennessee mountains is reflected in several of her novels, which include "In the Tennessee Mountains," "Storm Center," "The Windfall," "The Fair Mississippian," "The Story of Duciehurst" and others.

The author of the novel so widely read in its day, "Ships That Pass in the Night," was born this day, 1864. This novel by Beatrice Harraden, the English novelist, made her instantly famous in 1893. Some of her other novels include "Hilda Stafford," "The Fowler," "The Scholar's Daughter" and "Out of the Wreck I Rise."

Other noted women born this day are Constance Naden, English poet and lecturer, 1858; Helen Louise Elizabeth, Duchess of Orleans, 1814, and Mrs. H. R. Curlewis, the Anglo-Australian novelist, 1872.

Film Trials Given Over Air Tonight

Tribulations of Producing Movies in West Heard on WMAL at 10:30—Old Scotch Songs Offered. "Amos 'n' Andy."

Station WMAL will be on the air from 10 o'clock until noon today, and again from 6:30 o'clock until midnight. There will be a concert by the United States Army Band for an hour beginning at 7:30 o'clock, after which several Columbia Broadcasting System features will be presented.

"Lucrezia Borgia" will be sung by the United Opera Company. This opera in three acts, by Donizetti, is taken from Victor Hugo's drama, and is a tale of Venice and Ferrara in the sixteenth century. It was first produced in Milan in 1834.

The Higbee plantation will be the scene of Aunt Jemima's activities, where she and her husband, "Uncle Ned," who is butler, take care of the Higbee family. Other old retainers, sitting in their shacks, will also be heard in this program, strumming and crooning old darky songs and negro spirituals, first alone and then harmonizing them together.

The inside information about what goes on when a Western picture is being filmed will be revealed in the broadcast of Close-ups from WMAL at 10:30 o'clock. Movie fans who see the finished product have but little idea of what has gone to make it up, and both movie and radio fans are therefore likely to be amused to discover the trials and tribulations of the director, producer, hero and heroine in the construction of a Western film.

David McWilliams' orchestra will close WMAL's evening with an hour of dance music.

In a special arrangement by Frank Black, musical director of the hour, the Selberling Singers quartet will do a medley of Scoth folk songs—"Robin Adair," "Ye Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon" and "Comin' Through the Rye." No kilted program would be complete without "Annie Laurie," which Phil Ohman and Victor Arden will play on their two famous pianos. And, to top these, James Melton, Selberling's own tenor, will sing "Mary of Argyle."

Other numbers are Tschaikowsky's "June," a barcorole from his suite, "The Seasons," which will be played by the "singing violins;" a quartet performance of Deppen's "Oh, Miss Hannah," and Sanderson's ballad, "Friend of Mine." "Because," by d'Hardelot, will be sung by James Melton.

The "Old Counsellor" of the Halsey Stuart hour will be at home to his radio audience again at 10 o'clock tonight. Musical features are "On the Bosphorus," Lincke; "Alla Turca," Mozart; "Bagatelle," Dvorak; "There Once Was an Owl," Herbert; and "Dolores," Waldteufel.

Overture to "Merry Wives of Windsor," Nicolai; "Stephanie Gavotte," Czibulka; "Spring and Love," Von Blon; selection from "The Merry Widow," Lehar; "Czardas," Grossman; "Menuet," Karganoff; "Aria," Bach; "Largo," Corelli, and "Praeludium," Chopin.

Florence Jane Adams, impersonator, will present a 15-minute program from station WOL at 6:45 o'clock, followed by the Carlton Hotel dinner concert, which will be interrupted at 7:11 o'clock for "Amos 'n' Andy." Two hours of dance music are scheduled, beginning at 10 o'clock.

The Whoopie Dance Orchestra will be featured from Station WJSV at 7:30 o'clock tonight, after which the Children of the American Revolution will be on the air. The Siegel Trio is to be heard for one hour at 9 o'clock. A program of Hawaiian music will conclude the broadcast.

Taffeta and Tulle.

An evening frock for the young girl, which has everything to commend it in the way of chic, is made of flowered taffeta, with an irregular hem-line edged with tulle. A huge butterfly bow of the taffeta is placed at the right hip. The waist is sleeveless and has a deep V decolletage in the back.

For Deep Sea-Bathing.

A bathing suit destined to take an active part in the life of the bathing beach is bright red, with deep V-shaped stripes of broad blue and white on top and trunks.

Wide Beach Hat.

When the sun grows too, too hot, it is pleasant to be able to supplement a brief bathing suit with a very wide hat of woven straw, which will cast a welcome shadow. The straw is variegated and woven to produce a plaided effect.

Felt Bag and Belt.

A very narrow belt is made of colored felt and is matched by a square bag of the same unusual material.

Lisle Sweaters.

Evening Lingerie.

An evening chemise suitable for the low-backed evening frock is made of gorgette crepe and is trimmed with wide lace. The chemise is cut to the waistline in back, and has a skirt, which is finely pleated.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, January 24, 1929.

THE sort of heavy silk of which the cravats worn by the male portion of the family are made is being used effectively by Martial et Armand at present in the creation of stunning daytime wear for milady.

VARIOUS COMBINATIONS NOTED.

We find in our fashion notebook, for example, the description of a stunning outfit, which had a simple jacquette of black taffeta, a blouse of white satin with cravat and cuffs of a blue and white checked "necktie silk," and a box-pleated skirt of this same checkered fabric.

Another costume had jacquette and skirt of such a silk in a varicolored pattern of many hues, worn with a yellow blouse.

Yet simpler, but in exquisite taste, was one with a sleeveless jacquette of blue velvet, white satin blouse, and a skirt of cravat silk in a blue and white pattern.

THREE STEP-IN SETS.

Step-in and vests to match—three sets, one for sports wear and the tailleur, one for afteroon wear and one perfectly adorable for the dance.

Each one requiring the minimum of material and complication in making. You see, you don't have to be an expert to make lingerie the Dah-ray way. Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of (The Washington Post) and see if that isn't so.

A clever designer and an expert manipulator can do very interesting things with lace. I think the reason that so many of us have an aversion for lace is because we remembered a day when lace was considered sufficient unto itself and very little care was given to its fashioning.

But the lace frocks of today are quite a different matter. If anything, more care is given to its manipulation than to many other materials, simply because it is so lovely. Lace is being combined unexpectedly with other interesting materials, it has invaded the sports wear realm, and it has become subjected to incrustations, flairs and pleats, and many other interesting fabric manipulations.

The Maison Irfe presents an interesting example in the frock of heavy red lace I have illustrated for you today. The double skirt effect is longer in the back, and edged with pleated lace, as is the collar. Charmant!

SECRET DE BEAUTE.

Some one asks if long or short nails are considered elegant. And I am rather at a loss for answer. I have asked so many people and each one's opinion varied.

But wouldn't you think, just as I thought when I thought about it at all, that it would be a matter of individuality entirely? The length of one's finger-nails should, I rather imagine depend somewhat upon one's occupation, and also somewhat upon the shape of the hands. Rather long nails can give a graceful length to a hand which might otherwise be short and stubby, you know.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

ALMOST any of us who have lived will readily admit that an enormous amount of bunk has been assembled about the idea of motherhood. But few of us who have lived will fail to shudder at the thought of any aged mother defenseless and forlorn waiting from day to day for death to rescue her from dependence, and the shame of accepting bounty from hands that know no love.

Life, full to verflowing with tragedy and grief, knows no spectacle more terrifying than unloved and dependent old age.

The daughter whose letter is herewith offered, has done her part and has done it bravely if not lovingly. The brothers and sisters who calmly ignore the claims of decency and flesh and blood represent humanity at its lowest ebb. Read the letter—and think a bit of motherhood:

Dear Miss McDonald: Won't you please give me some advice on a problem which has grown beyond my ability to solve. You are always so wise and unbiased and I feel sure that you can help me.

I have been married for 11 years to a prince among men—a poor prince, but one nevertheless. During all these years I have continued to work. During all these years, too, I have had my mother living with me constantly, and have, in the main, supported her. I have a brother and several sisters all married and with established homes. One sister is married to a man of considerable means—a merchant. In 11 years all they have contributed toward her financial support is a small check at the holiday season from my sister so fortunately married. I have talked, written, argued, begged, pleaded and demanded that they accept some of the responsibility financially, and not only that but it seems to me that they should be made to give my mother a home at least during certain months of the year, so that my husband and I could enjoy our home by ourselves occasionally. When I try to discuss the matter with them they say they can't afford to send her money and they can't arrange "conveniently" to have her live with them. My mother's presence in my home is blighting my life and will eventually ruin it, as she is unpardonably hateful and sarcastic to my husband.

So I try to explain that he is head of the house, she becomes ugly and won't talk to me for days. She criticises us to neighbors and friends, and in spite of all this unjustness, we have to smile and carry on. Next year I should like to stop work, but I can't as my husband certainly doesn't expect to support his mother-in-law. I think the time is not far off when I shall have to choose between my mother and my husband; and the funny part is that I adore my husband and frankly have no love for my mother whatever, and I say it without shame, what might have been sweetness instead of gall. In spite of this lack of love, I can't see her put in an institution—not if it meant giving up everything I have on earth. She is old and has no financial resources. I can't tell her to leave, and ye, must I look ahead for perhaps years to a repetition of the years that are gone. Is there any legal way that would back me in trying to force financial support from these other children? Won't you tell me what you would do in my place, I try to do my best and I say to myself, "Oh God, how long, how long." And yet my hands are tired What can I do. I go out to work every day to assume the responsibility that should be shared by others who are living in luxury and ease. It's unfair and unjust, and yet what can I do? In spite of this my mother is a great admirer of these "yellow streaks" who wouldn't give her a crust if she were hungry. Sincerely yours.

A DISCOURAGED DAUGHTER.

The course is to see an attorney and have him address to each of the sons and each daughter a letter which he will prepare. There is no sense in trying to further appeal to them. An attorney will arrange a settlement. That is the only way.

Fakirs of India.

PERHAPS you have heard about the "fakire" of India. Notice that the word is spelled with an "i" rather than an "e"—the men who are fakirs are not accused of making fakes. They are simply beggars, who are seeking a holy way in life.

A Curious Custom of Asia.

Here and there in India you may see a fakir lying in the dust. He wears little clothing and his life does not seem to be one which we could count pleasant. He begs for money, but he wants only enough to keep from starving.

Some fakirs torture themselves in other ways, with knotted cords or by hanging in midair.

Behind these strange actions is a belief that release from this life is a thing to be sought. The men want to pay for the sins they think they have committed in past lives. They believe that after they die their souls will pass to other bodies, and that their lot on earth will be a happier one.

Some fakirs cover their bodies with wood ashes, giving a gray tinge to the skin. The fact that they are thin and look half-starved is one of the proofs that they are fakirs and not "fakers."

For my part I should think it better for them to be less severe about their past lives. Why not suppose that their past was good? They don't know otherwise. It is very important to make this life a good one; and surely they are not helping by living from money which others earn.

There are great numbers of persons in India who believe that each soul has many lives; but most of them behave with more sense than the fakirs. They carry on their daily tasks, and do not worry too much about what went on before they were born this time.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

NO-COLD CLUBS.

THE Syracuse health department, borrowing a suggestion from the Chicago health department have organized a "No-Cold Club." They have as a slogan, "Why have colds? They are a blamed nuisance."

Among the effects of colds they give: Pneumonia, tuberculosis, rheumatism, influenza and deafness. The applicants for membership in this club pledge themselves to avoid colds and to protect others from colds. The constitution gives as the purpose of the club: "To knock out cold germs before they knock us out." The members on probation are those who get one cold a year; the members in disgrace, those who get two colds a year. Three colds a year calls for expulsion. An honorary member is one who goes one year without a cold.

The constitution informs us that three-fifths of all illness can be designated as coryza, or the common cold. The by-laws are as follows:

1. Pay your dues by obeying these by-laws.
2. Don't get too close to people who have a cold, especially when they cough or sneeze.
3. Keep up your body resistance. Avoid overfatigue; get plenty of sleep, at least eight hours a night. Exercise in the open air every day. Eat nourishing food but don't be a pig. Drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily. Avoid constipation.
4. Keep your home and work place well ventilated. Have the thermometer read 68 degrees rather than 70. Overheated rooms often cause colds. Sleep with windows open.
5. Keep your mouth shut and breathe through your nose.
6. Accustom your skin to temperature changes. Most people can do this by a quick sponge bath each morning in cool water.
7. Keep your hands clean. Wash them often, particularly before eating.
8. Keep your feet dry and warm. Dress sensibly, wearing enough clothes without being overdressed indoors.
9. If you ever get overheated, cool off slowly. Avoid sudden chills.

If a person gets a cold he is advised:

1. At the first sign of a cold go to bed if possible for at least 24 hours. Drink more water than usual and eat lightly, avoiding sweets.
2. Keep your cold to yourself. Don't give it to others. It is nothing to be sneezed about.
3. Call a physician, especially if you have a fever, and follow his advice.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE COMEDIAN.

Oh, Master Comic, more and more they ask.
They plead to drain the laughter from thy flask

When first your song began Old Age was near.
One robed in black for some one shed a tear
And there were faces lined with care and fear.

But now they laugh and vanished is all woe
Gone are the hurts and griefs which mortals know.
Care can not stay where men are laughing so.

Laughter wipes out the differences of birth.
Age is forgotten and the pangs of earth.
Caste, creed and place are leveled all by mirth.

"More, more!" they cry. "More merriment we need!"
With clapping hands for happiness they plead.

Men and women injuring themselves by starvation diet

THE passing fad of dieting to reduce weight is permanently injuring the health of girls, women and men in the opinion of eminent medical authorities. How dangerously serious dieting has become may be judged from the following statement by a famous doctor. He says: "Many young women to whom motherhood has been denied have come to me to learn the reason why. I have to tell them, only too often, that they have sacrificed their children for the sake of a boyish figure." This doctor goes on to show that many adults, both men and women, do injury to themselves by starvation diets from which they can never recover.

It is time to call a halt in this dangerous practice. Whoever said that two persons could have the same standard of weight? Medical science now declares that standardization in the weight of human beings is impossible, as well as undesirable.

Eat enough of a great variety of foods and enjoy them. Remember that sugar is the ideal flavorer of other foods and that it adds greatly to the zest and pleasure of eating. Sugar is also a food—the most inexpensive and purest known. Don't be afraid to sweeten grapefruit, oranges, cereals, dried fruits, and all canned vegetables. Delightful flavors demand sugar. Enjoy eating.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Having been much impressed with the ebullience and versatile charm of Helen McFarland in the "Cheerio" stage revue at the Palace this week, I appealed to Mr. Rubin, the Loew publicist, who is now all bent over with the weight of a new mustache that evidently is sapping all his strength, for something a little intimate in the way of information concerning this gifted young woman. What I received in response to my request is a little bit of why photoplay columnists tear their hair—if any.

I learn from a close perusal of the first paragraph of Mr. Rubin's contribution that "she is 16 and pretty, has been literally flooded with offers to appear in motion pictures, yet has spurned them all." Continuing, we are apprised that "Miss McFarland is only 18, but has already carved herself a distinct niche in the theatrical profession." It is best to proceed cautiously from this on, lest Miss McFarland turn out to be 25 or 30 by the bottom of the page.

Papa McFarland is described as a Nebraska rancher, but from the fact that his daughter was born in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and has lived in Los Angeles ever since, I suspect that he is tilling the soil, or soiling the till, or whatever it is he is doing, as a sort of bucolic solo. It seems that on the coast, Miss McFarland attended the same school with Tom Mix's daughter, Ruth, which certainly ought to make Mr. McFarland a cowboy.

At any rate Helen McFarland made her stage debut at the age of 14, which, as you will recall, was two, or four or eleven years ago, and has been a hit from then on. Not only is she gifted with a fair voice, but she is also a dancer of exceptional agility, a xylophoniste of note, a musician and a composer, although in the last capacity she is nowhere near as good as morphine.

The high pitched voice of Mr. William C. Ewing, still keyed up by the excitement of a momentous event in the life of his boss, has just splintered the ear-piece of my telephone with the announcement that a baby daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John J. Payette, Tuesday, January 22, at 9 p. m.

Mr. Payette is supervisor of theaters for the Stanley-Crandall Co., of Washington and Mrs. Payette, the former Dorothy Crandall, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Crandall. Mother and child are both reported to be flourishing at Providence Hospital and both Mr. and Mrs. Payette, as well as the baby, are being buried under an avalanche of congratulatory messages from hosts of friends not only resident in the Capital but scattered throughout the motion picture industry.

It has just come to my notice that "Bob" Carbaugh is scoring a deserved hit in the role that encompasses the "Half Moon" song in "Honeymoon Lane," current at the Belasco Theater as one of the most popular offerings of the Savoy Musical Comedy Company.

This rates inclusion in this column as motion picture news chiefly because when the Crandall Theaters operated their broadcasting unit, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Carbaugh, parents of the youthful artist who plans to follow a career in the theater, as well as "Bob" himself on occasion, took frequent part in the programs put on the air by the "Saturday Nighters." And they were always a hit, although the youngster at that time was xylophoning instead of singing.

Make no mistake about this articulate version of the picturized Anne Nichols miracle, "Abie's Irish Rose," at the Metropolitan—it is a film play of exceptional appeal with a bit of character work by that sterling actor, Jean Hersholt, that in itself wholly justifies attendance by all of discriminating taste in things cinematographic.

After all, it is not to be wondered at that the silent edition of the gelatinized play did not panic New York when the attempt was made to present it at the $2 scale of prices almost on the spot where the spoken drama had only just completed a run of five years. With such audible embellishments as have been added since that ill-judged Broadway premiere, "Abie" seems good for a run in any man's theater.

Warner Baxter's marvelous speaking voice soon will be heard around the world in "In Old Arizona," Fox Films' first feature-length picture to be made wholly in Fox Movietone, and largely out of doors at that.

Baxter, who has been eminently successful as a male lead in pictures, so much so that he enjoys an enviable popularity with picture devotees the world over, came to the screen after several years as a leading man of the speaking stage. It is that branch of his profession one of his chief assets was his voice.

Obviously the screen, until now, has been denied that voice, but it has come back, through the medium of Fox Movietone, more sonorous, more resonant, more vibrant than ever.

It is heard in his portrayal of "The Cisco Kid," that very colorful bandit of the romantic days in the old Southwest.

"The Cisco Kid" was handsome, daring and vain, as all eminent and successful assassins are. His habitat was anywhere between the Frio and the Rio Grande. He killed for the love of it—because he was quick-tempered—to avoid arrest— for his own amusement or for any reason that happened to come to his mind. He escaped arrest because he could shoot five-sixth of a second faster than any sheriff, ranger or soldier who came across him.

He was "muy caballero" where the women were concerned, though he loved but one—"Tonia Maria," a half-caste girl with the face of a Madonna, the passion of a Carmen and the soul of a humming bird.

But perhaps I was merely in a too-receptive mood the midnight this unusual picture was screened for the benefit of the newspaper boys and girls at an invitational preview. After its opening at the Fox Saturday, I may take back a little, but certainly not the part about Warner Baxter's voice. It was obviously created for moonlight and romance "In Old Arizona."

I was wrong Tuesday; today's the day it will be necessary to forego a prime essential of any good column——

COMING ATTRACTIONS

POLI'S.

"The Desert Song," Schwab and Mandel's successful musical romance, fashioned from a tale of the late French and Riff clashes along the borders of Morocco and set to a delightful musical score by Sigmund Romberg, will be the Poli's Theater attraction beginning Sunday, January 27.

There is an exceptionally good interweaving of song and play, working up to a real climax in the discovery of the dual identity of the "Red Shadow" and giving room in the musical moments for "Ho," the riding song of the Riffs; "Romance," "I Want a Kiss," "It," "The Desert Song," "Eastern and Western Love," "The Saber Song" and "The Song of the Brass Key" and other popular melodies.

The cast seen here comes direct from ten months at the Great Northern Theater, Chicago, and an all-summer run in Detroit. It includes Alexander Gray, Bernard Granville and Bernice Claire, supported by Harold Stanton, Sally Sloan, Edna Torrence, Philip Ryder, Ben Hendricks, Carlotta Miles, Donald Douglas and a large dancing ensemble as well as a notable male chorus of 50.

During the local engagement matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

NATIONAL.

Thousands of men who had served in France in the World War were confronted with a great problem of readjustment to peace-time pursuits upon their return to civil life.

Not alone the shell-shocked and battle-scarred veterans, those with physical scars, but also those with mental scars as a result of their war service.

These men, many of them placed in sudden and unaccustomed responsibilities at the front, found it extremely difficult to adjust themselves to the comparatively dull routine of civil life. Many of them, too, have been left total misfits.

That's the theme of "Scars," the comedy drama by Warren F. Lawrence, booked at the National Theater for next week, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

BELASCO.

"Sally," Florenz Ziegfeld's production, will be produced by Charles Emerson Cook and his musicomedians at the Belasco Theater next week, beginning Sunday, January 27, with Thelma Parker, Robert Capron, Lee Daley, Renee Hamilton and Frank Gallagher in the star roles.

"Sally" is one of the most popular musical comedies produced in the last ten years. The Leon Errol and Walter Catlett comedy roles will be in the trustworthy hands (and legs) of Robert Capron, who interprets the Eddie Dowling part in "Honeymoon Lane" this week, and Lee Daley, who is proving a sure-fire laugh-getter in the current attraction at the Belasco. The title role will be sung and danced by Thelma Parker, and Renee Hamilton will have an equally important role. Frank Gallagher as Blair Farquar is a modern Prince Charming. Edward Metcalfe, Jack Closson, James McKay and Ross Snowden will also have principal roles.

STRAND.

There will be a "double-header" at the Strand Theater next week, as the management will present two shows in one, Lew Talbot's "Wine, Women and Song" and Lew Talbot's "Black and White Scandals of 1929."

Listed among the principals are Jyes LaRue, who occupies the prima donna position, and Frank O'Rourke, the straight man; Myrtle Wilson, soubrette; Dorothy Lee, ingenue; Eddie Lloyd, Paul Jerome, Doug Fleming, juvenile lead.

"The Black and White Scandals of 1929" has 40 colored entertainers direct from the Alhambra Theater in New York City. The combined shows contain 74 people in all.

NEWMAN TRAVELOGUE.

"Spain" in all its glory will be revealed by E. M. Newman, travel-talker, Sunday afternoon at the National Theater. Monuments left by the Moors afford many reminders of these remarkable people, without whom Granada would never have known the Alhambra, Cordoba would be bereft of its cathedral, and there would be no Alcazar or Giralda tower in Seville. This year Mr. Newman enjoyed unusual privileges, being permitted to enter and photograph at will the priceless possessions in the palace of the king and royal family. The Prado Gallery in Madrid, with its rich collection of Valesquez, Murillo, Goya, Ribera and other Spanish masters, was for the first time thrown open to his cameras.

MARTINELLI, TENOR.

Rum Off Street Convicts Woman

"Scooped-Up" Evidence Believed by Jury Against Mrs. Esther Cohen.

Mrs. Esther Cohen, of 1064 Fourteenth street northwest, was found guilty of charges of transporting and possession of two jars of liquor by a jury in Police Court before Judge John P. McMahon yesterday, after five minutes' deliberation. Sentence will be pronounced on Saturday.

The prosecution, conducted by Assistant District Attorney David A. Hart, produced testimony through members of Sergt. George M. Little's flying squadron that Mrs. Cohen had tossed the two jars from her automobile at Fourteenth and S streets northwest several weeks ago, when accosted by the policemen.

Contention that the contents of the jars was nonalcoholic white wine, manufactured for "sacramental purposes," was made by the defense, conducted by Harry T. Whelan. A chemist testified for the prosecution that the jars contained corn whiskey, a small quantity of which was scooped up from the street after the jars broke.

TO THE OWNERS OF AMERICA'S HOMES FROM THE DESIGNERS OF AMERICA'S SKYLINE

Leon N. Gillette, long a leader in architectural circles, is a partner in the firm of Walker & Gillette. One of the noteworthy works of this firm is the Industrial Trust Building, Providence, R. I.

"Even when Copper and Brass were very much more expensive than they are today we recommended them to our clients as proving a real economy in the long run."

Walker & Gillette

IN voicing unqualified approval of Copper, Brass and Bronze building materials Walker & Gillette agree with practically all of the other famous architectural firms of America. Speaking of these materials in a recent letter, Mr. Leon N. Gillette says:

> "They give the sort of permanent service one expects in well constructed buildings, and afford permanent protection against rust."

There is one way to assure yourself complete freedom from the trouble and expense of rusted metals. That is—use Copper, Brass and Bronze for plumbing, roofing materials and hardware and lighting fixtures. When you build or buy a home or remodel your present one, be sure to get these rust-proof materials. Don't be satisfied with metals that merely resist rust. Insist on the true rust-immunity of Copper, Brass and Bronze.

Write our Building Service Department for additional information. There is no obligation.

EARLY LEADERS SUFFER

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 23.—Irregularity again featured the stock market today, with buoyancy prevailing in the forenoon in many quarters and a general disposition to sell in the late trading. Numerically, losses slightly outnumbered gains on the day, but the latter generally were much the broader. About two-thirds of the day's turnover of approximately 5,200,000 shares changed hands in the first two hours, activity, as usual of late, abating markedly under heavy selling waves. During the session 40 issues touched new highs for the year or longer.

Heavy buying, which had accumulated overnight in many of the recent speculative favorites, carried these issues up sharply at the outset, and, following the increase in copper metal prices to the 17-cent level, the stocks affected by this development showed uniform strength.

But many of the issues that were most active on the early advance were hardest hit by the late offerings, which were partly bear selling and partly profit taking by holders who professed the belief that higher money rates were in prospect for the immediate future. Call money held at 6 per cent throughout, but the tone was firmer.

New Purchase of Gold.

News of purchase of an additional $5,000,000 of gold in London for shipment to New York was the most important event of the day affecting securities. As in the case with the $2,000,000 bought in London yesterday by a New York banking firm, the shipment probably will not bring a great deal of profit to the consignees. However, the fact that the condition of the exchange permits gold shipments is significant.

The effect on sentiment here of gold shipments was bullish as indicating on the face of things that not only would the money market be eased but the possibility of a higher discount rate would recede. But as regards the bank rate in London might increase rather than diminish the chances for a 6 per cent rate here. Perhaps the Reserve Bank directors will be influenced more by the action of the stock market during the next few weeks than by the gold movement.

Sterling failed to rise today and so long as the quotation remains at its present low level around the gold point, further shipments of the metal must be expected. U. S. Steel common maintained its place of leadership in the stock market for a time, moving up to 189½ in a heavy turnover, but it was one of the first issues to give ground when selling got well under way, and dropped back to close at 186, off 1⅝ net. Youngstown Sheet lost 2⅝ points but most other independent steel issues held steady.

Motors Sell Off Sharply.

The two General Motor issues sold off sharply in the afternoon after substantial early advances. Both quit in the plus line, however, the former by 1⅞ and the latter ¾.

One of the most sensational developments of the day was the action of Union Carbide, which opened at 209⅞, and was rapidly boosted in heavy trading to a new peak price for all time at 222. There was considerable talk on the floor of the exchange of a technical corner in this issue. But it cracked with the remainder of the list and sold back to 214½, closing 6 points above yesterday's final price.

A strong buying movement in Great Northern Ore carried that issue into new high price territory at 37¾ and it closed at 36⅛, up 3 points net.

Many of the rails were freely bought at advancing prices in the forenoon, but some of them tapered in the late trading. Canadian Pacific finished with a net gain of 6⅝, having established a new high at 250. Delaware & Hudson gained 4 points net and Soo Line preferred, at a new high, 4¾.

The two Du Pont stocks moved actively again and held their gains fairly well, the old stock closing 7¾ points above yesterday's last price and the new showing a net advance of 3¾.

Coppers React From Day's Highs.

In the copper division Greene finished with a net appreciation of 4½ points, Anaconda, 1⅝; American Smelters, ⅞, and others with smaller fractional gains or losses, all well below their highs for the day.

International Telephone & Telegraph soared to a new high at 223 and closed at 221, for a net gain of 7 points.

Other gainers included Great Western Sugar, 1⅜; Central Aguirre, 4½; Central Alloy, 3½; Case Threshing, 5¾; Columbia Carbon, 4½; Brooklyn Union Gas, 4¾; Brooklyn Edison, 34 (at a new high on a small turnover); Archer Daniel Midland, 2¾; American Telephone & Telegraph, 4½, at a new high; American Tobacco, common and B, 2¾ and 2⅞, respectively; American Power & Light, 2⅝; Allied Chemical, 3; Air Reduction, 2½; Adams Express, 10; Kresge, 2; Kroger, 2⅞; International Silver, 6; General Electric, 5⅞; Electric Power & Light, at a new peak, 4¾; Detroit Edison, 5; National Cash Register, at a new top for all time, 12¾; National Tea, 8¼; Radio, 3½; Rio Grande Oil, at a new high on reported pool operations, 4½; Savage Arms, 3; Wright, 3; Westinghouse, 2⅝; Universal Leaf Tobacco, 2½, and Paramount, 2.

Most of the numerous losses on the day were under 2 points, exceptions including Abitibi, down 2¾ net; Baldwin Locomotive, 8; City Stores B, 2½; Goodrich, 2½; Public Service of New Jersey, 2⅝; Mullins, 3¾; Union Tank Car, 4¾; Tobacco Products A, 4½, and Shattuck, 3¼.

Featured by offering of sterling in record-breaking blocks, one lot of £500,000 being offered at $4.84 15-16, or virtually the gold point, quotations for most European currencies were irregular. French, Italian and Scandinavian rates were unchanged, Swiss and Dutch lost ¼ point and German improved ½ point. No material changes occurred in South Americans. Silver exchanges were heavy, Hongkong falling ⅛ and Shanghai ¼ cent. Cuban was firm, cables moving up to 100.04; Canadian improved slightly to 99.77.

FOUR BOXING CHAMPIONS ORDERED TO RISK TITLES

Hagen Orders U. S. Golfers Set Style

Sartorial Honors Now Coobjective With the Ryder Cup.

By WILLIAM J. DUNN,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Walter Hagen, well-known authority on correct attire and a golfer of some repute, has decreed that members of the American Ryder Cup Team must strive for sartorial perfection in their annual matches with Great Britain this year.

As captain of the Ryder golfers, Walter today came out with the announcement that his 1929 team, recently selected, would enjoy the aid of a "stylist" in the selection of the wardrobes they will require for the international matches.

Dave Frankel, for several years connected with the "best dressed golfer" movement at national championships, has been named official "stylist" for the American team and upon his judgment will rest the success or failure of the Americans in the matter of dress.

Neckties That Fail to Match Disastrous to Scores.

Hagen's announcement is sure to create comment among those persons who have been following golf for years under the impression that the quality of a person's game would have a direct bearing upon his golfing success.

It may be hard for them to understand that unpressed knickers, or neckties that fail to match perfectly the shirt, socks and sweater, naturally tend to throw any golfer off his game.

The announcement failed to mention whether the American players would be required to dress in costumes that harmonized as a whole or whether the requirements would allow individualism in the matter of dress, providing the individual golfer presented a perfect picture of sartorial elegance in himself.

Color Scheme Possibilities Foreseen as Boundless.

It is to be hoped that Hagen will require all his men to wear costumes that are similar at least in the color motif for it can be understood how displeasing it would be to the discriminating eyes of the gallery to watch a golfer dressed in pea green knickers with sweater and hose to match, paired with one whose dominating motif was violent purple.

It is also wondered whether the various members of the Ryder team will be required to stand inspection before their matches while Frankel examines them for possible discordant notes.

The possibilities of the announcement are boundless, and the flawless Hagen, aided by the expert Frankel, should be able to rig out one of the most cunning teams that ever represented the United States in an international match.

Cochrane Demands More Money From A's

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Gordon S. "Mickey" Cochrane, star catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, has returned his 1929 contract unsigned to Manager Connie Mack.

Voted the most valuable player to his team in the American League last year, Cochrane has been spending the winter on a vaudeville tour. "I have not yet reached the holdout stage and am in hope that we can come to terms before the team goes South," Cochrane said tonight. "But, if I do not receive the amount of money I think I am worth, I will consider retiring from the game."

Wide, Conqueror of Nurmi, Competes in Masonic Meet

Swedish Star Leaves Here After Accepting Invitation.

EDVIN WIDE.

EDVIN WIDE, swift Swedish schoolmaster, one of the few runners ever to have defeated "Peerless" Paavo Nurmi, may be the "savior" of the Masonic benefit games in New York Saturday night by supplying the attraction which officials had thought was lost when the Finnish star disappointed them and cast his entry in the Prout Memorial games scheduled to be held in Boston on the same date.

Wide, accompanied by his wife, left Washington for New York yesterday morning. Just previously he had telegraphed to officials of the Masonic meet his acceptance of an invitation to compete, which they hurriedly extended him when it became definite that Nurmi would take part in the Boston games.

Studies with His Training. Here for 10 Days Combining

For the last ten days Wide has been in Washington, combining a study of the public school system with training for a resumption of distance running, from which he left off after the 1928 Olympiad.

According to Eric Kjellstrom, Georgetown University student, friend and fellow countryman of Wide, the Swedish star was uncertain at the time of his departure of his fitness for competition Saturday night, but stated he would determine his physical condition with an indoor workout upon arriving in New York late in the afternoon.

If this condition permits, Wide will flash his winged feet in the Masonic games for the first time in America since 1927, when he established records for 1½ miles (6 minutes 37 4-5 seconds), and 3,000 meters (8 minutes 22 seconds).

Prior to the receipt of the Masonic invitation he had planned to remain in Washington until the first week in February, when he intended to go North and make his 1929 debut in the Newark A. C. meet on February 7.

Wide Does Not Know Distance He Will Be Asked to Run.

The distance he will run Saturday night was not known by Wide, but he told Kjellstrom he thought that he would be asked to run either 1½ or 2 miles. The mile and 1,500 meters

Sharkey Now Greatest Card

Has Attracted Bigger Gates Than All But Dempsey, Tunney.

Unpopularity Factor; To Pack Garden for Christner Bout.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Jack Sharkey is the biggest drawing card left in the fighting game.

The Boston heavyweight has drawn more money, exclusive of two former heavyweight champions, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, than any fighter that ever lived. In less than two years Sharkey has received $350,000 for his services. He was paid $211,000 for fighting Dempsey.

In six fights for the Madison Square Garden Corporation the aggregate total approaches $2,000,000. The receipts for Sharkey's six biggest fights follow:

Sharkey-Dempsey	$1,083,000
Sharkey-Maloney	200,000
Sharkey-Heeney	161,000
Sharkey-Risko	140,000
Sharkey-McTigue	116,000
Sharkey-Delaney	90,000
Total	$1,790,000

Sharkey's Appeal Attributed To His Unpopularity.

Although K. O. Christner has engaged in but fifteen professional fights and was unheard of until he knocked out the highly overrated Knute Hansen, the Sharkey-Christner bout is expected to gross between $60,000 and $70,000 at $2 to $10 prices.

Sharkey's appeal is attributed by many to his unpopularity. It's a saying around fight circles that "they go to see Sharkey get his head knocked off." Few fight crowds ever turn down a chance to "boo" Sharkey when he steps into the ring.

One of the reasons advanced for Sharkey's terrible showing against Johnny Risko and Tom Heeney last winter has been that the big money he received in previous bouts went to his head.

Hungry fighters are the greatest fighters, according to Jack Dempsey, who himself fought his best battles when he needed cash.

Sharkey needs money now to complete payment on his $80,000 home and carry out plans for trust funds for his three young children.

Both fighters completed training today. After boxing two rounds each with Italian Jack Herman and Paul Hoffman, German heavyweight, and going through his other routine exercises, Sharkey weighed 192.

Christner did no gymnasium work today but confined himself to roadwork and calisthenics. He also weighed 192.

What little betting there is favors Sharkey at 3 to 1 and even money that Christner does not last 10 rounds.

Dempsey to Get Offers As Fighter, Promoter

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Edwin Cole, of New York, financial adviser to William H. Bartlett, Philadelphia and Atlantic City stock broker, announced today that he was going to Miami Beach for a conference with Jack Dempsey and Humbert J. Fugazy, New York boxing promoter, concerning Fugazy's Metropolitan casino, a proposed rival sports arena to Madison Square Garden.

Cole said that he was prepared to make offers to the former world's champion either to fight or to manage the Coliseum, the construction of which would be taken over by a new corporation to be headed by Bartlett. Plans for the proposed metropolitan casino, which is to occupy the block between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth streets and Eleventh and Twelfth avenues in New York have been under way for some time, but so far the organization has not passed the preliminary stages.

In case his attempt to persuade Dempsey to return to the ring is successful, Cole said, the bout probably will be held in the convention hall at Atlantic City, a structure capable of seating 45,000 persons.

National Body Threatens Action

Dundee, Walker, Mandell, Loughran Given 60 Days to Fight.

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The National Boxing Association, controlling the sport in 27 States, today ordered four champions to engage in a title contest against a logical contender within 60 days or surrender the titles.

Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion; Mickey Walker, ruler of the middleweights; Joe Dundee, welterweight title holder, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, were notified they must engage in a title bout before March 21 or cease to be recognized by the N. B. A. as legitimate champion of the class. None of the quartet has defended his title within the last six months' period, the time allowed a champion between title bouts under N. B. A. rules.

Boxing Body Decides Upon Ultimatum by Mail vote.

The decision was reached after a majority of the commissions holding membership in the N. B. A. had taken a mail vote on the issue.

President Prehn, in his letter to each title holder said that if they failed to obey the demand there will be no alternative left but to order their suspension, which will result in the N. B. A. ceasing to recognize them as champions.

The State Athletic Commissions of New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and California do not hold membership in the N. B. A., but the latter three have a working agreement with the Illinois Commission. If Loughran, Walker, Dundee, and Mandell are suspended in Illinois, their suspensions no doubt will be recognized by the Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and California commissions.

Loughran Now in Scramble for Heavyweight Crown.

Loughran, finding no competition in the light heavyweight division has cast his lot with the heavyweights, aspiring to winning the title. Walker has been active in matches over the middle weight limit, defending his title last time against Ace Hudkins in Chicago last June. Dundee met with disaster in Chicago when he was knocked out in two rounds by young Jack Thompson in a match over the weight limit. Mandell has been on the shelf for four months' due to a fractured collar bone, but has prepared to defend his title against Ray Miller, the conquerer of Jimmy McLarnin and Tommy Grogan, probably in Detroit in March.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Baseball fans, especially transients and casual visitors to the Yankee Stadium, will applaud the club's decision to try the experiment of numbering the players next season. The classical lineaments of Babe Ruth's much photographed pan are as familiar to almost every citizen as a ward heeler's manners, but some of the other boys all look pretty much alike at a distance.

In the old days of bandbox ball parks, a fan in what then were the third base bleachers could lean over the rail and tousle the hair of a hot corner favorite and one on the other side of the diamond could give the first baseman a chew of tobacco without relinquishing the plug. But in this era of double-deck grandstands, with the rear rows an hour's flight from the field to an ambitious swallow, even something more than numbers ten inches high are needed to bring the players within the range of easy vision. No charge is made for the suggestion that Col. Ruppert also provide a telescope with every seat.

Cards Might Wear Minus Signs Before Numbers Appropriately.

Earl Combs, as lead-off man, undoubtedly will draw "No. 1," by which he always is designated on the scorecards. Ruth, who bats third, would naturally wear a "3," but some of the baseball hex doctors already, have pointed out that "7" is the most potent of numerals on the diamond and that it should be emblazoned on the bambino's broad back to ward off possible attacks of batting anemia, lapses of flychasing judgment and other ills to which even stars are prone. But on the basis of Yankee performances in the last world's series, it would seem that Ruth should be numbered "1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6," Gehrig, "7," and Hoyt, "8." And by the same token, the Cardinals, if they adopt the same system, all should have minus signs before the numerals.

Spirit of Tolerance at Miami Beckons Northern Horsemen.

Northern horsemen who did not ship their nags to Miami because they thought the authorities there might hear there was to be a race meeting and prohibit it, as they did last winter, are only now becoming aware that a new spirit of tolerance seems to have enveloped the home State of the late William Jennings Bryan and other indefatigable crusaders for reform. After a week of racing there the layers are still laying unmolested and expect to keep on doing so until the meeting ends March 9.

If the authorities challenge the legality of their operations in the meantime, they believe that an injunction will allow them to continue to do business until the Florida Supreme Court has passed on the so-called oral system of betting, which has replaced the parimutuels at Miami, as it did here when bookmaking was adjudged a satanic employment. As a test case would have to take its turn in the court calendars, they see nothing in the outlook to suggest a homeward migration before March 10, save the remote possibility of losing all their money to Mr. and Mrs. Public.

Glick of Ghetto Is Now McGlick of Kilkenny.

Mayor Jimmy Walker, an unofficial observer of the recent McLarnin-Glick tryst in the Garden, did not know it, but he got a withering glare that would have silenced Senator J. Thomas Heflin when he yelled his appreciation of McLarnin's masterly boxing. Harry Alberts, Glick's chief second, was the man who turned the glare on his honor.

"I should think," said Mr. Alberts later, "that the mayor would root for one of his own constituents and not for a British subject like McLarnin."

"Maybe he would have if I'd given

AID DEFENDS OWNER OF BRAVES

BOSTON, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—An elaborate defense of the character of Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston National League Baseball Club, was presented to the Boston Finance Commission today by Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Braves. It was in the form of a brief statement by Adams, supplemented by the reading of a large number of telegrams and letters from baseball magnates and men in public life praising Fuch's character.

Adams also brought to the hearing a letter from President Fuchs addressed to the finance commission, but which the commission declined to have read into the record, in which the Braves' president pointed out that it was upon a court order that he testified at a previous hearing before the commission that William G. Lynch, a member of the Boston City Council, had approached him with a proposition for bribes for himself and twelve other members of the council in return for their favorable action on the Sunday sports measure, which would permit Sunday baseball in Boston.

Spent No Money Improperly, Says Fuchs' Statement.

"I told the truth," Fuchs' statement went on, "and my love for the national game is so strong that I pledge you my word of honor that not one penny was advanced or spent improperly, as coming from me or those associated with me, in our effort to bring Sunday baseball to Massachusetts."

The attorney general's office has been conducting an investigation into charges that a list of contributors to the campaign fund of the Outdoor Recreation League filed with the secretary of state was falsified and that Braves' officials furnished most of the funds. The league supported the Sunday professional sports referendum, which was adopted by a large majority in the November election.

Hoppe Leads Champion, 50-45, at Three Cushions

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Willie Hoppe, of New York, won this afternoon's block from Johnny Layton, St. Louis, the world's champion, in their special three-cushion billiards match by 50 points to 45 in 66 innings. Hoppe had three runs of 6 and one of 5, while Layton had a high run of 7 and several of 3. Hoppe, who led by a single point at the start of today's play, now is ahead by 250 points to 244. Three blocks remain, one to be played tonight and the others tomorrow.

Tech's Five May Play In Penn Tournament

Providing the Tech Five wins the interhigh school basket ball championship, the team will compete in the University of Pennsylvania tournament, it was learned last night. A Tech Team has never played in the tournament. Central won the title once and was runner-up twice, while Eastern competed for two seasons.

Tech has five straight series victories to its credit and is virtually assured the title.

H. J. Killilea, Baseball Pioneer, Is Dead at 62

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Henry J. Killilea, 62, one of the members of the little group that founded the American Baseball League in 1899, is dead.

The local sportsman, who also was owner of the Milwaukee Club of the American Association, died at his home here today of heart disease after a brief illness.

Mr. Killilea with his brother Matt, Connie Mack, Charles Comiskey and Ban Johnson founded the league at a meeting in the Killilea home here and for several years he acted as its counsel.

Mr. Killilea became president of the Boston Red Sox in 1903, when that club was tottering on financial difficulties, and won the pennant. For nearly a quarter of a century he took no active part in baseball. In 1928 he purchased the Milwaukee Brewers.

Conger Coming East For Mile-Run Honors

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Ray Conger will come East early next month to run in two of the outstanding indoor mile events of the Eastern season.

The national 1,500-meter champion, who represents the Illinois Athletic Club, has sent in his signed entry blank for the Rodman Wanamaker mile, a feature of the Millrose meet at Madison Square Garden, February 9, and expects to compete a week earlier in the Hunter Mile of the Boston Athletic Association games.

G. U. TOSSERS MEET SAINTS TONIGHT

GEORGETOWN will be seeking its third straight victory tonight when it engages the Mount St. Mary's Five from Emmitsburg, Md., on the American University floor, starting at 8:30 o'clock. The program will open at 7:30 with the undefeated Georgetown Freshmen trying conclusions with Gonzaga, leader of the District Prep School League.

A veteran combination carries Mount St. Mary's banner, four of the first five being holdovers from last year's team which fell before the Hilltoppers by the slim margin of 2 points. This season the Saints have been going at a fast clip, recently plastering a 31-to-19 defeat on Johns Hopkins, Georgetown's easy foe of Tuesday night.

The visitors pack exceptional scoring strength in Capt. Hemler, guard, and McCarrigan, forward, while the remainder of their personnel—McCall, Connell and Ryscavage—round out a machine which requires hard opposition to stop.

Ripley's System of Play Gives G. U. Fresh Team.

Georgetown right now is hitting its fastest pace of the season and figures to be a dangerous opponent for any collegiate quintet. Coach Ripley has a squad of reserves who perform nearly as well as the regulars. All of the so-called second-string have gained plenty of experience in games that the regulars have "put on ice" in the early stages, and so Georgetown is capable of having good, fresh players in action at all times.

Lloyd Brown at Tampa, "On Own" for Training

Special to The Washington Post

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 23.—Beating his teammates to the training camp here by a 30-day margin, Lloyd Brown, Washington pitcher, arrived here today ready for the conditioning grind. The southpaw is not here as a ward of the ball club and will pay his own training expenses until the official time for him to report arrives.

Brown, who hails from Knoxville, Tenn., was not a howling success with the Nationals last year, getting an even break in the eight games which he was officially charged with, but a sore arm in the early part of the season was assigned as one of the reasons for his backwardness.

President Clark Griffith received a telegram this afternoon from E. S. Barnard, president of the American League, stating that he will be in Tampa tomorrow, and arranging for a conference with the owner of the Washington Ball Club. There are no matters directly affecting the Nationals under consideration by the league's president, and the conference tomorrow will probably resolve itself into a general good-of-the-league discussion.

Mayor Walker Offered Post As Successor to Tex Rickard

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The New York Times tomorrow will say that Mayor James J. Walker has been approached by the management of the Madison Square Garden with offers of the post of president and general manager left vacant by the death of Tex Rickard.

The mayor, according to the Times, has declined to consider the position until after he has completed his term as mayor. It was said that he had been advised he could name his own salary and that he would share a liberal stock allotment if he would step into Rickard's place.

The mayor, when asked if he had been offered the position as president and general manager of the Garden, said:

"I will not deny it, but these gentlemen understand perfectly, as do others who have approached me with propositions concerning my future activities, that no proffer would induce me to accept any such post until after I have completed my term as Mayor of New York City. Just say that I prefer not to discuss it at present and that we come to it."

He said he had a conference with Richard F. Hoyt, chairman of the board of Madison Square Garden Corporation, who left recently for a month cruise in the South. Before his departure Mr. Hoyt said he doubted if there would be any change in the management of the Garden at least for several months.

Rex Beach Advances In Artists, Writers Golf

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Favorites continued to hold the upper hand today in the second round of match play in the annual artists' and writers' tournament here. Rex Beach, who turned in low score in the medal round, had little trouble in disposing of T. Kajiwara, St. Louis, 6 and 5 today, while Grantland Rice, present title holder, was eliminating F. Newland, Englewood, N. J., by the same score.

DEMPSEY'S RETURN TO RING NOW DEEMED CERTAIN

Easy Earnings Loom Up for Ex-Champ

Must Recoup Bankroll If Miami Bout Is Financial Failure.

Holds Contenders in Contempt; Trainer Is on Scene.

By JIMMY POWERS.
Special to The Washington Post.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23.—Jack Dempsey will fight again—and here are two reasons why:

First, he will have to fight if the Sharkey-Stribling battle February 27 is a flop.

Second, he is so interested in completing arrangements for this match and is in such close contact once more with the racket that he is hungering for the easy money that would come from knocking over current contenders whom he holds in discreet contempt.

Dempsey is heavily interested in Miami, real estate, an automobile concern, the dog track and several other investments—two of which are rumored to be gambling palaces first backed by the late Tex Rickard. If the coming fight fails to stimulate the clinking of cash registers locally old Jack will have to get out and dig for some dough.

His Training Equipment Shipped to Miami.

This correspondent discovered today there were five trunks piled on Harry Moir's back porch. Moir is a Chicago horse owner and current host to Dempsey.

"What's this? Patzenhoffer beer?" we asked the gay Jerry the Greek, Dempsey's ex-trainer and valet.

"Naw. But it is someteeng with jus' as much coche a keeck," gabbled the sunbronzed Jeremiah. "It is the champ's gloves and training equipment."

Dempsey sent a hurry call for the stuff. And he is all set to start some sort of training. He either is alarmed at the flesh this slothful tropical weather is piling on his burly frame or else wants to test himself out secretly.

Jack, when questioned, denied the thing is a publicity stunt. He is not going to go through the motions of punching a bag in the public sweating and grunting sessions of Sharkey and Stribling at the dog track.

Works With Sparring Mates And on the Beach.

He is going to work into the pink at Moir's, using a few of the clustering sparring partners now and then that will flock to the beach looking for work.

Dempsey—and this is merely a personal opinion and a reading of voice inflections—despises Stribling and Sharkey. Judging from the manner in which he spoke of his interviews with them and a few unguarded expressions here and there, he regards them as two lucky stiffs to be in there grabbing the coin they are to get for their established poor brand of fighting. Both have a life record of Roquefort bouts, and when a few cynical gentlemen with Peglerian tongues gathered on the Kennel Club porch and referred to the two gladiators as "dogs," with an occasional change to "airedales," he smiled indulgently at the sallies and, I thought, a bit approvingly.

Nats Outhit All Opponents in 1928; Made More Runs, Stole More Bases

HAD THE Nationals been able to make a better distribution of their attacking power, they might have won the 1928 American League pennant, figures compiled by the official statistician indicate, for they made more runs than their collective opponents, were credited with more hits, stole more bases, drew more bases on balls, struck out less times and had a higher batting and earned run average.

Considering the fact that the Washington Club also led the league in fielding, it is difficult to see how, in view of the above, it finished as far down as fourth place. The most logical explanation is that they used much of their margin in taking many one-sided victories, while they also were the victims in more than their share of close games.

New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis were the clubs which finished in front of the Nats, and this trio, as well as the Boston Red Sox, had the better of them in the 22-game series. Oddly enough, the Washington team made more hits than did the Yankees against its pitching, the Mackmen, Browns and Red Sox being the only teams which bettered them in this respect.

American Golfers Should Win With Great Sartorial Shots.

If Walter Hagen's Ryder Cup team falls down in its international match with the British it won't be because of worry over its sartorial appointments. Hagen has appointed an expert on what the well-dressed linksman should wear to select the golfing garb of his men. Hagen's theory is that a golfer's poise is helped by the consciousness that he is dressed impeccably. He is also an admirer of fine feathers for their own sake. The day may yet come when golf bags will contain special pockets for vanity cases.

NATS LIST 32 PLAYERS ON ROSTER

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

"COL." WILLIAM SMITH, assistant secretary of the Washington Baseball Club, yesterday proudly issued his annual January masterpiece in the form of what he calls the "rostrum" of the Nationals. This shows at a glance just what talent Manager Walter Johnson will have on hand at the Tampa training camp, from which he hopes to mold another American League winner and world's champion and, as it likely will prove of particular interest to District fans, it is printed in The Post.

Thirty-two players, Trainer Mike Martin, Comedian-Coaches Altrock and Schacht and Coaches Clyde Milan and Ed ("Patsy") Gharrity comprise the employes who will toil under Johnson's supervision this spring, with at least seven not likely to be seen in Washington this season.

Although the names of many newcomers are on the list, which includes those of twelve pitchers, five catchers, six outfielders and nine infielders, Washington fans have seen all but seven.

Many Newcomers Have Been Seen in Washington Before.

"Buddy" Myer broke into the majors here, several of the rookies were with the Nats last season, Pitcher Archie Campbell has performed in the Georgia Avenue Stadium in a Yankee uniform, while Outfielder Spencer Harris has played here with the White Sox. The faces of the following have never been used in Washington, as far as can be learned: Infielders Charles Gooch and Elmer Yoter, Catchers Cliff Bolton and Albert Bool and Pitchers Guy Cantrell, Adolph Liska and Paul McCullough.

According to the figures compiled by the usually accurate "colonel," the Nationals will have an outfit of young giants. No less than 24 of those named are 5 feet 10 inches tall, with half a dozen being 6 feet or over, while all but five are under the 30-year-old mark as regards age. Sam Rice is the patriarch of the flock, admitting to 38 summers (also winters), with "Bad Sam" Jones next in seniority, two years younger. The other oldsters are Joe Judge, 34; John ("Stuffy") Stewart, 31, and Leon ("Goose") Goslin, 30.

KENNEDYS WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT

GONZAGA BEATS DEVITT FIVE, 26-21, NEARING TITLE

Purple Leads Prep League Teams

Devitt's Rally Futile; Pyne and McVean Lead Scorers.

THE Gonzaga High School basketers yesterday tightened their grip on first place in the District prep school basket ball race and brightened their chances of winning The Washington Post trophy, emblematic of the championship, by defeating the Devitt Prep Quintet by a score of 26 to 21 on the Boys Club court.

As in the opening game of the league last Wednesday, thrilling action developed in the early minutes and continued throughout, much to the delight of the enthusiastic audience which again taxed the limits of the hall. Gonzaga also provided a repetition of last week's episodes by piling up an early lead which withstood the late rally of its foe.

Devitt made a determined bid for the decision in the third and fourth quarters with Harry Clarke, a substitute guard, furnishing a sensation by his consistently accurate foul tossing and general all-around play.

Victory Gives Gonzaga Five Lead In Prep Series.

The victory made Gonzaga's record in the series read two wins and no losses and left Devitt and St. John's tied with one defeat apiece.

The Purple dribblers, led by McVean, Pyne and J. Farrell, shot out in front in the first two quarters with a lead that seemed to forecast an easy triumph. McVean sunk two field goals in this attack, the Gonzaga defense meanwhile holding Devitt to a lone two-pointer, which was registered by Gleason. At intermission Gonzaga was ahead, 12 to 5.

Clarke, who had gone in the contest in the second quarter, staged his "hot hand" act in the first part of the third period. He opened up with a marathon toss for two points and then gave a fancy exhibition of sinking free shots. He made good on every one of six attempts from the 15-foot stripe.

Bussink and Pine Heroes in Winning Rally.

Seeing their lead out down to three points, the count being 17 to 14, the Gonzagans then uncovered a telling attack in which baskets by Bussink and Pine featured. Thereafter until the close Devitt strove in vain to catch the leaders.

Next Wednesday's game between the runners-up, Devitt and St. John's, will mark the close of the first round of the series. Another round will be held so that each team will meet each of the others twice.

Grand Stand Coaches Body Postpones Fete

Owing to the inability of many of the guest coaches to be present, the first annual banquet of the Grand Stand Coaches Association of this city was to have been held Saturday night at the Bannockburn Club, has been indefinitely postponed, it was announced last night by Dr. George T. Sharp, president of the association.

Sickness and the fact that their teams will be engaged on the original date prevented so many of the active coaches from accepting invitations that the committee in charge decided that a date later on suitable to all would have to be selected.

The banquet was planned as a medium through which close friendship between the active coaches of Washington and those who "referee" from the sidelines could be cemented.

MIKE KELLEY TO COACH TRACK

Present Coaching Staff to Remain at Eastern, Says Hart.

WITH the exception of the position of track coach, which will be filled by Mike Kelley, the coaching personnel at Eastern High School will remain as constituted at present when the public school authorities make shifts in the athletic departments of the various institutions under their supervision early in February.

Principal Charles Hart, of Eastern, last night stated that so far as he could see the current assignments in the athletic department of his school would stand. Any changes made for Eastern by the board of examiners of the public schools would have to be recommended by him and he will not recommend such, he said.

At present Charles Guyon is the director of athletics and baseball coach at Eastern. Harlan P. Sanborn is basket ball coach, while Mike Kelley, formerly of Central, is tutoring the track and football teams. The track assignment was given Kelley only recently, but previously had been intended for Sanborn, whose time became totally absorbed by the Lincoln Park basket ball squad.

Kelley Prepares Track Team For Spring Campaign.

Kelley now is engaged in getting the Eastern runners in shape and will handle them throughout the spring campaign. He also is slated to resume charge of the Eastern track team in the fall, while again coaching the football team.

In the past, Guyon has coached football, basket ball and baseball, but at the beginning of this academic year, when the school board effected a shake-up in high school coaches which brought Kelley from Central, Guyon recommended to Hart that his coaching duties be divided, with Kelley taking football and Sanborn baseball.

MEDICOS BEAT EAGLES.

Army Medicos maintained their untarnished record by defeating Anacostia Eagles last night, 33-31, in the hospital "Y" Gym. Both teams were without two of their regulars, but the contest was keenly fought from start to finish.

Teams in Lighter Classes To Rival Heavies in Entries In A. A. U. Court Tourney

WHILE major interest in the South Atlantic A. A. U. basket ball tournaments, sponsored here by The Washington Post for the past two years, has centered in the unlimited and 145 pound classes, there are indications that the competition in the 100, 115 and 130-pound divisions will rival that of the two heavier classes in this year's Washington games, which again will be played under the auspices of The Post.

Two years ago, when The Post arranged to hold tournament games here so that Washington teams might be saved the time and expense of trips to Baltimore for games, the lighter class teams were under a severe handicap due to the weight restrictions of the tournament. Although there were a few teams on which all five regular players were under the weight limit, in the majority of cases the clubs had one or two star players who had to be dropped from their roster for the tournament.

Teams Guarded Against Signing Overweight Players.

This handicap was overcome by many of the teams last year. When organizing for the season, they looked forward to the tournament and played only those players who were sure of making the weight. However, there remained a number of teams which failed to heed the advice of those in charge of the tournament and, although their records in independent circles were good, they either failed to enter the tournament or lost out in an early round due to absence of players unable to make the weight.

Having been impressed with the necessity of having all players eligible, the majority of the lighter class teams are now in position to enter their full roster of players. In a number of cases, players are a pound or two over weight but, with more than a month in which to train down, managers are not worrying.

Tourney Demand of Keeping Within Class Boost to Game.

The weight rules of the South Atlantic tournament have been an aid to independent basket ball. With the majority of teams a uniform size, clubs meeting in outside games this year have for the most part been evenly matched. In many cases, the lighter teams have hesitated to use star players who are too heavy for their class, knowing that their loss in the tournament will work against team play and consequently jeopardize the chance of the club for the District and South Atlantic championships.

The lighter teams, especially those in the 100-pound class, have shown an eagerness to get the tournament under way, although the starting date has been set for March 11. Many of the managers have visited or phoned the sports department of The Post for information.

The clubs can make their first move toward participating tomorrow night when entry blanks will be available at The Post, where managers

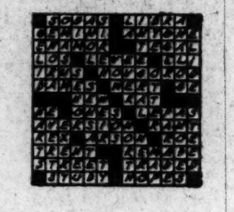
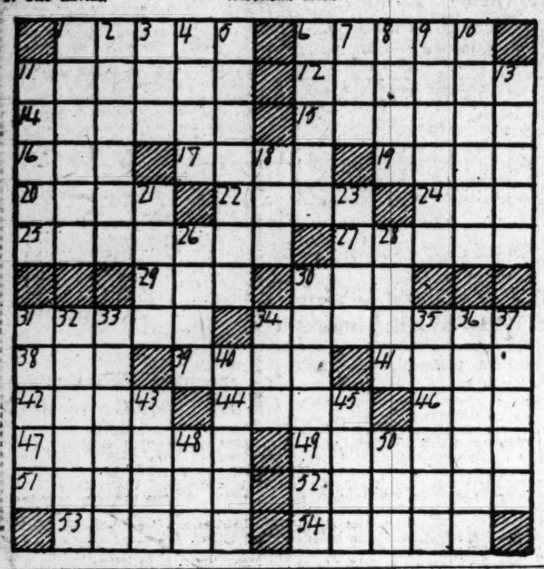
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.



(Copyright, 1929.)



YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

Reading Young Folks by Photographs.

Are employers wise when they advertise: "Applicants must attach a photograph of themselves to the letters of application?"

Is a member of a "correspondence club" fooling himself when he lightly touches his lips to the picture of the beloved one whom he has never seen in flesh and blood?

Two psychologists from Wesleyan University have found that college graduates destined to become famous lawyers or surgeons carry no shining mark of their success upon their youthful faces in photographs—at least none that an employer can rely upon. College boys who will never rise beyond a clerk's desk in a law office may look keen and promising at graduation time.

This is the way they went about it. They selected the five most successful lawyers, doctors, teachers and engineers in a big university class that graduated 25 years ago, and also the five graduates who have attained the least worldly success in each of these fields. Photographs of the men taken at graduation and 25 years later were shown to psychology students, who judged the success or failure of each and the line of work that would suit him best. In practically every case the observers disagreed and the same subject might be assigned to from ten to fifteen different by 10 of the 20 student judges to be a vocations.

Six of them thought he was a successful clergyman and four decided that he was a failure in his church career.

Another man, who, 25 years after graduation, holds a minor teaching post, was rated as a successful banker by six of the judges.

These psychologists added: "A photograph in a letter of application for a job will not enable an employer to gain any positive idea of an individual's talents or his character."

If these psychologists are right, then it is useless for me to expect to illustrate "My American Girl" with a photograph. But are they?

Flatly I say, "it can be done." One may not be able to tell from a photograph whether or not a girl will be a nurse or a stenographer or a cartoonist or a lawyer. But from a photograph one can form some idea of character.

If "the inner self," as the girl correspondent said Monday, "chissels the temple face," then a photograph of the face must give some inkling of that inner self.

OUR CONVERSATION ORNER.

The Pay Check.

I get $14 a week and hand the check over to Ma. She opens all my mail at that. How much ought I have for pocket money and for the bank?

GROWING UP.

Answer—Two dollars a week in the bank, $4 for yourself and $8 for mother. If you are old enough to work you should have strength enough to slit your own letters.

Does Your Resolution Still Work?

On January 1 almost every one makes a resolution to do better in the new year than he did the past year. Perhaps you made such a resolution. Is it more of a wishbone than a backbone now? Do you want to analyze yourself to see whether you have desirable or undesirable characteristics? If you do, clip this reminder and forward with S. A. S. E.

Habit Helpiets.

They are not medical and do not repeat what readers get from health columns. Being a teacher and somewhat of a psychologist, I know how to instill habits. That in itself is a big game, and very properly belongs to the fields covered by this column.

Training for right habits is mother's and teacher's job. I'll help if you will check:

1. Is it that the children simply will not clean their teeth?
2. That even the young daughter insists on painting her face?
3. Is it that your child is getting hard of hearing and you are puzzled about his future vocation?

What Today Means to You

JANUARY 24

—WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU—
"AQUARIUS."

IF January 24 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you today are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 2:15 p. m., to 3:15 p. m., from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:45 p. m. and from 4:45 p. m. to 5:45 p. m.

Courage and confidence are the traits advised and furthered by today's planetary aspects. If you are doubtful of the future success of anything undertaken today, and hesitate, remember and bear in mind constantly the adage, "The man who says it can't be done is liable to be interrupted by some one doing it."

The child born today will be extremely clever and intelligent, but, sad to relate, will be neither affectionate nor loving to its parents. It will be abnormal in that it will not seek the companionship of children of its own age. Care should be taken that it does not come to harm in its teens—the dangerous age!

Do not build air castles. You are inclined to be visionary rather than practical and should try to correct this fault. You conceive wonderful ideas, which are sometimes of great practical value, but you do not seem to have the ability of perseverence to realize them. You should adopt as your motto, "If you have built castles in the air, that is where they should be; now put the foundations under them." Courage is lacking in your makeup, not the courage that defies physical danger, but the mental courage that is given to every visionary, and which carries him through ridicule and scorn to the heights of success. Remember that there is little difference between the difficult and the impossible, except that the impossible takes more time.

You will have many friends because you are generous and rather easy going. You are fond of gatherings, especially of a social character, and are at your best when attending such function. You are rather inclined to choose some friends on account of their family connections. Do not do this, as it will cause you unhappiness.

Your marital relations will not be of the best, because of your dreaming and mental laziness, but will pass fairly smoothly.

Successful people born on January 24:

Henry J. Raymond, journalist.
Joseph H. Choate, lawyer.
Joseph W. Drexel, banker and philanthropist.
Robert Grant, jurist and author.
Charles H. Niehaus, sculptor.

METAL AND UTILITY BONDS REACT LATE

Part of Early Gains Are Lost In Mixed Trading; Few Rail Issues Soar.

FEDERAL LIST IS FIRMER

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Metal and some utility issues were pushed to record levels today in mixed trading on the bond market, only to lose part or all their gains in late afternoon profit-taking. Sales, for the second time in two months, exceeded $12,000,000. Further importation of gold from England and buoyancy of the stock market seemed to stimulate buying of speculative issues.

Anaconda Copper 7s reached a new peak of 205, only to fall back to 202 before the close for a net loss of 1 point on the day. Chile Copper 5s at 98½ also established a new high and managed to hold most of their gain. A new high was attained by Wickwire Spencer Steel convertible 7s with an advance of 2¼ points, to 80½, reflecting predictions of record business in the industry for the first quarter of 1929. Weakness was displayed by National Dairy Products 5½s, and Hudson Coal 5s and Kayser & Co. 5½s, the latter two dropping to new low levels.

Utilities showed improvement, although Public Service of New Jersey 6½s closed net 4 points lower on the day, after touching its previous peak price of 202. This slump followed reports the company was issuing more stock. International Telephone convertible 4½s resumed their upward march into new high ground, closing with a net gain of 2½ points.

St. Paul adjustment 5s led the advance in the irregular rail group, establishing a new peak at 80 on a heavy turnover. Ulster & Delaware convertible 5s and refunding 4s, with gains of 1 and 8 points, respectively, set new high records. Weakness cropped out in Northern Pacific 6s B, Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s and Rock Island 4½s and refunding 4s.

Oils were fractionally lower. Humble Oil 5s, however, improved.

Italian industrials dominated the irregular foreign list. Montecatini 7s with warrants advanced 2 points, and Pirelli 7s improved on a large turnover. United States Government obligations were firmer.

EDITOR SEES CRISIS AHEAD FOR BANKERS

H. Parker Willis Asserts Federal Reserve System Policies Are Unsound.

SMALL BUSINESSES HURT

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

An approaching crisis in the economic history of the United States, calling for immediate revision of prevailing policies in order that the present strain at the present banking and credit resources might be markedly reduced, was seen last night by H. Parker Willis, editor of the Journal of Commerce and recognized authority on the money situation, in an address before a meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, at the Willard Hotel.

Partly under the influence of bad banking management, partly as the result of great natural expansion of business, and partly as the outcome of an ill-judged and untimely effort to supply foreign countries with gold under conditions of doubtful wisdom, the United States has largely scattered its surplus lending and credit power, Dr. Willis told the District bankers.

Characterizing the present situation as "serious," the speaker declared that the small business man has suffered from lack of credit, and every kind of business has suffered from high cost of it, the advance being from 20 to 50 per cent over 1927. Summarizing, he said that bankruptcies have increased very greatly, business profits have been continuously reduced so far as affects the rank and file of concerns, and that money has been extraordinarily high, though security values and earnings of the larger corporations have increased enormously.

Bank Management Blamed.

Dr. Willis cited the management of our banking system as one of the outstanding factors in bringing about this situation. He said the public is rightly inclined to visit some measure of criticism for the situation upon our central banking system, and cited three instances in which he said the Federal Reserve System has been "conspicuously wanting."

The first of these, the speaker held, was when it failed to restrain the inflation of the war period and the "credit debauch" which occured in connection with the issue of Liberty bonds. Secondly, he said, it was unable to guard against the epidemic of bank failures which occurred between 1922 and 1928. Thirdly, he cited the failure to conserve its lending power and the permission it has granted for the development of an unparalleled era of overspeculation.

The Federal Reserve system," he said, "has been bootlegging a great deal of credit to market operators, and they have used it freely, and at times recklessly. The immediate danger in the case to which I have already referred, the immediate problem which must be solved, is that of bringing about a readjustment in our use of credit which shall restore some portion of it, now diverted, to the channels where it is needed, while at the same time making a proper provision for the legitimate requirements of securities operations."

Too Late for Relief.

The truth is, he declared, that the Federal Reserve system has been wasting its resources and following unsound banking principles in several distinct directions. It has gone far beyond the time when the Federal Reserve system can do anything to relieve the situation, although it might have in the past, he stated.

In suggesting possible remedies, Dr. Willis said that first of all there should be some temporary partial suspension or moratorium with regard to over-issues of new securities. Next, he said, the prinipal bankers must undertake quite definitely to reduce their commitments on purely speculative or trading account to some figure taken as basic or normal. In the third place, he said, the Federal Reserve system must go entirely out of the business of furnishing bargain-counter credit, or of "bootlegging" its accommodations to the stock market.

Preceding the address, and following an introductory talk by President Robert V. Fleming, Wilmer J. Waller, vice president, announced for the general convention committee that the annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will be held June 20 to 22 at Montauk Point, N. J. The bankers will leave here on a special train on June 19, and return June 23.

There were reports by F. P. H. Siddons, chairman of the new fiduciaries section; Raymond G. Marx, vice chairman of the new auditors section, and Charles E. Howe, chairman of the new safe deposit section. Other committee chairman to report included Eliot H. Thompson, Howard Moran and Francis G. Addison.

Speed Contest Is Held.

Henry O'Neil, of the central branch of the American Security & Trust Co., last night was adjudged the fastest adding machine operator in Washington banks, at a speed contest sponsored by the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, held at chapter headquarters. L. F. Stanbaugh, of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, won second honors, and W. H. Laughlin, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., third.

In a separate contest held for women, Miss Anna V. Graininger, of the Lincoln National Bank, and Mrs. Gladys Scott, of the Farmers' & Mechanics Branch of Riggs, won first and second places, respectively. Judges were J. J. Roberts, of Riggs National Bank; T. Hunton Leith, of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and James C. Dulin, jr., of the American Security & Trust Co.

Gas Light Stock Soars.

Washington Gas Light stock yesterday rose more than 10 points to a high of 120 in trading on the Washington Stock Exchange. Thirty shares figured in the transaction. Although this was the highest level ever attained on the local board, the stock last week brought a much larger price, when Dana A. Pearson, of New York, obtained the approval of the Supreme Court to acquire 7,000 shares belonging to the Leiter estate, at $125 a share.

American Security & Trust Co. stock soared 9 points to a high of 475 in a single share transaction. A 4-point gain was netted in Columbia Sand & Gravel preferred, which advanced more than 4 points to 98½ after opening at 94. Merchants Transfer & Storage preferred moved up 2 points to 109.

The remainder of the list was firm, with no recessions noted. Strength was shown in Chestnut Farms Dairy preferred, which held at 109; Washington Railway & Electric preferred, at 98¾; Riggs National Bank, at 581, and National Mortgage & Investment preferred, at 5¾.

There was little activity in the bond division, where $300 Washington Gas 6s, series A, brought 103 and 103¼, and $300 Washington Gas 6s, series B, sold for 105.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Profit-taking at the higher levels caused widespread irregularity in the curb market today, although a number of issues again invaded new high ground under the leadership of the utilities. Money rates held firm, but banks called about $5,000,000 in loans and there appeared to be some nervousness over expectations that tomorrow's brokers' loan total will show a wide increase.

Increase in copper prices and a comparatively bright outlook for other metals encouraged buying of mining and metal shares, although a few yielded to selling pressure. Oils also moved to lower levels, liquidation in this group being encouraged by production reports showing weekly crude output at record January levels.

Oils generally were weak, but stocks of investment trusts, specializing in oil company securities, forged ahead on buying inspired by organization of additional trusts of this type. Oil Stocks Limited A and Tri-Continent when issued established new highs. United Gas advanced more than a point, to a new top, at 29¾, on announcement the company will participate with Standard of New Jersey in building a pipe line from the Louisiana gas fields to St. Louis.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—In big trading, wheat soared today to new high prices for the season, but then heavy profit-taking sales brought about a setback. Reports of subzero temperatures and of numerous areas of winter wheat unprotected or under ice were largely responsible for the upward swing of the market.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ¾ of a cent lower, with corn ½ to ⅞ of a cent down, oats ranging from ¼ of a cent decline to ¼ of a cent advance, and provisions showing 12 to 37 cents gain.

Wheat buying on a broad scale today with corresponding sharp upturns in price developed in the face of Liverpool wheat quotations very unresponsive to advances which had taken place yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. Official reports, though, that growing wheat in parts of Kansas were frozen in the ground and that throughout much of the main section of the Western belt the planted acreage is bare of snow led promptly to aggressive action among believers in higher prices, and as a result the market here jumped away from declines which had been registered at the opening.

Especially attracting notice were advices that snowfalls in many sections had melted into sheets of ice which had sealed up the wheat fields and were preventing proper aeration. It was asserted that such conditions could not help but be injurious, even if the extent of the acreage might remain concealed for several weeks. On the other hand, a 5 cents a bushel rise in wheat values shown to have been attained since January 5 led to considerable change in trade sentiment near the end of the day. There was much talk that for at least the time being a reaction was in order.

Corn, oats and rye were swayed largely by the course of wheat. In the corn market, there was active spread trading against wheat at times but also lively undoing of gentine corn belt, mostly over Buenos Aires Province. Meanwhile, country offerings of corn to Chicago were limited. Deferred delivery both of oats and rye went to premiums only slightly above the season's previous top. Provisions showed increasing activity, and reflected hog market upturns to the highest point reached since October.

CITIZENS' COUNCIL BALKS AT BACKING NEW MERGER PACT

Havenner and Roberts Delay Action Until Senate Report Is Printed.

BLAINE AMENDMENT IS GIVEN SOME PRAISE

Simmons' School Bill and Plan for Municipal Center Both Win Approval.

A half-hearted effort to place the Citizens Advisory Council on record as favoring the street car merger plan approved by the Senate subcommittee without the Blaine amendment was launched by Charles I. Stengle at the weekly meeting of the council in the District Building last night, but came to naught when William A. Roberts opposed such action and was backed up by Dr. George C. Havenner in his demand that the council await a formal report by the Senate committee and see just what it was proposed to approve.

Stengle proposed that Havenner, president of the council, be authorized to take such action as would represent the council in supporting any merger plan which seemed to have a unanimity of sentiment behind it.

"Why put off action?" Stengle asked. "I'm not owned by the street car companies, but we should not let this merger question hang fire and possibly not be acted on this session and not before June."

"And have a 10-cent fare in the meantime," Havenner interjected.

Special Meeting Suggested.

"Exactly," Stengle agreed. "We ought to do missionary work among the members of the House committee and get them to agree to accept the Senate committee's plan."

The Blaine amendment, Roberts said, was of utmost importance, and proposed to incorporate in the merger agreement a valuation plan which every student of utilities valuations agreed was the soundest and most equitable of all methods.

He urged that the North American Co., which is behind the present merger move, might well be persuaded to accept the Blaine amendment, which would protect car riders, rather than not to have a merger.

Havenner suggested he might call a special meeting to consider the merger plan worked out by the Senate committee as soon as the committee's report was printed.

The council approved the Simmons bill providing $10,000,000 for the purchase of school sites and buildings and giving blanket authority for the expenditure of the fund without designating specific sites and buildings to be paid for out of the fund.

Center Measure Approved.

The Zihlman five-year school building program bill, introduced at the suggestion of school executives, was disapproved by the council, because, it was said, it is less flexible than the Simmons measure, under which changing conditions could be met from year to year.

Approval also was given to the bill drafted by the commissioners providing for the beginning of the municipal center development opposite Judiciary Square. But the approval extended only to the $2,400,000 appropriation for the purchase of the two squares between Third and Sixth streets, between C street and the square, and did not go the full length of the Simmons bill providing for acquiring of two other squares along Pennsylvania avenue between Third and Sixth streets.

Voodoo Doctor Given Additional Six Months

An additional six months was added to the District Jail sentence of "Prof." William Anthony George, colored "voodoo" doctor, yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of practicing medicine without a license before Judge Ralph Given in Police Court.

The "professor" was recently sentenced to serve six months in jail and pay a $200 fine or serve an additional six months when convicted of practicing pharmacy without a license. Testimony developed that George sold a colored woman some "sick powders," which she sprinkled on another colored woman. The second woman consulted the "professor" and he sold her some self-compounded medicine, which, he claimed, would cure her. He was arrested by Detectives Charles Mansfield and Robert Saunders before the "cure" could be effected.

Accused of obtaining more than $1,000 from thirteen residents of this city through an alleged bogus stock transaction, Charles J. Merchant, of New York City, yesterday was held for the Grand Jury in $1,500 bond by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court on charges of larceny after trust.

Roy Murray, of 1425 Irving street northwest, and Frederick Reed, Eighteenth street northwest, and T. C. Duvall, of 1329 Fourteenth street northwest, complained that Merchant had sold them stock in an airplane company, which police say they later discovered never existed.

NEW MERGER PLAN IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Senate Subcommittee Reports Maltbie Resolution Favorably to Full Body.

BLAINE'S MOVE WAITS

The new joint resolution to permit a street car merger here cleared its first legislative hurdle yesterday when the subcommittee of the Senate District committee made a favorable report on it to the full committee.

The full committee will consider the resolution at a meeting tomorrow morning. At the same time, it will consider an amendment drafted by Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, which prescribes a new method for valuating public utilities here.

The subcommittee yesterday failed to take action on Blaine's amendment, passing it on to the full committee "without prejudice." Had a vote been taken, however, it is probable that the amendment would have been defeated.

Blaine proposes that utilities here be valuated under the Interstate Commerce Commission plan, the valuation to be based on the "prudent investment" involved. At present, Blaine contends, there is no legislative yardstick for valuating utility properties here. The Interstate Commerce Commission method now is under fire in the O'Fallon case before the United States Supreme Court.

The resolution approved by the subcommittee yesterday was drafted by Dr Milo R. Maltbie, New York utilities expert, who was hired to study the merger situation and later directed to negotiate with the traction heads for a new agreement.

It is presumed that the traction officials have given their approval to the resolution, but it is hardly likely that they would favor it with the Blaine amendment tacked on.

The new resolution provides that the street railway companies shall merge without any fixed valuation. This was the principal concession wrung from the companies, who wanted a $50,000,000 valuation on which to base fares.

The new measure also guarantees that there shall be no increase in the present fare for two years. Under the terms of the old resolution, the guarantee would have been only for a year.

Maltbie also gained concessions with regard to the power clause in the merger agreement, and with regard to claims to be paid by the merged company.

$1,000 Fine or 180 Days Verdict in Liquor Case

A fine of $1,000 or 180 days in jail on charges of second offense possession and first offense transporting liquor was imposed yesterday on Nelson A. Burns, colored, by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court.

The defendant's mother, Eliza Burns, recently received a three-year prison sentence in the District Supreme Court by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy on accumulated liquor accusations and escaped shortly after the sentence was pronounced. She has not been seen since gaining her freedom.

Jury Believes Accused Innocent in Liquor Case

Choosing to believe Edward F. Schwenk, 23 years old, unwittingly was seated in an automobile, which contained 16 gallons of liquor, and was ignorant of the fact that liquor was in the car, a jury in Police Court yesterday acquitted him of transporting and possessing charges.

Testimony revealed that the driver of the car, escaped when accosted by Policeman Miles Zamenacek last October 17.

NATIVE OF WASHINGTON

Before a courtroom crowded to capacity with friends, relatives and business associates, Leo A. Rover yesterday subscribed, in the District Supreme Court, to the oath of office as United States Attorney for the District of Columbia. The oath was administered by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, in the presence of the other justices of the court.

Immediately after the formal ceremony, the justices filed down from the bench and extended their congratulations to Mr. Rover and his family. Chief Justice McCoy added to his good wishes "and I also congratulate the District of Columbia."

Mr. Rover has been connected with the prosecutor's office since 1920. He succeeds Maj. Peyton Gordon, who was elevated to a District Supreme Court justice last April. The new District prosecutor is a native of this city and a graduate of Georgetown University Law School. He is 40 years old and resides at 1300 Quincy street northeast.

Civil Service Fund Protection Asked

League Protests Against Bill to Use Money for Army Retirements.

The League of American Civil Service Employes yesterday protested to the Senate civil service committee against passage of the pending bill for retirement of Army transport service officers and employes on civil service retirement and disability fund money.

Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, president, declared the league is opposed to any reduction or disbursements of money from the fund until civil service employes have obtained increases in salaries and retirement pay.

The bill was passed by the House and reported favorably from the Senate committee on military affairs. It is now before the Senate civil service committee. The provision that the money for retirement of Army transport employes at three-quarters pay be taken from the civil service retirement fund was added as an amendment in the House. It provides for three retirements at pay rates of $3,375, $2,100 and $1,440, respectively.

Hungry Boy Caught Stealing Doughnuts

Homeless and hungry, William Searles, 23 years old, made off with a dozen doughnuts from in front of a store at 338 Missouri avenue northwest, early yesterday. Complaints of early morning thefts of groceries from the place accounted for the presence of Patrolman R. J. Frazier, of the Sixth Precinct, who was hidden in the store, and the young man was arrested.

He freely confessed to Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court a few hours later that he took the doughnuts "because I was hungry." The court recommended the case to probation authorities.

INQUIRY INTO SERIES OF FIRES IS OPENED BY SAFETY OFFICERS

POLICE SEEKING MAN SEEN LEAVING CHURCH

Old Home of Gen. Hickey Is Damaged by Flames; Only Walls Stand.

As the result of a series of disastrous fires recently, in which one woman lost her life, officials of the fire and police departments have begun a sweeping investigation to determine if any were of incendiary origin.

The fires at Holy Name Church, Eleventh and K streets northeast; the Glendower Apartment, 21 Sixth street northeast, and the store and dwelling at 922 Fourteenth street northwest, are the principal ones under investigation.

For a time the fire marshals and police suspected a man who was seen at both the Glendower Apartment fire and the Fourteenth street fire, but subsequent investigation revealed that the man was in bed asleep at the time the Glendower alarm was put in, it was said.

Police Seek Suspect.

Police are looking for a young man, said to have been seen leaving the Holy Name Church shortly before the fire destroyed the altar Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. John W. Dowling, pastor of the church, insists that the fire was incendiary and believes the capture of the young man will substantiate his belief.

The fire started in the rear of the altar, where Father Dowling keeps the sacramental wines. He believes that some one fired the church to cover up the theft of this wine. This is further borne out by the fact that wine was stolen some weeks ago from the church and the poor boxes tampered with.

Damage to the church and the pipe organ was estimated at $10,000 by Marshal William Seib.

May Have Been Accident.

That all the fires may have been accidental despite the cloud of suspicion that hovers about the epidemic was admitted by Chief George Watson.

After talking to Fire Marshal Seib, Chief Watson said that the Holy Name Church fire could have started from a candle left behind the altar by the thief who is believed to have stolen the wine.

On the other hand, it was pointed out, the carelessness of workmen who had been decorating the church for a wedding Tuesday afternoon, could have caused the fire.

In analyzing the conditions prevailing at the Glendower fire, Chief Watson said he had been driven to the conclusion that this fire was incendiary. The dumb-waiter shafts in the front and rear of the building were afire in this case, while the remainder of the building, with the exception of the roof, was not damaged.

Fire Spread Peculiarly

That the fire could have started in the rear dumb waiter and mushroomed to the roof and then eaten its way to the bottom of the front dumb waiter without burning the upper portion is a little too much to believe, he said. It may be possible, but it is improbable, he added.

It was in this fire that Miss Carrie Goodwin was fatally burned. She ran through the building giving the alarm. While opening a door the flames leaped out and ignited her dress.

The historic old home that was formerly owned by Gen. William Hickey, at Hickey place and W street northeast, was ruined yesterday morning by a fire that left only the walls standing.

To reach the blaze, firemen had to stretch 4,000 feet of hose. Damage was estimated at $3,500. The fire is believed to have been started by an overheated flue.

The building is now owned by the Hudson Brick & Supply Co. and occupied by Joseph Young, colored, and his family. When Gen. Hickey lived there it was known as Green Vale and was the scene of numerous entertainments for notables. Gen. Hickey was at one time secretary to the United States Senate and commander of the District Militia.

Federal Men Remind House of Pay Promise

Attention to the need of carrying out a promise made a year ago to District employes to bring their average salary up to the average of their respective grades was called in a letter addressed to each member of the House of Representatives yesterday by Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes.

As the Welch pay raise act was a general increase measure, Mr. Steward explained that employes of the District stand in no better relation to the average plan than they did prior to its passage.

Bad Lights on Autos Cause Arrest of 23

Nineteen of the total were arrested by Sergt. E. Williams, and Private R. Sinclair, of the Traffic Bureau, and booked at Eighth precinct. The other four were gathered in by Tenth precinct details.

PAY BILL'S DRAFT TO BE STARTED BY HOUSE TOMORROW

Statement From McCarl, Data and Reports on Testimony Waiting Committee.

STAND OF COOLIDGE IS CAUSING WORRY

Friends of Increase Would Like to Know How Much He Will Permit.

The House civil service committee meets tomorrow morning to begin the actual task of drafting a bill to correct the inequalities in the Welch pay-raise act. The meeting, called yesterday by Chairman Lehlbach, will be behind closed doors.

It seems almost certain that the bill that finally is reported out will be a compromise measure—that is, one embodying features now contained in both the Lehlbach and Brookhart bills.

When it meets tomorrow the committee will have before it a report of the testimony at the recent hearings on the various bills that have been introduced, a mass of data supplied by Government personnel experts, and a statement from Comptroller General McCarl.

McCarl's Statement Withheld.

McCarl's statement, which had been requested by Lehlbach, arrived at the Capitol yesterday, but was not made public. In it the Federal accounts clear answers two questions relative to a provision in the Lehlbach bill restoring authority to the Personnel Classification Board.

With just a little more than a month of the short session remaining, those pushing the salary legislation are becoming concerned lest it be caught in a jam in the closing days.

Also the attitude of President Coolidge is worrying them. Just where does the President stand? That is the question they are asking, and no answer is coming.

Recently the President was represented as being opposed to any bill that provided sweeping salary increases for the Government workers.

Opposed Brookhart Bill.

Neither the Brookhart bill nor the Lehlbach bill does this, but it is feared that the President had in mind the Brookhart bill, which would benefit about three times as many employes as the Lehlbach bill.

In the last analysis, the President probably wants the cheapest bill that can be put through, just as he did at the last session. He is known to have been piqued when he discovered that the Welch act would cost more than he had expected.

What the friends of the employes would like to know is this: How expensive a bill will the President stand for?

Woman Hurled Through Windshield in Crash

Thrown through the windshield when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband, Raymond Mason, 37, of 2525 Ontario road northwest, was in collision in front of 2020 Thirteenth street northwest, with another machine, Mrs. Minnie Mason, 34 years old, suffered severe lacerations about the face that required treatment at Garfield Hospital.

Kerfoot Flynn, 38 years old, of 119 Bonifoint street, Silver Spring, Md., driver of the other automobile, also was treated at Garfield Hospital for cuts and bruises, and later was taken to Eighth Precinct Station, where charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated were booked against him.

Detective Ogle, Felled, Captures Hit-Run Man

Struck down at G and Twelfth streets northwest, by an automobile whose driver did not pause, Detective Howard Ogle, of Police Headquarters, picked himself up, commandeered a passing automobile and overtook the car that struck him after a hectic chase that ended at Fourteenth and V streets northwest.

The driver of the pursued car was placed under arrest and booked at the Eighth Precinct Station on charges of reckless driving and leaving after an accident. He gave the name of Frederick Douglas Johnson. He is colored, 28 years old, and lives at 2220 Champlain street northwest. Ogle was cut and bruised but did not require hospital attention.

Special Inquiry Called In Death of Woman, 27

A chemical analysis will be made of the contents of Miss Nora Gowl's stomach to determine the cause of the 27-year-old woman's death Tuesday afternoon in her room at 1324 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

An autopsy performed yesterday by Dr. Joseph Rogers, deputy coroner, failed to reveal the cause of death. For this reason Dr. Rogers, who had previously treated the young woman for gastritis, ordered the chemical analysis.

Seeks To Change Her Name.

Petition to change her name from Mary Elizabeth Boggs to Mary Elizabeth McLean was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday. The petitioner declared she has used the name of McLean in business, social and financial incidents since she was 8 years of age.

House Committee Favors Bill for Municipal Center

Simmons, in Reporting Measure, Asks That Appropriation Be Included in Next Deficiency Quota; Four Lots Now Called For.

The Simmons bill to authorize the purchase of property south of Judiciary Square for a new municipal center was favorably reported by the House District committee yesterday. Within the municipal center are to be erected a handsome array of buildings for the use of the District government.

Before reporting the bill the committee amended it to provide for the acquisition of four instead of two blocks. It is understood the change was agreed to in advance by Representative Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, author of the bill.

In a speech in the House yesterday Simmons said that he would like to see an appropriation for purchase of the property carried in the next deficiency bill. The surplus the District now has in the Treasury, he said, would cover the cost.

Representative Underhill (Republican), of Massachusetts, told the committee yesterday that unless the property were purchased soon the owners would boost the price to unreasonable heights. He cited other cases where persons, knowing the Government wanted their property, boosted the price from 115 to 700 per cent.

The committee yesterday also approved the Fish bill providing a more stringent law for the registration of nurses here.

Girls Cast 28,000 Ballots in Contest

Grand Total of Votes Is 74,000; Time Limit Expires Tuesday.

Candidates in The Washington Post-Mary Pickford Contest yesterday submitted 28,000 votes. The total number of votes cast to date is 74,000.

Many events are in store for the winner of the contest. She will ride across the country in a special train on the Santa Fe Railroad. At Hollywood she will spend seven days as the guest of Mary Pickford. Teas, dances, theater parties, and studio visits will be arranged for her. She will be a special guest at filming of Mary Pickford's new photoplay "Coquette."

During the visit to California she will be taken to Catalina Island, and will have luncheon at the famous St. Catherine Hotel. A ride along the Sky Line boulevard, a visit to the Wrigley bird farm, and a climb up Mount Lowe by tram to the peak 3,000 feet above the glittering film capital are among many diversions already scheduled for the winning girl.

The contest will close at 6 o'clock Tuesday night. Officials in charge yesterday said individual contestants have trebled their efforts and their scores because of the approach of the end of the contest.

STEWARD ADAMANT IN NAVY YARD FIGHT

EIGHT-HOUR DAY OPPOSED

Declaring the campaign of the National Federation of Federal Employes against the Navy department wage board's increase of certain Navy Yard clerical forces from a seven to an eight hour day will be carried to Congress, the American Federation of Labor, and President-elect Hoover, if necessary, Luther C. Steward, Federation president, yesterday, revealed the attempt of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to close the argument, by returning Steward's latest letter on the subject.

The fight of the federation to prevent time keepers and kindred clerical workers in an official classification known as "Group 4B" from being forced from a seven to an eight hour day without extra remuneration began Christmas Day, in a protest declaring that while the wage board informed its representatives the subject would not be considered at its hearings in November, the ruling was made nevertheless, without their having opportunity to present the side of the clerks.

When the controversy opened, Navy wage board members explained that yard and station clerks whose work was not associated with mechanical and manual labor would continue on a seven-hour basis but those whose work was, would have to abide by the eight-hour schedule.

In the spirited correspondence revealed yesterday, it appears that Secretary Wilbur stated the increase in pay to all Group 4B employes, except draftsmen, by executive order incident to the passage of the Welch Act, took them out of the wage board procedure, and they are now within the scope of the act providing a survey of all positions of this kind, in the field service of the government.

Consequently, Secretary Wilbur stated, the department directed the wage boards not to collect data on these employes, except draftsmen, and as an administrative action the department extended the provisions of the old eight hours of work provision in the schedule of wages to include certain additional employes who formerly worked seven hours a day. He stated further that the Navy's employes have been paid for eight hours' work per day, although only required to work seven days therefor.

Washington Man's Jail-Break Foiled

Bladensburg Officers Find Inside Door Opened by Charles F. Wilson.

Charles F. Wilson, 2003 H street northwest, was arraigned in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court yesterday on charges of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and housebreaking. The latter charge grew out of an attempt to escape from the Bladensburg Jail yesterday.

Wilson was fined $100 on the driving-while-intoxicated charge and was held for the grand jury in $500 bond on the other charge. He was remanded to the Upper Marlboro Jail in default of fine and bond by Judge J. Chew Sheriff.

Wilson was arrested about 3 o'clock yesterday morning by police of the Twelfth Precinct in Washington on a lookout sent out by Town Bailiff Edgar Brown, of Brentwood, who said he saw the defendant run into a State highway sign and knock it down and then drive his car in a zigzag manner into Washington from Mount Rainier.

Firemen Fight 2-Alarm Blaze in Print Shop

Continuing the epidemic of extra-alarm fires that has plagued the Washington Fire Department this week, a two-alarm blaze was fought last night in the basement print shop of R. L. Pendleton, at 1216 U street northwest. Like most of the other large conflagrations with which the firemen have had to contend recently, the origin is as yet undetermined.

The blaze, however, was confined principally to the basement of the three-story building, although it spread partly to an adjoining frame structure at 1218 U street, where slight damage was done. The second alarm was turned in mainly as a precautionary measure by Fourth Battalion Chief A. J. Buscher, who considers the block a menacing one for a fire.

LARGE GIFTS REPORTED

Frank J. Hogan, attorney and orator, will be the principal speaker at the opening meeting of the group solicitation unit of the Community Chest at the Willard Hotel at 6:30 o'clock this evening. Mr. Hogan will take as his topic "The Human Significance of Community Chest Giving."

COMMITTEE SHOWN RAPID PROGRESS ON INAUGURATION PLANS

Finance Group Reports 315 Subscriptions, Totaling $74,000 of $100,000.

HOUSE VOTES $25,000 FOR INCREASED POLICE

First Division Personnel Is Ready, Stephan Announces; Indians Will Be in Line.

Substantial progress has been made in plans for the inauguration, according to the reports of the various committees and subcommittees made at a meeting of the general inaugural committee held yesterday afternoon at the Willard Hotel.

The report of the finance group showed that 315 subscriptions have been paid to the inaugural guarantee fund, making a total of $74,000 to date to defray expenses. A fund of $100,000 or more will be needed.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the House District committee had reported favorably a bill authorizing an appropriation of $25,000 for additional police protection during the inaugural celebration. Senator George Moses, head of the Senate group on the joint committee in charge of arrangements at the Capitol, assured District Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty that favorable action would be taken by the Senate on the measure within a few days.

Representative Finis J. Garrett, of Tennessee, who declared in the House Tuesday that on two or three occasions the inaugural parade had not passed the grand stand at the Capitol, was assured by Representative B. H. Snell, of New York, yesterday that the lines of march would pass the Capitol Plaza. Such assurances have been made by Col. U. S. Grant 3d, general chairman of inaugural arrangements.

Parade to Cross Plaza.

At the inaugural committee meeting yesterday this subject was brought up and Gen. Anton Stephan said he had been in a number of inaugural parades and all crossed the Capitol Plaza.

Mr. Snell also explained that a grand stand will be erected in front of the Capitol similar in size to the one used four years ago. It will hold approximately 8,000, he said.

Under tentative plans, seven tickets will be given each member of Congress in addition to the one for himself.

Due to the fact that many House members were unable to get into the Senate chamber during the last inaugural, a distinctive ticket will be provided those who are entitled to admission to that chamber.

There will be approximately 3,000 tickets available for members of the House and Senate in the Court of Honor stand on LaFayette Square, across from the reviewing stand, according to Mr. Snell.

That a huge crowd will attend the ceremonies on March 4 is indicated by the reservations made at the hotels and through the inaugural housing and hospitality committee.

In reporting for that committee at yesterday's meeting, Miss Kathleen Lawler said that rapid progress is being made in handling housing requests, a party of 150 having been taken care of Tuesday. Requests for hotel reservations are sent to the hotels.

First Division's Personnel.

Gen. Stephan announced that the mak-up of the first division of the parade had been completed. It will be composed of the units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, the Coast Guards and the Officers' Reserve outfits of the Army and Navy. The second unit, he said, will include the units of the Veterans' organizations.

The Los Angeles and the Question Mark will be in the aerial parade. There will be Indians and cowboys in the line of march. It was suggested that amplifiers be placed at the Capitol to broadcast the ceremonies there for the benefit of those along the line of march and in front of the White House. The plan will be considered by the committee.

Various events are planned in connection with the inaugural celebration, such as fireworks and drills by troops at Fort Myer. It was suggested by George Rothwell Brown that an exhibition be given of Army antiaircraft units, including the night illumination equipment and other displays. This suggestion will be worked out by the committee, Gen. Stephan giving assurances of the Army's cooperation.

Various details of the arrangements for the stands for those viewing the parade were discussed. Plans for broadcasting details by local and probably chain stations were outlined. Progress was reported in the preparation of medals and souvenirs.

Progress On Programs.

The program committee also reported the progress it had made. The program will be attractive in every respect, and will be sold at the charity ball and at other places.

Mrs. E. A. Harriman, president of the League of Republican Women, told of plans of the league to take care of the women and children. A large room at the F street entrance of the Willard Hotel will be provided where the women and children may rest. Col. Grant thanked Mrs. Harriman and the league in behalf of the committee for arrangements they will provide.

The music committee reported that its plans will include programs by an Indian Princess and by an Indian band.

The ticket committee reported that a total of 21,000 seats will be provided in the stands erected in front of the Treasury from Fifteenth street to Seventeenth street; in front and opposite the State, War and Navy Building; in the White House area and in front of the Munsey Building and the Municipal Building. Other stands will be let to concessionaires.

Arrangements for parking and other details to handle the crowds also were discussed.

Hears of Dry Law Eleven Years Late

Man Excused From Jury Duty When He Confesses Ignorance of Statute.

A man who never heard of prohibition has been discovered.

James DeLasos, delicatessen proprietor, of 4404 Fourteenth street northwest, was summoned to a jury box in Police Court yesterday to qualify as a juror in a liquor case.

"Are you opposed to enforcement of the national prohibition act," David A. Hart, prosecutor of the case, asked the prospective juror.

De Lasos looked dumfounded at Hart.

"Why, you know there is such a thing as the national prohibition act, don't you?" the prosecutor inquired.

"No, sir," responded De Lasos and he was forthwith excused.
